AN AILING WORLD LOOKS TO YARDS LABORATORIES

Byproducts of Meat Used by Doctors.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

One of the world's great sources of medicinal products of animal origin has been developed at Chicago's stockyards. The slaughter and packing houses which in earlier days gained the title, somewhat derisive, "hog butchers for the earth," have become recognized centers of science for the relief of the ills of humanity.

Packingtown's laboratories are now one of its loudest boasts. They are known to chemists, pharmacists, and doctors all over America, and in England and Europe. It is one of the things about Chicago which does not often get into print, as medical ethics frown upon much publicity.

Two packing houses—Armour & Co. and Wilson & Co.—have research laboratories operating in a commercial way with pharmaceutical products from the ductless glands and other material. Swift & Co. and other packers do not manufacture these medicinal preparations, but from their laboratories they sell the glands to pharmaceutical manufacturers who supply physicians, hospitals, and the drug trade.

Find 100 Valuable By-Products.

Pepsin was one of the first medicines made from the by-products of the meat industry. It is obtained from the inner lining of hog stomachs, and pepsin is a substitute for the natural gastric juices.

Now about 100 pharmaceutical products come from the packing house laboratories. Not all these are glandular. But about 20 glands are used, and from these 48 pharmaceutical products are made.

The discovery of insulin for relief of diabetes and the use of liver products for pernicious anemia are well known. To make one pound of pure, dry insulin requires materials from the pancreas of about 150,000 hogs or 60,000 cattle. Packingtown's laboratories sell the raw material to the insulin makers. Insulin is not made in the yards.

One pharmaceutical product of importance but which is not a gland product is extract of red bone marrow. It stimulates the production of red blood cells.

Keep Pace of Science's Progress.

For 35 years the Armour laboratory, located in one of the largest abattoirs in existence, has been keeping pace with scientific discoveries. For the medical profession only it makes almost 100 pharmaceutical preparations from glands and membranes used while fresh in the plant laboratory. Among its products are liver extract, thyroid powder, suprarenalin solution, and pituitary liquid.

In Packingtown the scientists still speak of the "romance of liver." The liver used to be a waste product, thrown away, a food supply for seagulls from the lake. Experimental work by the scientists changed all that. It was discovered that liver as a food was effective in blood regeneration, in secondary anemia, and in building red corpuscles.

Later a process was originated for making a liquid extract of beef liver that was helpful in pernicious anemia. Armour's is now making it commercially and selling it to the medical profession the world over.

One Pound—25,000 Cattle!

Suprarenal preparations are made from glands located just above the kidneys. Suprarenalin, which is a powerful heart stimulant and astringent, is worth more than $5,000 a pound, but to produce that pound 25,000 beef cattle are required. It is used in bloodless operations on the eye and nose and it has been on the market for a quarter of a century—made in the "yards." In India it is used for cobra bites.

From the pituitary gland, a little gland the size of a pea at the base of the brain, the laboratories produce a preparation used in surgery to prevent shock and to relieve gas pain. It is also used to ease childbirth.

Research men declare the medicinal use of products of the ductless glands is still in its infancy. In biochemistry scientists see staggering possibilities for advance, physical and mental, of the human race.

Experimental work goes on in the hospitals and universities, the medical schools and clinics, and when a process is discovered, then, to get a commercial supply, the scientists have to come where the supply of raw material is fresh. Thus Chicago's abattoirs have developed into the world's medicine ch[illegible]

WELL, THAT'S CLEANED UP

New Carillon to Sound from Tower in Loop

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

On Easter Sunday morning, April 21, the loop district will resound with the strains of resurrection day music from a new carillon nearly 400 feet high in the tower of the Chicago temple at 77 West Washington street. This announcement was made yesterday by F. J. Thielbar, trustee of the temple, architect for its board, and W. W. Dixon, secretary of the temple.

The carillon, it was announced, will be the largest one of tubular construction in existence. It will have 40 tubular bells, two bells for each note over a range of nearly three octaves. The Easter hymns will ring out in dedication of this set of chimes.

Gift of William E. Turner.

The carillon is the gift of William E. Turner, member of a pioneer Chicago family, to the temple and the First Methodist Episcopal church, which has its place of worship on the first floor of the temple building. Mr. Turner made the gift as a memorial to his father and mother, John and Sarah Turner, and his sister and brother, Mary P. and John V. Turner. The elder John Turner, who was of English birth, settled in Chicago in 1836.

After the great fire of 1871, in which the Turner home at 210 Michigan street was destroyed, the family took up its residence at a farm on what is now Addison street. This former farm home, now within the city limits, is still the residence of William Turner, who is 72 years old.

Sound Problems Explained.

In making the announcement of the gift of the memorial chimes Mr. Thielbar recounted the problems which had to be solved before the chimes could successfully be used at a height of nearly 400 feet above the street. The first problem was that of volume without overtone dissonance, he said. After long study, Mr. Thielbar said, it was determined that the tubular type of bell would offer the best solution of this problem. He added that the tubular type, for such a purpose, would also better distribute the sound.

The second sound engineering problem, Mr. Thielbar pointed out, was that of tone reflection, which would carry the sound from the great height downward. Locations of surrounding skyscrapers were taken into account, he said, but even greater attention was given to the construction of special sound reflectors in the octagonal tower on which the church's spire rests and in which the carillon will be placed.

BOMB EXPLODED ON BED IN HOME OF REALTY MAN

A bomb was exploded on the bed of Michael Bierut, 2124 Cortez street, a real estate dealer, early today in the second attempt in a month to injure him or destroy his home. He was absent when the blast occurred and his wife, Amelia, who customarily sleeps in the bed, was in another room with one of their five children. She had left the bed only five minutes before the blast.

Mrs. Bierut heard the crash of glass and rushed to the telephone to call police. While she was talking to the West North avenue station the bomb exploded. The damage was estimated at $25.

Three weeks ago, Mrs. Bierut told police, all the gas jets in the basement of their home were turned on by some unknown person and a candle lighted to cause an explosion. The candle was discovered before the gas reached it. She could give no motive for any one desiring to harm her husband.

The second floor of the building is occupied by Nicholas Augustyn, his wife, and three children. He is a brother of Michael Augustyn, a tavern keeper, who was mysteriously shot to death in his home at 2453 Walton street last October.

Raise Bottled Milk Today to 11 Cents

Housewives throughout Chicago will pay one cent a quart more for milk this morning. A survey of dealers last night revealed they had decided on the price raise to pay for the increase of 20 cents a hundred pounds allotted last week to farmers by the milk marketing division of the Agricultural Adjustment administration.

The price of milk in quart bottles will be increased from 10 to 11 cents and cream in half pint bottles from 13 to 14 cents. There will be no change in the 7 cent price of milk sold by the pint or in the price of bulk milk.

Result of AAA Advice.

While the unanimous agreement of the dealers to raise prices came rather as a surprise last night, it was not altogether so. Last Friday, the dealers assured the Pure Milk association that the price per hundredweight would be increased from $2.00 to $2.20.

This assurance was in accordance with advice from A. H. Lauterbach, chief of the dairy division of the AAA, who visited Chicago on Dec. 28 and told the dealers and farmers to get together and settle their differences. The Pure Milk association represents 18,000 farmers.

After reaching their agreement with the farmers, the dealers sent Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace their request to raise the price. It was expected that the price increase would await his action.

Expect Final Signature Today.

It was learned yesterday, however, that Mr. Lauterbach had passed favorably on the request and had placed it on Mr. Wallace's desk for written approval. The secretary left without signing it, but it was anticipated his approval would be given today.

They met last night in the Palmer house for the 14th annual dinner of the Milk Dealers' Bottle exchange.

Among those who attended and who agreed to the price raise were A. L. Dressel, president of the Premier Farm Products company, which includes the Wieland Dairy and the Borden's Farm Products company; Dr. B. B. Peck, vice president of Bowman Dairy, and Otto P. Black, manager of the Chicago Milk Dealers' association, representing the small dealers.

She claims she stepped on the cat entering the store. She says the cat attacked her, biting and scratching, and her health is permanently affected.

AIR MAIL LOSSES IMPERIL FLYING, SAYS U. S. BOARD

19 Operators Found Suffering.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 15.—[Special.]—Bluntly asserting that an investigation "clearly shows most of the routes are being operated at substantial losses," the bureau of air mail of the interstate commerce commission recommended today a general revision of air mail rates to prevent possible destruction of commercial aviation.

Rate increases were recommended on nineteen routes; one route's rates would remain unchanged, and eleven others would be decreased.

Two additional routes which began operations since the investigation was authorized last summer by congress and not included in the report, will have hearings later.

Income Near 9 Millions.

All of the thirty-one existing operating companies reported on today submitted tables for the period since they began operations under the revised contracts, early in May, 1934, to Oct. 31, 1934, showing a net deficit of $1,815,055.21.

Total income for the period was listed at $8,902,845.81, and operation losses amounted to $1,757,993.39. The difference was charged to taxes.

The proposed new increases range up to nine cents per mile for poundage not to exceed 300 pounds per mile, while the reductions ranged as high as 13.5 cents per mile.

While a number of the increases recommended were drastic, the bureau report pointed out that the future of the industry would be endangered if the contractors were forced to continue operating at tremendous losses.

Present and Proposed Rates.

Mr. Dryden's Bath Too Hot for Club Girl

George Eastman Dryden, son of George B. Dryden of Evanston and grand-nephew of the late George Eastman, camera manufacturer, surrendered last night at the detective bureau on charges that he had dipped a night club hostess in a tub of hot water and then had struck her sister.

The girls are Vera Read, 21 years old, who charged she was the tub victim, and Hazel Read, 24 years old. Both are hostesses at the Club Alabam, 747 North Rush street. They live in the Monterey hotel, 4300 Clarendon avenue.

Each sister swore out a warant charging Dryden with assault. He was released in bonds of $200 after telling his story to the police.

A Conflict in Stories.

His version differed materially from that of the young women. They said he met them at the club early yesterday and invited them to join him and another couple in his apartment at 815 Rush street. During the party, Hazel said, she heard her sister screaming.

She went to the bathroom and found Dryden dipping Vera in the hot water, she said. She tried to stop him, and he struck her, she went on. then the other couple overpowered him.

Dryden's version agreed with this, up to the point of reaching his apartment. Vera, he declared, had been drinking and her sister suggested that they give her a bath "to sober her up."

Vera—still clad—stepped into the tub, Dryden said, and Hazel turned on the water. Vera announced that it was too hot for her, according to Dryden, stepped out of the tub and walked out of the apartment.

Doctor Called to Apartment.

Dr. Louis J. Pritzker, 5059 Sheridan road, later was called to the Read girls' home. He said Vera Read was suffering from scalds and from the effects of the water which he said had penetrated her lungs.

Dryden, who is 34 years old, is defendant in a suit for $75,000 started in the Superior court last September by Miss Marella Oldham, 22 years old, of Charlevoix, Mich., queen of the Michigan cherry festival in 1933. She charges Dryden with breach of promise, seduction, and assault and battery. According to the bill, Miss Oldham lived with Dryden as his wife at 747 North Wabash avenue for five months last year on the strength of his promise to marry her.

Dryden was divorced on April 22, 1933, by the former Miss Dorothy Hessler, 29 years old, whom he married on June 12, 1926. Mrs. Dryden charged desertion and was given $250 a month alimony and custody of their two children.

IMPEACHMENT OF GOV. MOODIE URGED AT CAUCUS

Bismarck, N. D., Jan. 15.—(AP)—Impeachment of North Dakota's Democratic governor, Thomas H. Moodie, tonight was urged at a caucus of the Nonpartisan league majority house members, but no definite action on the proposal was taken.

It was learned leaders of the majority group may bring in a resolution of impeachment against Moodie by Monday.

Leaders of the faction are understood to have been discussing impeachment since the legislature convened, with an action challenging Moodie's qualification pending in the court.

A resolution calling on Moodie to produce proof of his United States citizenship has been adopted by the house.

The attorney general is prosecuting an action to disqualify the governor on the grounds Moodie failed to fulfill the five year residence provision of the state constitution.

DECLARE SCRIPT IN KIDNAP NOTES IS HAUPTMANN'S

Baby's Thumb Guard Re-enters Case.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.

Flemington, N. J., Jan. 15.—[Special.]—Two handwriting experts from the middle west today added their testimony to that of two others that Bruno Richard Hauptmann wrote all fourteen notes demanding ransom for the murdered son of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

They were Herbert J. Walter of Chicago and John F. Tyrrell of Milwaukee. The former was an expert witness at the trial of Al Capone at Chicago. Both have national reputations and their qualifications as experts were conceded without cross-examination by the defense.

Both Experts Positive.

Both were as positive as the two experts who preceded them in their identification of Hauptmann as the writer of the ransom notes. They gave the jury of eight men and four women in Justice Thomas W. Trenchard's court long lectures containing their reasons for reaching their opinions.

Another "surprise" witness for the state was placed on the witness stand just before the close of the afternoon session. He was Morton Maish of Wyoming, O., manufacturer of baby thumb guards. He identified the Lindbergh infant's thumb guard which is an exhibit in the case and testified that it was made of a composition of 30 per cent copper and 70 per cent nickel, a combination which does not rust.

Thus the state refuted the defense theory that the thumb guard was "planted" on a roadway leading to the Lindbergh home at Hopewell, N. J., by Betty Gow, the nursemaid, and "found" by her a short time later.

Viewed as Important Point.

Defense lawyers had asserted that the thumb guard would have been rusted if it had lain in the road from March 1, 1932, the night of the kidnaping, until a month later, when Miss Gow found it.

Cross-examining Maish, the defense lawyer, Edward J. Reilly, thundered:

"You didn't drop that thumb guard in the roadway yourself and then find it there, did you?"

The courtroom crowd thought his question was an occasion for uproarious laughter, and Reilly, who is suffering from a severe cold and has shown increasing irritation as the presentation of the state's case continues, lost his temper.

"I'm not concerned with those people back there," he rasped to the judge when the latter tapped his gavel for order.

Returns to Fisch Theory.

In cross-examination of the two handwriting experts the defense continued to advance its theory that the ransom notes really were written by Isidor Fisch, the furrier who was a friend of Hauptmann and who went to Germany to die.

A postcard and a letter written by Fisch were offered in evidence. The writing in these specimens does not resemble the ransom note writing and the only similarity brought out was that Fisch, in addressing the postcard, had hyphenated the address, "Bronx-New-York-City." The hyphenation of "New-York" has been one of the points of similarity upon which the experts have identified Hauptmann as the ransom note writer.

Tyrrell said there were "remarkable duplications" between the conceded writings of Hauptmann and the ransom notes. He said also the writer obviously was a German and pointed out the use of "dank" for "thanks," and "uns" for "us" in the notes.

Questioned on Disguised Hand.

"Don't you think," his cross-examiner, Frederick A. Pope, wanted to know, "that these notes obviously were written by a very well educated man, and, as it turned out, a good business man, who was disguising his education?"

"I do not," said Tyrrell.

"Well, here's the phrase 'you may give Col. Lindbergh the $70,000,'" pointed out the lawyer. "Isn't that splendid English?"

"It's correct," the witness replied.

There was much more of this sort of thing and the judge interposed, wearily: "Let's have some regard here for the passing of time."

Tyrrell pointed out that the notes might have been written by an uneducated man who misspelled ordinary words but paused to look up longer words in a dictionary. This was only a supposition, he hastened to add.

Tells of "Mistake."

Tyrrell also admitted that he had once testified in a case in which a man named Morgan was sentenced to imprisonment on a charge of forgery. The next day another man confessed that he had signed the checks Tyrrell had said were signed by Morgan.

"That happened," he admitted. "But there has always been doubt in my mind regarding that confession."

Walter, the Chicago expert, proved the most terse of the expert witnesses who have occupied the witness stand almost uninterruptedly since last Friday. He succinctly gave his reasons for his identification of Hauptmann's handwriting and concluded: "I find an amount and kind of similarity in the Hauptmann writings and the ransom writings that forces me to the conclusion that one and the same person wrote them."

CHART SHOWS SCRIPT

He had illustrated his testimony with a large chart showing a photographic enlargement of phrases in the ransom notes.

Under cross-examination by Defense Lawyer Egbert Rosencrans he was asked to turn this chart upside down and then copy the word "two." When, with a somewhat puzzled smile, he had complied with the order, the attorney reversed the copy and wanted to know if the copy didn't bear a marked resemblance to the original "two."

"No, I don't think it does," said Walter.

"But couldn't a clever forger or penman copy those ransom notes almost exactly?" the attorney asked.

"In my opinion he'd have a terrible time imitating all the characteristics in those fourteen ransom notes," Walter said.

"You've been opposed to experts who have given opposite opinions to yours?" asked the lawyer.

"In some cases."

"You took it for granted those opposing experts were honest?"

"In most instances, yes," replied the witness, cautiously.

Walter declared further that the science of handwriting examination was as accurate as the science of finger print identification.

In addition to Walter and Tyrrell two other handwriting experts, Albert S. Osborn and Eldridge Stein, have identified as Hauptmann's the handwriting in all the ransom notes.

Maish Takes Stand.

The last witness, Mr. Maish, the thumb guard manufacturer, gave his testimony quickly regarding the fact that his thumb guards are impervious to rust.

Then came his cross-examination in which Reilly first asked him if he had planted the thumb guard, causing the outburst of merriment.

"It's hardly your business to sprinkle thumb guards along highways, is it?" asked Attorney General David T. Wilentz on redirect examination.

"It is not," said Maish.

"Did you offer to come here and testify?"

"I did."

"Were you looking for an ad for your thumb guards?" boomed Reilly, not to be quelled.

"I wasn't," said the witness, indignantly.

SESSION OF MORNING

Col. Lindbergh was one of the few in the courtroom who displayed a rapt interest in the explanation and diagrams of the handwriting experts. He leaned forward in his seat, elbow on knee and chin resting on his hand, his eyes glued upon the witness stand.

Hauptmann also listened carefully. His wife, sitting near him, appeared bewildered. The courtroom was as crowded as before, but the listeners stirred restlessly in their seats. Up in the gallery, the feature writers, imported to write "color" in connection with the trial, were very unhappy. Not many adjectives can be employed in the description of a handwriting expert.

Calls Hauptmann Note Writer.

Tyrrell, the first witness of the day started off his testimony with the firm assertion that Hauptmann wrote all the ransom notes.

Like the two experts preceding him, Tyrrell was a white haired, bespectacled man of benevolent appearance. Like them, also, he based his opinion upon what he pointed out were striking similarities between Hauptmann's writing and the writing in the ransom notes.

Judge Trenchard, chin on chest, seemed to be dozing as Tyrrell rumbled on. Suddenly the judge straightened in his chair and interrupted.

"Is it warm enough in this courtroom for the members of this jury?" he inquired.

A temperature of something around 90 degrees Fahrenheit has been maintained constantly in the crowded courtroom, and those present wondered if the judge was waxing ironic. The jurors nodded with gravity to indicate their comfort and Judge Trenchard again lapsed into his brooding attitude.

Tyrrell illustrated his lecture by scrawling with a piece of charcoal upon large sheets of paper tacked to an easel.

He spoke of the written letters of the alphabet as he might have referred to human beings. An improperly written "h" was to Mr. Tyrrell not an incomplete "h" or a distorted "h" but a "slighted h."

The capital "D" which Hauptmann wrote on an automobile license application several years ago in giving the make of his car, a Dodge, also was "slighted," Tyrrell said. Hauptmann made the same error in writing the word "don't" in the ransom notes, he pointed out.

He indicated many such peculiarities which, he told the jury, stamped Hauptmann as the ransom note writer. The jurors had already heard most of these similarities explained by them by the two preceding experts.

Reads from Ransom Notes.

Tyrrell proved himself something of an actor when he read from one of the ransom notes. He used a strong German accent and even the defense attorneys grinned. But Hauptmann, not amused, muttered something to himself.

The witness found what he termed a "remarkable duplication" in the writing of Hauptmann and the written address upon the package containing the baby's sleeping suit which was mailed to Dr. John F. Condon, "Jafsie" of the ransom negotiations.

The address was "Mr. Condon, 2974 Decatur ave., New York."

In his automobile license application, Hauptmann wrote "ave" and "New York" [the latter with a hyphen] almost identically the same, Tyrrell pointed out.

Tells of Hauptmann "Slip."

"I think that was a slip on the part of the writer," the witness commented. He ended his direct testimony, as he had begun it, with the statement that Hauptmann, in his opinion, wrote the ransom notes.

The cross-examination of Tyrrell was conducted by one of the defense attorneys, Frederick A. Pope, who hitherto has played a silent part in the proceedings.

"Would you say that the writer of the ransom notes wrote with his right or left hand?" was one of the first questions.

"I couldn't say," Tyrrell answered.

Q.—Did you attempt to find out? A.—Whom would I ask?

Q.—From your examination of the writings. A.—I couldn't tell.

Q.—Isn't it easy to determine if a note was written by the right or left hand? A.—No.

Pope persisted in his attempts to show that the ransom notes might have been written with the left hand, but Tyrrell would not admit that this could be discovered from an examination of the writing.

Witness Sticks to View.

The lawyer then tried to get the witness to admit that the notes contained indications that they had been copied from a form letter.

"No," Tyrrell replied, "there are too many of those little intimacies which I have pointed out to make that seem possible."

Attorney Pope took the charcoal from the witness and tried a little sketching on the drawing board himself.

He drew various letters and wanted the expert to admit that the similarities in Hauptmann's writing and the ransom note writing were really not so striking. Any one, Pope intimated, might have handwriting comparable to that in the ransom notes. Tyrrell continued to differ with him on this premise.

Tries Some Satire.

The duel between Tyrrell and Pope had its dryly humorous moments. Pope tried a little satire in the hope of exposing the handwriting expert business as one involving so many technicalities that an expert could see similarities where the ordinary person could not.

The attorney asked for the technical terms used to describe the various loops and swirls which make up handwriting. The witness finally got tired of this examination.

"Now what do you call this rig-a-ma-jig at the bottom of this 'd'?" the lawyer asked.

"O, call it a rig-a-ma-jig," responded the expert.

The courtroom crowd, eager for any lightening of the technical testimony, burst into laughter which caused the somnolent judge to sit up in surprise.

THREE OF FISCH RELATIVES LAND AMID SECRECY

Nurse Also Brought from Germany as Witness.

New York, Jan. 15.—[Special.]—Cloaked in deepest secrecy, Detective Arthur Johnson of the New York police department and four companions, three of them relatives of Isidor Fisch, late business associate of Bruno Richard Hauptmann, were taken off the liner Ile de France at quarantine today and sped to the army base, Brooklyn.

In the party were Pincus Fisch, 25; his sister, Hanna, 32; another sister, Czerna, 33, and Minna Steignitz, a German nurse, said to have been with Isidor Fisch during his last illness in Germany. The first three are a brother and sisters of Isidor Fisch.

From the army base the party was taken to Manhattan. It was believed they then were taken to a hotel in Trenton, where accommodations were reserved for them at prosecution headquarters.

Party to Be "Kept Safely."

Prosecutor Anthony Hauck Jr. of Hunterdon county said in Flemington this afternoon that all details concerning the removal of the Fisch party to Trenton had been left to Detective Johnson.

Attorney General David T. Wilentz, who is expected to use the Fisch relatives as rebuttal witnesses in the event Hauptmann's lawyers uphold his story that he received from Isidor Fisch the ransom money found in his possession, said the party would be taken to Trenton "and kept in a safe place—away from reporters."

Edward J. Reilly, chief of defense counsel, beamed when told of the arrival of the four witnesses.

"My regards to Mr. Wilentz," he said, "and tell him for me to keep the Fisch family in a safe place until Friday."

All the witnesses, including Detective Johnson, who has been investigating the Hauptmann case in Germany, traveled under assumed names and were not on the passenger list. The names chosen were Paul Janowitz, presumably for Johnson; Fritz Flanbaum, Helen Flanbaum, Alice Flanbaum, and Margaret Meuse.

U. S. Agents Meet Ship.

A group of federal representatives went down to the bay at 8 a. m. on the coast guard cutter Raritan to meet the Ile de France. Newspaper men who usually travel on the Raritan were refused permission to board. Some of them followed in hired tugs and others boarded the cutter Calumet, assigned to carry customs and health inspectors to the French liner.

The Raritan made fast to the starboard side of the Ile de France and a group of persons, among them three women, walked across a gangplank laid from the baggage port in the liner's hull to the cutter, which then proceeded to the Brooklyn shore. There two reporters who had slipped aboard the Raritan while it was moored to the Ile de France were put ashore.

Detective Shelters Charges.

After putting the reporters ashore, the Raritan berthed at pier 2 at the army base, a little farther along the shore, and went all the way to the end of the dock, where automobiles were waiting. Johnson later went to Flemington to view the trial.

Passengers in the tourist class, where Detective Johnson and his companions had their quarters, said Johnson carefully shepherded his charges, even selecting a dining room table for them apart from other passengers. If any of the passengers approached one of the four, Johnson stood by and the person moved away.

Trial News Missing.

Passengers said they complained that during the trip the ship's newspaper carried no information about the Hauptmann trial. They were told, they said, the trial had been adjourned for six days. The purser denied that any such statement had been made and said news of the trial had not been published because it had not been received by radio.

Officers of the Ile de France said they had been advised by United States diplomatic officials at Havre, where the witnesses boarded the liner, to release no information about them or allow them to come in contact with newspaper men.

Lindy Will Sue Hauptmann if State Wins Conviction

Flemington, N. J., Jan. 15.—[Special.]—If Bruno Richard Hauptmann is convicted of the murder of Charles A. Lindbergh Jr., Col. Lindbergh immediately will bring a civil suit to recover all money or property of any type in Hauptmann's name, as well as some in Mrs. Hauptmann's name, it was learned today.

Such a trial would be a miniature repetition of the murder trial and would require the presence of many of the present leading witnesses on the stand.

If Hauptmann is convicted, Col. Lindbergh will be in a position to say that some of the ransom money—much of which has not been recovered in its original form—went to swell brokerage accounts and savings bank accounts in the name of the suspect's wife.

Much of the money represented in brokerage accounts in Hauptmann's name now is tied up by the federal government—a fact that has led Edward J. Reilly, chief defense counsel, to complain about inability to obtain defense funds.

It has been announced that the ransom bills found in Hauptmann's possession will be turned over to Col. Lindbergh without a civil suit. There will be no difficulty about the return of this money, for Hauptmann will not be likely to claim it as his own.

C. Lloyd Fisher of the Hauptmann defense is the fastest talker among the attorneys at the trial, court stenographers have decided. Fisher conducts his examinations and cross-examinations sometimes at the rate of 300 words a minute.

This was white scarf day in court. Both Attorney General Wilentz and Defense Attorney Reilly wore one. So did Mrs. Hauptmann.

Mrs. A. B. Cohn of Stockton, Cal., who helped in the apprehension of the kidnap-slayers of Brooke Hart, attended the trial today. When the kidnapers, Thomas Thurmond and J. M. Holmes [later lynched], telephoned the Hart home to arrange a ransom, Mrs. Cohn kept one of them on the wire until police traced the call.

The heat is turned down in the Hunterdon county courtroom after the sessions are adjourned. As a result telegraph operators last night wore dress gloves while they were getting out late newspaper copy.

One of the many recurring rumors which flit about Flemington is that Hauptmann has confessed he kidnaped the Lindbergh baby. A variation of it is that he's "going to confess." It is known the state has offered him a measure of clemency if he can, and will, name any accomplices, and it is believed the rumor grows out of this.

News of the trial is being sent out to the world by a Baptist minister operating Morse key, also by a constable, a justice of the peace, an ex-heavyweight fighter, a police teletype operator, and a scenario writer.

JUSTICE TRENCHARD WINS FIFTH TERM ON SUPREME BENCH

Flemington, N. J., Jan. 15.—[Special.]—During a recess in the afternoon session of the trial of Bruno Richard Hauptmann today attorneys on both sides gathered around Justice Thomas W. Trenchard and congratulated him on his reappointment for another seven year term.

Arrangements had been made in Trenton to have word flashed here as soon as the state senate had confirmed the reappointment made by Gov. Harold Hoffman. This was done in mid-afternoon, and former Judge George K. Large of the prosecution staf showed the telegram to Justice Trenchard and offered his congratulations.

Justice Trenchard first was appointed to the Supreme court in 1906 and again the following year for a full term. On Friday he will complete his fourth consecutive seven year term—a total of nearly 29 years on the same bench.

TWO DEFENSE SCRIPT EXPERTS SAY THEY QUIT

Camden, N. J., Jan. 15.—(AP)—Samuel C. Malone, Baltimore handwriting expert, today corroborated a statement of his colleague, Arthur P. Myers, that after a consultation with defense counsel for Bruno Richard Hauptmann they had agreed they could not testify for the accused Lindbergh baby slayer.

Malone refused to comment on Myers' assertion that their findings in a study of the ransom notes were "unfavorable" to the defense.

"Didn't View Script."—Fisher.

Flemington, N. J., Jan. 15.—[Special.]—C. Lloyd Fisher of the Hauptmann defense tonight denied that Arthur P. Myers, handwriting expert, who quit the defense, ever had an opportunity to examine the specimens.

"Examination of his qualifications convinced us he would not be suitable. He had only five years' 'experience,'" said Fisher.

HUNT FOR MOTIVE IN FATAL BEATING OF BUSINESS MAN

Police Learn of Martin's Employes' Pay Demands

Police and coroner's officials last night continued their investigation of the mysterious circumstances surrounding the death of William C. Martin, fifty years old, 2136 Lincoln Park West, an inventor and rubber goods manufacturer. Martin died in the Illinois Masonic hospital on Monday of blood poisoning which developed after he was slugged on Dec. 11.

On that day he was found slumped over the wheel of his automobile which had run into a ditch near 79th street and State road southwest of Chicago.

The authorities decided last night to ask his widow, Mrs. Martha Martin, for further information about Mr. Martin's possible enemies, but she could not be reached during the evening and the questioning was deferred until today.

Hear of Wage Debts.

The police saw a possible motive for the assault on Martin when they learned that he owed wages to a number of employés in amounts ranging from $100 to $600. Investigators said they had received reports that Martin had been attacked several times by employés who were resentful because they had not been paid.

Last August Martin closed his rubber processing factory at 1525 Kingsbury avenue. Since then he had had desk space in an office at 2143 Carroll avenue, it was said.

The coroner's office, learning that Martin's body was to be cremated after the funeral services yesterday afternoon ordered the cremation to be delayed until a further examination is made of the body.

Doctor Discusses Case.

It was learned that a post mortem examination of Martin had been started at the Illinois Masonic hospital without first notifying the coroner's office. Dr. Howard Miller, a physician with offices at 30 North Michigan avenue, who attended Martin before his death, appeared at the coroner's office last night with his attorney, J. D. De Wolfe, to discuss his handling of the case.

Dr. Miller, a friend of Martin, explained that he had ordered Dr. E. R. Strausser, hospital pathologist, to perform the autopsy. He said that because of the unusual development in the condition of his patient he was anxious to determine the exact cause of death.

Coroner's Physician Paul Schmitt, who completed the autopsy, said that death was evidently caused by an infection resulting from the wounds received by Martin in the beating.

Doctor's Story of Friendship.

Dr. Miller talked with Chief William Collins of the county highway police, Deputy Coroner Victor Schlaeger, and Sergt. Frank Donohue. He said that he first became acquainted with Martin several years ago when he was called to the Edgewater Beach hotel to attend Mrs. Martin.

During the last year, Dr. Miller said, Martin had persuaded him to invest between $6,000 and $7,000 in a business of manufacturing automobile tires by a new process which Martin had invented.

"When it appeared that the business would not be a success, Martin suggested that he insure himself for $25,000, with a provision that I be beneficiary to the extent of my loans," Dr. Miller said.

He said Martin was unable to procure that amount of insurance. An insurance agent promised a policy for $10,000, but Martin objected to the amount of the premium, Dr. Miller said. The doctor then agreed to pay the premiums, he said, and the policy was assigned to him. He said that he paid the first premium last September and another premium while Martin was in the hospital.

On the evening of Dec. 11, Dr. Miller said, he was called to the Martin home. Martin had two deep sharp lacerations on his scalp and two smaller cuts, the doctor went on. He said that about Christmas time abscesses developed at the abrasions and he suggested that Martin be taken to the hospital.

Mrs. Martin testified at the inquest yesterday that on Dec. 11 her husband received a call from a man who made an appointment to meet him later that day at 63d street and Cottage Grove avenue. The police are hunting this man.

William Henderson, 1520 North Austin avenue, Oak Park, who declared that he had lost $1,000 invested in business with Martin and later took out a warant for the latter's arrest, was also questioned. He told Chief Collins that Martin failed to live up to their agreement that Henderson would receive a salary and commissions, and he took out the warant last August.

A conference followed, he said, in which Martin's attorneys agreed to a plan of repayment and Henderson dropped the charges of obtaining money under false pretenses. The payment, however, was never made, Henderson declared.

DOLE IS BOON TO STORK; CITY BIRTHS GO UP

Reverses Downward Trend of 29 Years.

Relief rolls, plus a certain amount of economic recovery, have boomed business for Old Joe Stork in Chicago.

That was the opinion expressed yesterday when Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the board of health, revealed that in 1934 Chicago's birth rate increased over the previous year for the first time since 1898. There were 47,850 births in Chicago last year, while in 1933 there were 46,655.

Ogburn Upholds Theory.

The theory that relief had something to do with birth increase was upheld by Prof. W. F. Ogburn, sociologist of the University of Chicago. He pointed out that a study of four cities showed families on relief had a 53 per cent higher birth rate than those not on relief, but with incomes of less than $1,200.

The statistics would indicate that family raising is more desirable when money is coming in from the relief commission, and the head of the family isn't so worried about where the next meal is coming from.

Prof. Ogburn also said that the measure of recovery experienced in 1933 and 1934, after the depression years of 1930, 1931, and 1932, also helped to increase the birth rate.

"In general, however," he said, "any increased birth rate is bound to be a temporary thing. Throughout the world the birth rate has been falling for years."

Rate Halved in 29 Years.

In Chicago the birth rate of 13 per 1,000 population recorded in 1933 was just half of the rate in 1904, which was 26 per 1,000 of population.

Queried as to the cause for the falling birth rate, Prof. Ogburn answered without hesitation:

"Birth control. That explains it, without doubt. Don't ask me why they practice birth control, but they do."

The birth rate of the United States will continue downward undoubtedly, Prof. Ogburn said, until a stationary population is reached. That ought to be about 1960 to 1965, the professor believes, when the United States will have a population of some 155,000,000.

MACVEAGH ART TREASURES GO UNDER HAMMER

Crowd Attends Sale of Collection.

Art treasures which filled the Franklin MacVeagh mansion at 1400 Lake Shore drive before it was torn down in 1922 to make way for a skyscraper apartment building and which have been in storage since then, went under the auctioneer's hammer yesterday at 229 South Wabash avenue. Mr. MacVeagh, a Chicago merchant, who was secretary of the treasury under President Taft, died last July at the age of 96.

The collection, including silver, rugs, furniture, paintings and etchings, is appraised at $85,000. The sale of the 1,800 articles and a large library will continue until tomorrow night, with M. A. Barlow as the auctioneer.

Auction Galleries Crowded.

Art collectors, the curious seeking valued articles at a small price, and persons who were familiar with the MacVeagh residence, packed the galleries during sessions of the sale yesterday afternoon and evening. Among them were Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank and Mrs. Linda Knox, each of whom purchased a quantity of the fine silver.

A set of a dozen silver filigree plates and a dozen finger bowls to match were bought by Mrs. Knox for $315. Among Mrs. Fairbank's purchases were twelve sterling silver forks by Tiffany, which sold for $22.50, and a Sheffield silver platter for $9.

$5,000 Tea Set Sold for $650.

The article that brought the highest price of the day was a tea set of gold tinted silver by Tiffany valued at $5,000. It sold for $650. Two $550 chairs brought $50 each while a pair of Sheffield candelabra worth $150 were sold for $42.50. Other articles sold included a $150 bronze bust of Caesar which brought $19 and a strand of black amber from East Africa, $10.

The brownstone MacVeagh mansion figured for many years as a social center. The property was sold in 1922 to Joseph M. Cudahy for $250,000 for an apartment site. During the wrecking of the mansion an entrance was saved for its architectural beauty. It was given to Armour institute.

Steal 23,000 Ounces Silver; Carry It Down 12 Floors

New York, Jan. 15.—[Special.]—The Elgin Silversmith company, reported to the police today that 23,000 ounces of silver had been stolen from its office last night by burglars who ripped open two large safes. The silver was worth $20,000. The elevators were locked all night so the burglars had to carry the loot down twelve flights of stairs.

NEW STREAMLINE TRAIN HIT BY CAR; FIRST ACCIDENT

The Union Pacific railroad's new streamlined train, M-10001, was involved in its first accident yesterday when an automobile crashed into the first car at the poorly lighted Roosevelt road crossing of the Indiana Harbor Belt Line road in Broadview. Two men in the automobile escaped with minor injuries, but their car was wrecked.

They are E. K. Shiek, 7131 South Euclid avenue, an attorney, who was returning from a trial at Geneva, and Frank Smiff, 536 Grant place, an auditor, who accompanied the lawyer to court. They were treated at the Edward Hines Jr. Memorial hospital.

The M-10001 was being switched from the Northwestern railroad tracks to the Belt Line in Chicago. Its engineer said he slowed down when he saw Shiek's car speeding toward the crossing.

CANNERS START WORK ON THEIR LABEL PROGRAM

Twenty-seven commodity groups of the National Canners' association met separately yesterday at the Stevens hotel to begin the task of standardizing the information which they wish to appear on canned goods labels in place of the "A," "B" or "C" advocated by the government to indicate the grade of quality in the contents.

Descriptive labeling, as planned by the canners, will tell the housewife the degree of tenderness, sweetness, firmness, as well as other characteristics, in the canned food she is buying. It is impossible to sum up all these qualities and express them in a single letter, the canners declare.

Three delegates to the convention of the canners' association have been in the industry a total of more than 150 years. They are C. S. Cary, 72 years old, Streator, Ill.; W. R. Roach, 72 years old, Grand Rapids, Mich., and Lon A. Sears, 75 years old, Warrensburg, Ill.

NAZIS HOLD WILD CELEBRATION OF "SAAR FREEDOM"

Foes Plead for Military Protection; Many Flee.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SAARBRUECKEN, Saar Basin Territory, Jan. 15.—Citizens of the Saar, for fifteen years since the Versailles treaty people without a country, today rejoiced riotously for their recovered fatherland.

The bells, which earlier today announced the landslide Nazi victory in Sunday's plebiscite, had hardly ceased pealing when swastika banners and the black, white, and red flags of imperial Germany—still technically "verboten" by the league government commission—fluttered from virtually every house front in the territory.

From then on it was a wild saturnalia of parades, demonstrations, and surging, singing mobs in the streets, triumphant "heils" and arms outstretched everywhere in the Nazi salute—an outburst of popular enthusiasm reminiscent of Armistice day in America in 1918.

"Deutschland Ueber Alles."

The slogan which dominated the festivities and, incidentally, the one generally credited with winning the plebiscite for Reichsfuehrer Hitler over adherents of the status quo [league of nations government] and annexation to France, was "Deutschland Ueber Allies." The English equivalent is "my country right or wrong," and it was in this spirit, and not with any fatuous hope of entering into some sort of 100 per cent Aryan paradise on earth, that the Saarlanders, it is indicated, turned out to hail their victory.

As evening wore on the celebration became more riotuos. Restaurants, bars, and night clubs here were packed and the league government commission's prohibition regulations were generally laughed at. Last night the diners were turned out of restaurants at 10 o'clock but that regulation is no longer taken seriously now that the Saar is "free."

No Effort at Control.

Authorities made no effort to control the demonstration, though flags, uniforms, songs, salutes, and marching are all strictly barred. On orders from Berlin, Nazi forces made every effort to prevent violence and tonight no acts of terrorism or reprisals against enemies had been reported.

The Nazis did, however, start to "purge" the local police force and it was reported at least 30 anti-Nazi officers have been discharged or arrested.

Until 11 o'clock this morning the Saar lay under the menace of civil war, but communists and Socialists in a joint meeting decided that, in view of the staggering Nazi vote—90.8 per cent of the total vote of 525,756—they would only be massacred if they started anything. They called off their scheduled demonstrations, pleaded with Col. G. G. Knox, league commissioner, for military protection and went into hiding, leaving the streets free to the Nazi mobs.

Uniforms Favored.

Industrial workers and miners poured into every town and village of the territory dressed in their Sunday best or in the uniform of one of the many Nazi organizations. These crowds, which filled the streets, were good natured, showed no antagonism to foreigners. In the first flush of enthusiasm this morning a mob in the main street in Saarbruecken surrounded a group of British soldiers and hoisting them to their shoulders, carried them in triumph for several blocks.

Later on the German disposition to regimentation asserted itself, and the streets in every community in the territory thronged all day with more or less formal parades. Men dressed in nearly complete Schutz Staffel [Hitler guard] or Storm Troop uniforms, Hitler Youths, and maidens in brown shirts and blouses, solid citizens in silk hats and frock coats, all marched for hours behind martial bands in what were mostly files down archways of outstretched arms.

Coffins for Status Quo.

In nearly every procession there was a coffin or hearse draped in black and marked "Status Quo" or a dummy with the same inscription hanging from a lifelike gibbet mounted on a truck.

Even some children 5 or 6 years old dressed in brown and black uniforms, were seen carrying a miniature coffin marked "Status Quo."

Less frequently dummies and herses bore the names of Max Braun, Socialist leader; Fritz Pfordt, communist leader, or other enemies.

Toward evening swastika flags began to make their appearance in road processions and the climax was an interminable torchlight parade through the streets of Saarbruecken.

Sendoff for Ballots.

The parade passed in front of the station just in time to give a sendoff to plebiscite officials taking the ballots to the league council at Geneva for the last act in the procedure which will return the Saar to Germany, and to serenade hundreds of refugees proceeding out of the territory on the evening train for France.

The paraders also took delight in filing past the headquarters of the various anti-Nazi organizations and making bonfires of newspapers and election posters of the opposition.

The French consulate was besieged all day by Jews and political refugees from Germany, and even some Saarlanders, who were hurrying to get out before the feared "brown terror" sets in. Taxi drivers were unwilling to drive newspapermen to the French frontier for fear they would be suspected of transporting refugees.

Anti-Nazis Told to Hide.

Braun, Ffordt and other anti-Nazi leaders were warned by police that it would be impossible to assure their safety and they were advised to go into hiding. The chief rabbi left Saturday for Palestine. Dr. Hoffmann, leader of the anti-Nazi Catholics, crossed the French frontier by car today. Walter Eberhardt, the brains of the Catholic separatist paper Neue Saar-Post, is leaving for Paris tomorrow. Braun and Pfordt went to Geneva tonight with the plebiscite commission to seek league protection.

Tonight the Socialist and communist headquarters and their press bureaus are deserted and not a light is showing in their newspaper plants, which will probably never print another issue.

Despite the perfect order prevailing so far, anti-Nazi leaders fear that organized reprisals will follow after the league of nations council has officially set the date for the return of the Saar to Germany.

French Calm and Relieved.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Jan. 15.—France has accepted the decisive Saar results with a great deal of calm in which there is some tinge of relief that that particular provocation of a European war is removed.

Premier Pierre-Etienne Flandin said the Saar result is a step in the direction of better Franco-German relations.

In all French comment was the matter of fact assumption that all refugees from the Saar must be taken care of somehow, despite France's growing unemployment problem.

Britain Satisfied.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 15.—British officials evinced satisfaction today at the result of the Saar vote, and particularly the size of the German majority, which leaves no loophole for declarations that it does not really represent the sentiment of the Saarlanders.

Great satisfaction was also expressed at Reichsfeuhrer Adolf Hitler's reiteration today that the way is now open for Franco-German reconciliation.

This, it is hoped, will lead to speedy action on the disarmament proposals and the stabilization of world peace.

AUTO KILLS HERMIT.

Carbondale, Ill., Jan. 15.—[Special.]—E. L. Cregett, 76, hermit fisherman, died in a hospital here today as a result of injuries he received when struck by a "hit and run driver."

Austria Sets Guard to Curb Attempt at New Nazi Putsch

VIENNA, Jan. 15.—(AP)—Austria showed nervousness and apprehension today over the preponderant Nazi vote in the Saar plebiscite. The decisive victory there for Reichsfuehrer Hitler was interpreted in Vienna as presaging an early renewal of Nazi activities in Austria.

From the early morning, when reports about the vote began to pour in, the dictatorial Fascist government took widespread measures to suppress any possible demonstration in favor of Germany.

Squads of policemen were hurried to the University of Vienna and stationed throughout its buildings. The government even refused to allow Austrian newspapers to issue extra editions regarding the plebiscite results.

Police Hold Conference.

A conference of all high police officers was held to discuss plans for putting down a possible Nazi putsch. Groups of police and members of the heimwehr [Fascist home guard] were stationed on all prominent street corners in the capital, giving it a war-like appearance.

That the outcome of the plebiscite tremendously strengthens the Nazi cause in Austria was openly admitted by the government. Some observers here hold the opinion that Austria, in her anxiety to preserve her independence, will make serious peace overtures to Germany in the near future. They pointed out that Nazi as well as Socialist opposition in Austria is gaining ground steadily and claimed the government hopes to win over at least the Nazi element in this country through a peace with Berlin.

On Guard in Styria.

In Styria, which is a hotbed of Naziism, authorities took extensive preventive measures. Many Nazis were taken into custody, some of them taken to temporary places of concentration, while others remained under "house arrest."

In the cities of Graz, Innsbruck, Klagenfurt, and Linz, simultaneous pro-German demonstrations were reported. When the plebiscite result became known large crowds gathered in the streets of these towns shouting "Heil, Germany," and "Long live the German Saar."

1,000 SAARLANDERS SEEK FRENCH VISAS; FEAR NAZI VIOLENCE

METZ, France, Jan. 15.—(AP)—Metz newspapers today said nearly 1,000 Saarlanders whose safety has been threatened have requested visas of the French consulate at Saarbruecken so they can flee to France.

The threats, the newspapers said, include "letters from Nazis warning them to leave within twenty-four hours after the announcement of the results of the plebiscite or suffer the consequences."

A number of Jewish lawyers and other professional men from the Saar have come to France during the last few days to seek locations. Most of them kept their residence in the Saar in order to vote Sunday and will wind up their affairs there before definitly settling in France.

TWO GIRLS IN CAR CHASED BY FOUR FIRING ROBBERS

Miss Mildred Brainard was back in her little bungalow on Harrison street near Cicero avenue in Niles Center last night with a thrilling story of an encounter with four robbers on a lonely Indiana road as she and her housemate were driving to Florida early Saturday morning. In the course of a three mile chase, when her companion, Miss Corella Lukens, outdistanced the gunmen by speeding at seventy miles an hour, their sport roadster was riddled with bullets and a tire was punctured. Miss Lukens departed for Florida after the adventure.

It was on route 41, five miles south of Dyer, Ind., at 3 o'clock Saturday morning that the girls noticed a small sedan pass and repass them as the two cars sped down the road. The other car, containing four men, armed with guns, trained a spotlight on the roadster, and then pulled alongside. One man, flourishing a revolver, attempted to board the running board, but Miss Lukens pulled away in a burst of speed, and the chase was on.

Miss Lukens kept her horn blowing to attract help. Several times trucks passed in pairs, but none stopped. The young women finally reached a tourist camp one-half mile north of Cook, Ind. There they borrowed a shotgun and stayed on guard by their car until daylight.

Miss Brainard said she thought the gang was attracted by the expensive car, the new luggage, and two women traveling alone.

FRENCH SEAPLANE WILL CARRY 70 ON ATLANTIC FLIGHTS

BORDEAUX, France, Jan. 15.—(AP)—A huge French cabin seaplane designed for transoceanic service and capable of carrying seventy passengers made its first trip this afternoon. The 37 ton ship, christened the Lieut. De Vaisseau Paris and called here the largest aircraft in the world, sailed gracefully over Lake Briscarosse in its trial flight. The crew numbered seven. Trial trips to North and South America are planned.

The seaplane, propelled by six motors of 850 horsepower each, is 104 feet long, has a wingspread of 162 feet and stands 30 feet high. Its cruising speed is 145 miles an hour. Housed in its duraluminum and stainless steel fuselage, arranged with two decks, are twelve de luxe cabins, each of which has two beds and a private bathroom. There are accommodations for ten other first class and 42 second class passengers.

A bar, kitchen, baggage compartment, radio cabin, navigation compartment and quarters for the crew complete the appointments. The ship, which was three years in the building, cost 25,000,000 francs [about $1,650,000].

SCHOOL TO TRY COUPON BOOKS IN LUNCHROOM

Meal coupons books redeemable in the Hyde Park High school lunchroom will be issued at the school next week as an experiment to determine whether the plan is feasible for all Chicago public high schools, Frank O. Washam, director of school lunchrooms, said yesterday.

The books will sell for a dollar, and will be issued to mothers of pupils.

GERMANY SEES SAAR LAUNCHING NEW PEACE ERA

Stages Mass Celebration on Plebiscite Result.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Jan. 15.—Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, Chancellor Hitler's fiery propaganda minister, tonight led exuberant nation-wide demonstrations to celebrate the overwhelming vote of the Saar to return to the Fatherland.

A throng estimated at half a million packed the square in front of the reichstag and the avenues leading to it to listen to Goebbels' triumphant message.

Other Demonstrations.

Similar demonstrations of joy occurred in all German cities. Church bells chimed, flags were unfurled, torchlight parades were staged, and meetings proclaiming the Saar's freedom were held.

The entire garrison at Munich paraded with the city's police and were reviewed by the Bavarian governor, Franz Ritter von Epp.

The city of Berlin rechristened Stresemann street as Saarland street. Gustav von Stresemann, late great foreign minister, was known in the days of the republic as the "liberator of the Rhineland" for having succeeded in obtaining evacuation of the French army of occupation before the prescribed time.

Earlier Hitler himself had welcomed the returning Saarlanders in a radio address to the reich. Solution of the Saar problem, he said, means that Germany has no further desire to expand its boundaries at the expense of France.

Tonight, Goebbels.

Goebbels tonight echoed the words of his fuehrer.

"I call upon you to witness that I said we shall reach our aim," he declaimed to his vast audience. "We shall conquer peace and the longer it takes us to conquer it the stronger this peace will be."

Torchlights of the demonstrators glowed over the square and reflected in the steel helmets of a company of reichswehr [regular army] on the steps of the reichstag. Storm Troopers, Schutz Staffel [picked guards], Steel Helmeters [war veterans], aviation corps members, labor service volunteers, and boys and girls of Hitler Youth groups gave the assemblage its usual military aspect.

"You men in uniform," Goebbels continued, "the Nazi state is giving you manly training not that you should go to war, but that you should preserve peace. Peace is assured only for the man who is determined to defend his country.

Says Old Border Retrieved.

"Germany again has its old border. Now that the last territorial differences with France are eliminated we can make peace with honorable terms for all concerned. The world has heard our call for equality and cannot deny or resist it."

Goebbels, in this last statement, hinted that negotiations for an agreements on armaments are being carried on now by representatives of Germany in London, Paris and Rome. It has been learned from reliable sources that these parleys are being conducted by reichswehr officials. They have demanded and been promised, it is understood, that the Schulz Staffel as well as the Storm Troopers wil turn over their last weapons to the army before April 1.

CONSENT DECREE ENDS SUIT OVER DERING ESTATE

Litigation pending for the last two years over the estate of Jackson K. Dering, coal operator, who died in 1925 leaving an estate estimated at $1,723,808, was ended yesterday in a consent decree signed by Circuit Judge Prystalski. The suit was brought by Mrs. Alice W. Dering, sister-in-law of Dering, against Mrs. Edith Dering, the widow, and other executors, asking that the will disposing of the estate be construed and an accounting furnished.

The suit charged that the widow, in taking her one-third share of the estate, failed to first deduct $242,828 in funeral expenses, taxes, and other expense from the bulk of the estate. Under the decree, the widow agrees to correct this overpayment by returning stock valued at $75,000 and $5,942 in cash to the estate. Her share of the estate would then amount to $493,659.

NEW RATES FOR FLYERS OF MAIL URGED BY BOARD

19 Would Get More; 11 Operators Less.

sively increased 1 cent for each decrease in the number of miles actually flown each month which equals 10 per cent of the mileage used for that base."

"If rates were fixed by the use of cost allocations at this time," the report said, "all incentive for the maintenance and future development of passenger trafic might be destroyed, and a tendency to revert to exclusive mail service might follow.

"The effect of efforts to reduce the cost of mail service by increasing the returns from passenger business would be lost. It is obvious the time has not yet arrived when the passenger business of the contractors can stand alone."

What Bureau Proposes.

The proposal of the bureau for governing the revised rates read, in part, as follows:

"It is ordered: That fair and reasonable rates for the transportation of air mail by airplane and the service connected therewith over each air mail route embraced by this proceeding shall be ascertained upon the weight of the mail, computed at the end of each calendar month on the basis of the average mail load carried per mile over the route during such month;

And it is furthered ordered: That for each air mail route designated below, said fair and reasonable rates for each airplane mile actually flown with mail are fixed and determined, and are hereby published, at rates for 300 pounds or less . . .;

"And it is further ordered: That rates determined in accordance . . . shall in no event exceed the maximum rates provided by the act and shall be subject to the increases provided by the act for mail loads in excess of 300 pounds."

Start $2,000,000 Payoff for 27,000 City Workers

The first of $2,000,000 in pay checks to be released to 27,000 city employes this week will be distributed among police and firemen today, City Controller Robert B. Upham announced yesterday. The money is for the first two weeks in January and is provided by a $900,000 sale of 1934 tax warants, receipts from licenses and fees, and from cash on hand. The distribution of checks will continue through Saturday, Mr. Upham said.

HOLD 9 MEMBERS OF TWO ALLEGED CAR THEFT RINGS

Nine men, members of two alleged bands of thieves, were held by authorities yesterday. One group, which specialized in stealing automobiles and rebuilding them for sale, is under investigation by Sergt. John Kelly of the state's attorney's office and Milwaukee police, who are holding two Milwaukee used car dealers.

In custody of the state's attorney are Roy Brady, 35 years old, 2461 Irving Park boulevard, who admitted 15 car thefts and said the machines were rebuilt in his garage; and Philip Leman, owner of a Niles Center garage, through whom some of the cars were disposed of. Two brothers, arrested in a "hot" car garage on the north side, were returned last week to Oklahoma City where they had broken jail.

The second gang, which dealt in auto thefts, robberies, and burglaries, was rounded up by Lieut. Eugene McCarthy of the Burnside police. Under arrest are: Gaines Waggoner, 24 years old, 9343 Vernon avenue, ex-convict and alleged ringleader; William Frew, 26, of 719 East 91st street; William Pipp, 24, of 9436 Vernon avenue; Benjamin Polczylowski, 20, of 9260 Calumet avenue; and Rudolph Forest, 30, of 9257 South Park avenue.

SOCIAL SECURITY VIEWS GIVEN BY TRADE AND LABOR

Heidrich and Green Take Part in Symposium.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

On the eve of President Roosevelt's submission to congress of his new social security program, a symposium was held last night by representatives of capital and labor on three major subjects involved in proposed new legislation.

The speakers were William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, and E. C. Heidrich, a director of the National Manufacturers' association, former president of the Illinois Manufacturers' association, and president of the Peoria Cordage company. The meeting was in Thorne hall on the McKinlock campus of Northwestern university under the auspices of the University college.

The subjects taken up were unemployment insurance, collective bargaining and the 30 hour week. The opposing points of view were presented as follows:

Unemployment Insurance.

Mr. Green—Labor favors pooled state funds, the assumption of the cost of unemployment insurance by industry, and is vigorously opposed to contributions by the workers to unemployment insurance funds. We are on the threshold of experimentation in social security legislation covering unemployment, old age pensions, maternity care and widows' pensions. The enactment of legislation of this kind must be interpreted as an extension of the social insurance principle embodied in workmen's compensation laws, emergency relief legislation and the protection of child life.

Mr. Heidrich—We are considering a proposition that can be of direct benefit to not more than 50 per cent of our population. The experience of England and Germany would seem to prove it is impossible to provide enough reserves for a major depression. Due to our lack of applicable experience and our realization of the many problems to be solved we should turn the matter over to a proper committee to study the whole subject and report its findings.

Thirty Hour Week.

Mr. Green—A year's experience in the origination and application of the industrial codes of fair practice has served to confirm the soundness of the short work week proposal as a remedy for unemployment. The reduction of hours worked per day and the number of days worked per week, as incorporated in industrial codes, has been largely responsible for the absorption in industry of three million workers. The thirty hour week will come as a result of social and economic changes. It will become a reality just as the eight hour day came in spite of employer opposition. We believe that it is needed as a remedy for unemployment, that science and invention have served to make it necessary and that the nation is ready to accept it.

Mr. Heidrich—The temporary purpose of helping to restore prosperity and to relieve unemployment by such means has been demonstrated of no avail by the activities inaugurated under the NRA and I think it fair to dismiss this part of the plan as unworkable on the basis of an actual experience of fully 18 months. Is it not self-evident that to reduce hours of work and, therefore, production, by 40 per cent below 1929 levels, we must be prepared to accept a standard of living very decidedly below the standard of living available in 1929? To pay the same wages for 30 hours of work as for 40 hours, of course means an increase of 33 1-3 per cent in wages. This advance would be immediately reflected in the advanced prices of commodities.

Collective Bargaining.

Mr. Green—It is the purpose of labor to exercise all efforts possible to secure the enactment of additional legislation which will prevent corporations and employers of labor from using their funds and their finances in the organization, maintenance and administration of company unions. We feel that this is necessary in order to make collective bargaining real and vital and to enable the workers to exercise the right of collective bargaining through membership in free, independent, democratically controled unions. In the refusal of certain corporations to abide by decisions of the National Labor Relations board the opposition to collective bargaining has been carried to an extreme and indefensible point.

Mr. Heidrich—The employer has the double job of arranging for possible wages and at the same time of being able to make a price on his commodities which the public will pay. Employers generally are resisting only that form of collective bargaining which contemplates that the control of such bargaining shall be subject to the dictation of so-called representatives who are not part of the employé group. These employers resist not because their profits would be endangered but because they see in such a condition utter economic disaster which would affect workmen probably more seriously than any other class of citizens.

The Depression.

In speaking of the depression generally and its effects, Mr. Green said:

"The heavy hand of unemployment has been pressed down upon millions of workers for the past five years. The distress and suffering which it has caused cannot adequately be pictured. It has affected our home, social, civic and child life.

"Great as the suffering has been, the masses of the people will be compensated to a slight degree for all they have paid in distress and sacrifice, if, out of it all will come an awakened social conscience resulting in the enactment of adequate social security legislation."

Mr. Heidrich said that in all social and economic matters we must be practical as well as emotional, that there was no question at issue as to desired ends, only as to the means by which these ends may be attained. He said:

"The only way out of this depression is to restore the free exchange of commodities and services, and can we possibly hope to eliminate the depression if we establish discord based on force rather than to work for cooperation? Our people have always been able to recover from depression without sacrifice on the part of any group or groups of our people, and we can recover now if we will work not in the line of opposing force by force but in the line of that coöperation which has created the highest standard of living that has ever been enjoyed by any people or nation at any time in the world's history."

For years Mrs. Kauer was known as the "prettiest girl in Traverse City." ### Walter Evensen Withdraws as Crane Estate Executor

STUDENTS HEAR MAJ. GRIFFITH LASH PACIFISTS

U. of C. Meeting Warned on National Defense.

"The doctrin of radical pacifists who believe in fighting for everything except their country" was attacked last night by Maj. John L. Griffith, athletic commissioner of the Big Ten conference. He was one of four speakers at a symposium held in Mandel hall on the University of Chicago campus. More than 500 students and faculty members attended.

Maj. Griffith declared that radical pacifists are inspired by communist agitators and that attempts to do away with adequate national defense and to persuade college students to sign slackers' oaths are part of the communist program to destroy American institutions by force.

"A true pacifist desires peace and works to remove the causes of war," the major said. "He believes that the best way to secure peace is to be strong and to be able to repel attack.

Idea Fostered by Reds.

"The radical pacifist believes in peace at any price. He thinks that he can do away with war without removing the causes of war. The communist fosters this idea for it would serve his purpose to see America unarmed.

"We are all agreed that peace is more to be desired than war. Where diversity of opinion may exist, it is in regard to what methods should be followed in securing peace.

"I was asked to defend the patriotic side of the pacifist question at this meeting and was warned it would be the unpopular side. Why the patriotic side should be unpopular here, I cannot understand. I realize that in some places it is considered smart to ridicule patriotism, loyalty, self-sacrifice, love of home, and love of American institutions. I am satisfied they are still listed as virtues by the majority of our people."

Pointing out the inconsistency of the weakening of national defense, Maj. Griffith said that the line troops of this country's standing army "could be comfortably accommodated in Soldiers' field" while the Russian standing army today approximates five million men.

He then discussed the National League for Industrial Democracy, which, he said, is spreading the philosophy of radical pacifism. At a session of the league in Evanston several weeks ago, Joseph Lash, a delegate from Columbia university, proposed that American students sign an oath not to bear arms in the country's defense.

"The league was organized as the Intercollegiate Socialist society," Maj. Griffith stated, "and changed its name after socialism acquired a bad odor when many socialists during the war were imprisoned for seditious activities.

Group Subsidized, He Charges.

"It has been heavily subsidized by a communist fund. It advocates the disarmament of the so-called capitalistic state and the arming of the proletarian state and endeavors to convince students that this will bring about the prevention of war. I should think that if the students and professors who are sponsoring this communist organization were courageous enough to stage a revolution they would have courage enough to sail under their true colors instead of changing the name of their group.

"You students who are amusing yourselves now by imagining that you are followers of Karl Marx will, when you have learned more about the practicalities of life, have a different viewpoint."

Maj. Griffith declared "It is a mistake to argue that military training in the colleges that maintain reserve officers' training corps units is compulsory. It is only compulsory for those who attend those colleges where it is known military training is required. No law can compel a student to attend such a college."

Other speakers were Prof. Anton J. Carlson of the physiology department of the University of Chicago, Malcolm W. Davis, political scientist, recently returned from a study abroad of the league of nations, and Carl Haessler, former professor of philosophy at the University of Illinois, who was a conscientious objector during the war and is identified with several communist organizations.

Prof. Carlson said that he was a pacifist, but "would still fight for the retention of democracy."

Calls Large Force "Insurance."

While asserting that a large force for national defense is no guarantee against war, Davis said that it would be "some insurance."

Haessler said that the "rising tide of imperialism" in Japan is a threat of war. He insisted that he would not bear arms for America, but would fight for Russia's ideals.

The symposium was sponsored by the Daily Maroon, student newspaper at the University of Chicago, as preparation for voting on a survey of 150 universities by the Literary Digest magazine.

The survey is to determine the sentiment of students on the question of bearing arms for the national defense.

STEAMER PASSES BY THREE WATERSPOUTS IN SEA OFF WAIKIKI

HONOLULU, T. H., Jan. 15.—(AP)—Three waterspouts, the sea's strangest sight, danced nearly half an hour today off Waikiki. One passed close to the steamer Tatsuta Maru, arriving from San Francisco.

A whirling black finger of cloud and water first reached down to the sea off Diamond head. Scarcely had it dissolved when a second formed farther to sea. It lasted about eight minutes. A third waterspout, directly off Waikiki, appeared ten minutes later.

J. F. Voorhees, United States weather observer, estimated each was about 150 feet in diameter. Voorhees said the largest waterspout was about eight miles offshore. He said a pillar of cloud descended from an altitude of about 2,000 feet and met a column of mist and froth rising from the sea to a height of 800 feet. The spouts were dropped from a mass of low, black clouds hanging over the water like a heavy drift of smoke. After touching the surface of the frothing water several minutes, the cloud fingers slowly withdrew into the black curtain above.

ACT TO VALIDATE WILL BENEFITING DOGS' HOSPITAL

Steps to validate the will of Mrs. Lydia Lampert, 74 years old, of Highland Park, by which she left the most of her estate to a dog and cat hospital, were taken yesterday in the probate court in behalf of a brother of Mrs. Lampert. She revoked the will 10 months before her death on Dec. 17.

Yesterday Probate Judge John F. O'Connell granted leave to Attorney David J. A. Hayes to file a petition to validate the will, on behalf of the brother, John W. Johnson, 72 years old, 1356 North Dearborn parkway. Under the will he would get $150 a month income.

The petition will state that Mrs. Lampert was not in possession of her full mental capacity when she revoked the will and that, therefore, it should stand.

If the will is not validated, Mrs. Lampert will be judged to have died without a will, and the bulk of the estate will go to her daughter, Mrs. Arthur L. Richtmyre, who lives with her husband at the Lampert home, 2753 North Deere Park drive, Highland Park.

OPENS HEARINGS ON 1932 REALTY TAX COMPLAINTS

While thousands of taxpayers flocked to the county building yesterday to pay their 1933 taxes before the penalty deadline at midnight last night, County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki opened hearings on complaints against the 1932 real estate tax bills.

Collections for the day totaled $1,299,839, of which $1,702,905 represented realty and personality taxes for 1933.

Less than 1,000 protests against the 1932 taxes have been filed, Judge Jarecki said, which is a record low since 1920. This situation indicates a general satisfaction with tax reductions as reflected in the 1932 bills, the judge said.

FARM LEADERS ASKING END OF INDUSTRY CURB

Confer with Roosevelt; Offer Program.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 15.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt took under advisement today a far reaching program, submitted by farm organizations for tightening up the agricultural adjustment law, to raise farm prices still higher, while putting the brakes on industrial products' prices, and releasing more government credit to farmers.

The President pronounced the proposals a splendid program, but he did not commit himself more definitly than that at the close of a conference.

Backers of Program.

At that meeting with him were Edward A. O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation; Clifford Gregory, representing the American Agricultural Editors' association; M. W. Thatcher, Washington representative of the Farmers' National Grain corporation, and L. J. Taber, master of the National Grange.

They appeared as representatives of the National Agricultural Conference which put forth the program.

Also at the President's conference were Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, Chester Davis, head of the AAA, and W. I. Myers, chief of the Farm Credit administration.

Mr. Roosevelt also conferred with Secretary of State Hull, Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, Mr. Wallace, Oscar Johnson, manager of the AAA cotton pool, and separately with George Peek, president of the Export-Import bank, on the latter's project of bartering large quantities of cotton with Germany and other countries.

Hull Opposes Barter.

Mr. Hull has objected to that proposal as an interference with his reciprocal tarif negotiations.

The farm organizations, which Mr. Roosevelt in 1932 said should be allowed to write their own ticket on farm legislation, renewed their backing of Secretary Wallace's proposed amendments to the AAA act to strengthen government control in marketing agreements. One of these amendments prescribes government licensing of producers for the enforcement of marketing agreements, carrying with it the power to examine the books of packers, millers, and other processors. Over that proposal the farmers and the processors are at war.

Would Guarantee Costs.

The program presented today also proposes a modification of the definition of price "parity" to take account of taxes, interest and labor costs in farm production. This virtually is another way of accomplishing that government guarantee to farmers of the cost of production for which numerous corn and wheat belt states have been agitating.

The effect of including these elements in figuring parity also would be to postpone the achievement of parity between the prices of farm and manufactured products. When parity is established, the processing taxes cease. Farm product prices are almost up to parity now. A further rise would establish parity. Inasmuch as processing taxes fall short of benefit payments, the treasury would be faced with a deficit, due to benefit payments, if processing taxes were to cease now.

Boost for Grain Exports.

Another proposal made today is the removal of present requirements to make benefit payments when processing taxes are imposed. This is aimed at facilitation of financing the exportation of surpluses and toward new methods of curtailing live stock production. Authority to make benefit payments in kind also is suggested in order to permit the distribution for feed of wheat, corn, and other grains by the government.

Increased "recognition and encouragement of coöperatives" is asked for the purpose of strengthening and broadening the operations of the Farmers' National Grain corporation, a Hoover administration product, which heretofore has been slighted by the Roosevelt administration.

The farm organizations applaud the Roosevelt farm policies which are characterized as "the most potent of all recovery measures," but register protests against some of the Roosevelt industrial policies which are held not beneficial to the agricultural regions.

"Such policies as price fixing in industry and unduly high wages on public works tend to retard recovery," the farm organization statement said. "We commend steps that have been taken to correct these policies."

To promote recovery the farm leaders urged the President to intensify "present efforts to increase farm income," and to weigh "every item of national policy" for its effect on agriculture.

Oppose Industrial Curbs.

"Artificial and excessive limitation of production by industry and labor, with the help or permission of government, coupled with shrinkage in foreign markets, has forced agriculture to curtail its production in order to exist," they said.

"That policy must continue until other factors have demonstrated their ability to raise and sustain farm prices. We urge that all possible efforts be made to develop foreign trade, develop industrial uses of farm products, raise quality of standards, reduce distribution costs, and to the end that farm income may be increased without further curtailment of production.

"We favor the continuance of farm production control for the time being, and urge simplification of present plans and especially the correction of inequities in allotments.

Want More Factory Products.

"Further increase in farm prices until they reach parity and reduction in industrial prices, which higher production will make possible, are the most important measures of recovery and reëmployment, and should be pushed forward with the whole power of the administration."

The statement of the agricultural conference urges the further devaluation of the dollar to 50 per cent of the former value and the establishment of the commodity dollar.

Other recommendations include more stringent regulation of packers and stockyards, greater control of speculation on commodity exchanges, excise taxes on starches and blackstrap molasses for distilling, increased taxes on imported fats and oils.

MAYOR NAMES 30 LEADERS TO PLAN CONTINUING FAIR

Asks Quick Decision; Frank Bering Chief.

Thirty Chicago leaders were named by Mayor Kelly yesterday to serve on a special committee to determine the feasibility of carrying over into next summer the outstanding features of A Century of Progress Exposition.

The committee was asked to meet as soon as possible to make a decision. Quick action is imperative, according to the mayor, both because demolition of World's Fair buildings has already begun and because it will be necessary if the Fair is to be continued to obtain the permission of the legislature to use the grounds for other than park purposes.

Mayor Kelly nominated Frank Bering for chairman of the committee. His appointments, he said, were in accordance with a council resolution passed several months ago.

Personnel of Fair Group.

Those appointed to the committee are:

FRANK BERING, Hotel Sherman.
ROBERT J. DUNHAM, president of the Chicago park district.
ERNEST R. GRAHAM, architect.
PAUL DRYMALSKI, 1360 North avenue.
MORRIS GOLDBLATT, 3932 South Lincoln street.
LEONARD HICKS, Morrison hotel.
P. H. JOYCE, president of the Great Western railroad.
EDWARD N. NOCKELS, secretary of the Chicago Federation of Labor.
FRED W. SARGENT, president of the North Western railroad.
OTTO Y. SCHNERING, Curtiss Candy company.
G. F. SWIFT, president of Swift & Co.
ELMER F. WIEBOLDT, president of the Wieboldt stores.
THOMAS E. WILSON, president of Wilson & Co.
GEN. R. E. WOOD, Sears Roebuck & Co.
SEWELL L. AVERY, president of Montgomery Ward & Co.
SILAS H. STRAWN, lawyer.
CHARLES J. VOPICA, president of the Atlas Brewing company.
E. G. SEUBERT, Standard Oil company.
JOHN T. PIRIE, Carson Pirie Scott & Co.
MARVIN B. POOL, Butler Brothers.
ELMER L. SCHNADIG, Chicago Mail Order company.
MARTIN P. DURKIN, 8052 South Marshfield avenue.
JAMES P. GATELEY, People's Store.
JOHN S. HUMMER, 69 West Washington street.
CHARLES LEVY, 1632 West Lake street.
CHARLES S. PETERSON, 77 East Elm street.
JOHN USHER SMYTH, 323 South Ashland avenue.
PATRICK F. SULLIVAN, Building Trades council.
WILLIAM J. LYNCH, contractor, 844 Rush street.
PETER L. VERSCHUUR, editor of the Austinite.

Selection of the committee was guided, Mayor Kelly said, by his desire that it should be as representative as possible of those who would benefit by retention of the drawing features of the World's Fair.

WIELAND OPENS RULE BY REPLACING G. O. P. SCHOOL EMPLOYES

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 15.—(AP)—With Democrats getting the jobs, the replacement of Republican employés in the superintendent of public instruction's office started today with John A. Wieland of Calumet City.

Wieland, who took the oath of office as state superintendent late yesterday, named J. Earl Hulet of Maywood as his chief clerk and O. F. Patterson of Shelbyville as high school supervisor. Hulet is now a high school instructor and Patterson city superintendent of schools. Both have master's degrees from the University of Illinois.

Meanwhile, John Steele of McLeansboro began his term as state treasurer, having announced his chief employés before he was sworn in.

John C. Martin of Salem, replaced by Steele as state treasurer, shifted his work to the state tax commission as its new chairman.

"ALFALFA BILL," LEAVING, GIVES BUTLER 5C CIGAR

Oklahoma City, Okla., Jan. 15.—(AP)—When W. H. Murray, the governor of carcless dress and homely manners, dropped cigar ashes on the floor, a maid, or colored butler, picked them up.

Murray tried several butlers before he got a paroled convict from the state prison on the job. "Alfalfa Bill" liked this butler, and when he left the mansion Saturday to make way for E. W. Marland, incoming governor, he turned, drawled, "Here," and gave the servant a 5 cent cigar.

Murray's servants and office aids always were loyal. On the day he left his office at the statehouse for the last time a girl who had been on his stenographic staf sobbed: "God bless his dear soul."

Marland's appearance in formal morning dress at his inauguration was in contrast to that of the outgoing governor. Murray wore a loose fitting business suit, a slouch hat, white socks, and chewed on one of his famous 5 cent cigars during the ceremony, his walrus mustache whipping in the wind.

Baby Born Without Throat Opening Gets Rubber One

Baltimore, Md., Jan. 15.—(AP)—A tiny girl born here three days ago without a throat opening today had a good chance of continuous life through an emergency operation which gave her a rubber tube throat passage. Surgeons at the Maryland General hospital said they planned a second operation later to restore the throat to its normal functioning.

DISCLOSE PAROLE OF PATLAK; HIS ARREST ORDERED

Embezzling Charges Are Reinstated.

(Picture on vack page.)

Two charges of confidence game against Attorney David Y. Patlak, who was committed to Illinois Security hospital at Menard a year ago, were reinstated yesterday by Chief Justice Denis E. Sullivan of the Criminal court. The action was taken after State's Attorney Courtney learned that Patlak was released from the hospital a month ago on a three month parole.

Faces Federal Court Trial.

The finding of a jury that Patlak was insane prevented his trial on charges of swindling small home owners of $160,000. It was alleged that Patlak took the money on the pretense that he could obtain special favors from the Home Owners' Loan corporation.

These charges were reinstated yesterday and a capias was issued for Patlak's arrest by Chief Justice Sullivan.

At the same time Assistant United States Attorney Warren G. Canaday announced that he would take steps for immediate trial of Patlak in the federal court.

Patlak and a former employé in his law office, Anthony De Voney, now a fugitive, were indicted in the federal court on charges of violating the federal HOLC act.

Paroled to His Brother.

It was learned that Patlak had been paroled to his brother, Lee, who lives at 4827 North Avers avenue. State officials explained that the parole period is not considered a discharge from the hospital and that Patlak must report to hospital officials during this time.

ARGUE SANITARY CANAL SALE TO U. S. AT HEARING

Four States Fight Plan; Indiana Backs Illinois.

The sanitary district, supported by the governments of Illinois and Indiana, presented yesterday at a war department hearing its final arguments for the sale of the district's canals to the federal government for $90,000,000. During the hearing four other lake states clashed over the sale proposal.

The session, held in the postoffice building, was ordered by the house committee on rivers and harbors in its effort to determine whether it should recommend to congress the purchase of the canals. The hearing was opened on Dec. 19, but was delayed by the unexpected appearance of the lake states in opposition to the project.

Lieut. Col. Donald H. Connolly, Chicago army district engineer, who presided at the hearing, announced that the delay would not prevent the war department from bringing its recommendations before the present session of the congress. Col. Connolly's report and recommendation will be ready for transmission next month, he said.

Same States in Dispute.

The four lake states opposing the canal sale, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Ohio, and Michigan, are those which forced the sanitary district to undertake a $200,000,000 program of constructing sewage treatment plants to reduce the diversion of water from Lake Michigan. The district is urging the sale to obtain funds to complete this program.

The lake states presented a brief, read by Attorney General Harry H. Peterson of Minnesota, which based their opposition on two points:

1. That the proposal to sell the canals would prejudice the rights of the lake states secured to them by the Supreme court decree regulating lake diversion, since the federal government, if it owned the channels, would not be bound by the decree.

2. That the sale proposal has no merit and the federal government should not consider it at any time.

Attacks Chicago's Good Faith.

Attorney General Peterson read from his brief charges that the sanitary district had defied governmental supervision, laws, and ethical principals for 35 years in constructing the channels, and that the lake states could not now suppose that the district would complete its treatment program, as pledged, if the government took over the channels. On the basis of the district's record, he said, the lake states meant to force the district to remain under the governance of the court decree.

On the second count the lake states' brief denied the district's contention that it originally built the channels for use as ship canals, and that it was now being denied the use of the channels for sanitation purposes by the federal government, and that the sole remaining value of the channels is for navigation purposes, a proper burden of the federal government.

Answers Opposition to Plan.

Replying to this attack, the sanitary district submitted a supplemental brief through its attorney, Lawrence Fenlon.

The opposing lake states are defeating their own purpose by appearing in opposition to the sale, the brief said.

"As heretofore explained," it said, "the purchase by the government of these canals will enable the sanitary district to comply with the requirements of the Supreme court decree as it is proposed that funds obtained from the sale will be used exclusively by it in building the sewage disposal works made necessary by the decree.

"It would appear that the best interests of these states [the lake states] would be served by this purchase and the funds received used for the construction of these works within the time for reduction of diversion stated in the decree of the Supreme court."

Cites Precedents for Action.

In answer to the lake states' charge that the sale proposal had no merit, the district's brief set forth United States attorney general opinions that states might rightfully be reimbursed for channels controled and taken over by the government, that eleven channels have been thus purchased, and that the federal government had encouraged the district to build ship canals of a size unnecessary for sewage disposal, and therefore is morally obligated to assume the burden of such construction now that the district is denied the use of the channels for sewage disposal purposes.

Cornelius Lynde, special assistant attorney general of Illinois, supported the district in this position and recited the history of district channel construction under federal approval. The maintainence and operation of waterways suited to national uses, he declared, is a federal obligation.

Col. John W. Wheeler, director of the Indiana state planning board, submitted a statement which gave blanket approval to the sale proposal, adding the board's restriction that the sale should not interfere with the development and deepening of the Grand Calumet river and the Indiana Harbor ship canal.

The lake states' brief was signed by Attorneys General Peterson, James E. Finnegan of Wisconsin, Harry S. Toy of Michigan, John W. Bricker of Ohio, and Deputy Attorneys General Joseph G. Hirschberg and Herbert H. Naujoks of Wisconsin, and Raymond T. Jackson of Cleveland, special counsel for the four states. All but Mr. Bricker were present for the hearing.

The records of the hearings Dec. 19 and yesterday will be studied by local war department officials and a report and recommendation will be submitted to Lieut. Col. E. L. Daley, army divisional engineer at St. Louis by Feb. 15, Col. Connolly said. After a review the report will go to Washington and will be transmitted to the house committee on rivers and harbors by Secretary of War Dorn.

Surrenders and Admits Shooting Saloon Patron

Sought since Sunday, Edward Gruber, 1540 Barry avenue, surrendered yesterday to the North Damen avenue police and admitted he shot and seriously wounded Arthur Swanson in the Gruber tavern at 1704 Belmont avenue. Swanson, who is in a critical condition in the Alexian Brothers hospital, a bullet near his spine, was left in front of the hospital late Sunday. Gruber said he shot Swanson only after the latter had fired at him three times.

LOCK UP AUTO THIEF WHO DESERTED DYING GIRL AFTER WRECK

ALFRED STASULAS.

Alfred Stasulas, 19 years old, 4554 South Paulina street, whose girl companion was found fatally injured in the wreckage of the stolen car which he was driving in Burnham early Monday morning, was locked up in the county jail yesterday to face trial for auto theft.

The girl, Genevieve Kanpik, 16 years old, 4143 Hohman avenue, Hammond, died without regaining consciousness in St. Margaret's hospital in Hammond. Physicians there said that examination showed she had been raped. Stasulas denied raping the girl whom he left pinned in the wrecked car. He was arrested when he appeared for treatment of bruises at the South Chicago hospital.

Stasulas admitted stealing the car last Sunday at 46th and Wood streets. The owner, Stanley Wojkewicz, 11566 Parry avenue, signed the larceny complaint.

CANADA POINTS WAY TO PROFITS IN FLAX FIBER

Chance for U. S. Cornbelt to Recoup AAA Loss.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

In considering flax as a fiber crop to be grown on corn land taken out of production under the Agricultural Adjustment administration's acreage reduction plan, farmers in the central and northern states may find valuable hints in the experience of Canadian farmers in the growing of this fiber plant.

With many cotton states in the south greatly increasing their acreage of corn under the AAA's radical crop adjustment program, offsetting by more than a million acres the corn land taken out of production in the central west, corn belters may find a way of profitably growing fiber crops to regain some of their losses.

Found Profitable in Canada.

Dominion farmers are trying on a limited scale the growing of flax for fiber, an industry practically discontinued in the United States when hand spinning was abandoned about eighty-five years ago. In Canada at the present time flax for fiber purposes is a good paying proposition, according to R. J. Hutchinson, chief of the fiber division, central experimental farm, Ottawa, Canada.

He explained that the fiber flax straw is converted into upholstering tow and the seed from the plant is inspected, graded, shipped to Ireland and sold on the Irish market as pedigreed fiber flax seed. This seed is in great demand in Ireland and prices as high as $6.18 a bushel have been received this year. The upholstering tow has brought an average price of $40 a ton.

Russia Supplies Irish Market.

Mr. Hutchinson says that there has been no retted flax shipped to Ireland for the last four or five years because the Russians are able to supply the Irish market with fiber at prices below Canada's costs of production. "However, at the present time the Irish spinners are becoming worried over the fact that the Russian fiber producers have a monopoly and are beginning to raise prices to suit themselves," he added. "Therefore there is a possibility that Canada will be again called upon to produce retted flax fiber for the Irish market."

It is Mr. Hutchinson's opinion that the Chicago farming region "would be possibly a little more suitable for the production of flax for seed purposes rather than flax for fiber purposes." "However," he added, "some very good flax was produced in the district of Lansing, Mich. Provided you could grow good fiber flax and could reduce the present cost of production, we feel that you have spinning mills in the United States that would absorb large quantities of fiber flax."

Encouraged By Experts.

Crop experts at the Dominion experimental farms are encouraging Canadian farmers to grow fiber flax as far as possible. Mr. Hutchinson said that in order for Canadian farmers to carry out a flax growing program they must have a certain amount of equipment and a mill in which to process their fiber.

Figures on production given by Mr. Hutchinson show that fiber flax grown under ideal conditions will yield seven bushels of No. 1 grade seed to the acre and the upholstering tow will average three-quarters of a ton to the acre in Canada.

[This is the second of a series of articles on the question of growing fiber crops in the central and northern states.]

PROFESSOR BLAMES PARENTS' BRIDGE FOR WAYWARD CHILDREN

Contract bridge was blamed by a speaker at a conference on crime last night for much of the crime of the day.

The speaker was Prof. John W. Curran of the De Paul university college of law. The crime conference was held at the University club under the auspices of the National Catholic Alumni federation.

"The passion for bridge and other pleasures of American parents," Prof. Curran said, "forces them to neglect their children. This implants in the children a disrespect for authority which grows into a contempt for law and order. Too many children thus neglected turn to careers of crime.

"Unless parents realize again that it is their sacred duty to provide for the spiritual and material needs of their children, we will continue in vain to make laws and build jails."

ILLINOIS VOTES 9 MILLIONS TO RELIEF OF POOR

G. O. P. Members Warn of Revolt Next Time.

BY STANLEY ARMSTRONG.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 15.—[Special.]—Gov. Horner tonight signed the bill, passed an hour before by the senate, 50 to 0, and by the house last week, appropriating 9 million dollars for relief funds from surplus state retailers' occupational [sales] tax accounts.

The Federal Emergency Relief administration has provided the state, according to figures in the statehouse, with 6 million dollars for relief until Jan. 15. The state has 4 million 72 thousand dollars of federal funds for use during the latter half of the month to which it will add a million and a half of the 9 million just made available.

In providing the 9 millions the state has complied with a mandate from FERA officials. It had been demanded that the state supply 3 millions a month, to which the federal government would add 9 million more. The state now has met the FERA demand for three months, during which it is expected some plan will be adopted for producing the other 27 millions that the state will have to provide unless federal plans are changed.

Republicans Sound Warning.

While voting for the appropriation in the senate the Republicans sounded the same note of warning that was heard in the house last week. They gave ample notice that they would vote no more funds for relief until there had been an investigation of the handling of relief in Illinois.

"I, for one," said Senator Thomas P. Gunning [Rep., Princeton], "will vote no more money for relief purposes until I have been well assured that less of it will go into pay rolls than does now.

"In my county there had been 820 families on the relief rolls and only four employés were needed to handle the administration of their relief. Today we have 907 families on the rolls and have 33 full time employés and 11 part time employés whose pay roll aggregates $31,200 a year. I hope that is not true in all counties."

"Unless the system of administering relief is changed," said Senator Charles W. Baker [Rep., Monroe Center], "I'll refuse also to vote for any more relief appropriations."

While the administration of relief was under attack in the senate it was learned that Assistant Attorney General Harry Muskat, Chicago, who resigned from the relief commission yesterday, had elaborated on his charges that relief officials had thwarted his attempts to bring to an early trial defendants in Christian county. The correspondence is on file in Attorney General Kerner's office.

Passes "Pegged" School Levy.

Following the passage of the relief appropriation, the senate also passed the "pegged" levy bill of the Chicago board of education, which will aid the board in making its 1935 budget. It also passed two bills validating tax levies of a number of downstate counties.

Senator Richey V. Graham [Dem., Cicero] today introduced bills in the senate abolishing grand juries throughout the state and also abolishing township assessors and collectors in Cook county outside of Cicero.

The Graham bill would substitute an investigating body with power to call witnesses but without authority to find indictment. This would be an advisory body of twelve members that would hear testimony and make recommendations. The bill also would permit prosecutions by information. These could be prosecuted in the Municipal court of Chicago. One against whom an information had been filed could demand a preliminary examination before a judge or a justice of the peace.

Would Let Officials Act.

The bill abolishing Cook county's assessors and collectors would give Assessor Clark and County Collector Sweitzer authority to act in their steads.

Senator Harold G. Ward [Dem., Chicago] introduced a senate joint resolution asking for the appointment of five members each from the house and senate to draft a plan for reapportionment of senatorial districts. The governor had asked for such a plan in his message to the assembly. Ward already has asked for congressional reapportionment, and is expected to add judicial remapping to his bills.

A number of bills were introduced also by Senator Earl B. Searcy [Rep., Springfield] ranging from a 1 per cent limitation on taxes, exclusive of judgments, bonded obligations, and other fixed charges, to one giving the state tax commission broad powers over the budgets of local governments.

It would give the tax commission power to fix reasonable cost limitations for all local governments in the state.

The purpose of most of Searcy's bills and joint resolutions was the reduction of taxes. One provides for annual property assessments instead of the present quadrennial system. Another makes gas tax allotments to counties and cities mandatory in lieu of replacement taxes for present local road, street, and bridge general property tax.

CONGRESS FACES THREE PLANS FOR BONUS PAYMENT

Hamilton Fish Urges Instalments.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 15.—[Special.]—The house ways and means committee will meet Thursday to decide which of two fights—bonus or social security program—it will take on first.

Frank N. Belgrano Jr., national commander of the American Legion, is here to direct the campaign for immediate payment of the soldiers' adjusted compensation certificates. The Legion idea is incorporated in a bonus bill introduced by Representative Fred Vinson [Dem., Ky.].

Vinson, a member of the ways and means committee, said today that the bonus would be pushed, unless the President was ready to announce his social security program. Bonus supporters in the house have been promised consideration by Feb. 1.

Said to Favor Bond Issue.

The Vinson bill leaves it up to congress to provide the funds. It is said, however, that the bill's sponsors favor a bond issue and are opposed to currency inflation. In that respect the measure differs from the bill introduced by Representative Wright Patman [Dem., Texas]. He would have the printing presses turn out 2 billion 200 millions in greenbacks to pay the world war veterans.

A third measure, which comes from Representative Hamilton Fish Jr. [Rep., N. Y.], would pay the bonus in five annual instalments. The fate of the Fish bill is dubious inasmuch as it emanated from the minority side.

The agricultural committee will report to the house tomorrow the Jones bill for loans up to 40 million dollars to farmers who haven't sufficient collateral for advances through the usual channels. The requirements for the loans, with the Farm Credit association as the lending agency, would be simply liens on growing crops or live stock. The money would come from unexpended balances in previous agricultural appropriations.

Minority Leader Bertrand Snell [Rep., N. Y.] attacked the Roosevelt administration in a talk here tonight.

"The program has failed because it ran counter to every economic law, to every tradition of the American people, to common sense and human nature," assarted Snell. "The administration has preached recovery but practiced destruction."

Fails to Heed Mistakes.

Not profiting by its mistakes, Snell said, the administartion now was planning to let the President spend 4 billion dollars without telling the public or congress in advance for what purposes that vast outlay was to be used. The PWA under Secretary of the Interior Ickes, Snell charged, was "political weapon to reward friends and punish enemies."

CUBAN RADICALS BURN AMERICAN SUGAR PROPERTY

HAVANA, Jan. 15.—(AP)—Saboteurs, using fire as their weapon, today struck the first blow in Cuba's "sugar crop battle" at almost the same moment the cabinet was writing a law making sabotage of sugar cane punishable by death.

The American-owned Hershey sugar mills, near Havana, were targets for one of the first attempts to impede or frustrate the sugar harvest. Destruction of the sugar crop has been designated by certain radical groups as the most important item on their 1935 agenda.

Five cranes, used near the canefields for loading cane on railway cars, were fired. All of them were Hershey property. About 900 tons of cane were burned in a field in Matanzas province, and an attempt was made to burn a tank of gasoline destined for use in harvesting sugar. The tank was the property of the British-owned United railways.

Assembly Gets Bill to Cut Master in Chancery Fees

BY PERCY WOOD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 15.—[Special.]—Fees for masters in chancery in the Chicago courts, subject of recent inquiries and surveys, would be cut to a flat $10,000 annually by a bill introduced in the Illinois house today.

Its sponsor was Representative Drennan J. Slater [Rep., Evanston]. He is a young lawyer. He has made a study of the fees as well as the amount of work each master in chancery does. He feels that there are far too many masters in chancery hearing cases for judges of the Cook county Circuit and Superior courts. Representative Slater also feels these masters get entirely too much money. After hearing evidence, these masters make recommendations to the judges as to 48 Now Get Cases.

At present the Superior court has twenty-eight masters and the Circuit twenty. Slater's bill would give ten masters, at $10,000 each, to the Circuit and Supreme courts. The terms of the masters, under the Slater bill, would be increased from the present two to six years.

Slater said the Chicago Bar association's survey showed that masters in chancery now average between $20,000 and $30,000 annually, some drawing as high as $60,000. The salaries of Circuit and Superior court judges of Cook county are set at $15,000 a year. The Slater bill will be considered by the judiciary committee which Speaker Devine is expected to announce tomorrow. Representative Thomas P. Sinnett [Dem., Rock Island] will probably be that committee's chairman.

Would Control Buses, Trucks.

A measure presented to the house today would give the Illinois commerce commission complete jurisdiction over passenger motor buses and freight trucks. That bill was introduced by Joseph H. Davis [Dem., Murphysboro]. It includes a provision that transportation rates for the regulated vehicles shall not be less than those charged by railroads.

Truck control legislation is expected to be a major subject this session. The commerce commission has been working on an extended program. That program, when introduced, will have the Horner administration's approval.

For Five Tax Instalments.

Three representatives had identical ideas about instalment payment of delinquent taxes. Representative Frank Hollen [Dem., East St. Louis], C. D. Johnson [Rep., Belleville], and Schaefer O'Neill [Dem., Alton] all introduced bills calling for delinquent payments in five instalments.

Hollen also sponsored a bill to order Secretary of State Hughes to furnish county clerks with auto license registrations. At present only sheriffs and police departments have such records.

It is expected Speaker Devine will have the membership of the appropriations as well as the judiciary committee ready for announcement tomorrow, with others later. James P. Bole [Dem., Chicago] again will head appropriations. Minority Leader Green [Rep., Rockford] is ready to announce the Republican memberships immediately, he said.

DOOLITTLE FLIES ACROSS U. S. IN 11 HRS. 59 MIN.

Fights Weather for Nearly the Entire Distance.

Navy Giant Hops

Norfolk, Va., Jan. 15.—[Special.]—The flying boat XP2H, the navy's largest airplane, took off from Hampton Roads this afternoon on a projected nonstop flight to Coco Solo, Canal Zone. The four motored plane is scheduled to arrive at Coco Solo early tomorrow afternoon.

Lieut. J. S. Thach, in command of the flight, was at the controls at the start. Also aboard are Lieut. Carl E. Giese, co-pilot, and a crew of four men.

New York, Jan. 15.—[Special.]—Flying blind and battling the pilot's most dreaded hazard, ice, across the whole span of the continent, Maj. James H. Doolittle set a new transcontinental mark for passenger carrying transport planes today.

He set down the wheels of an American Airlines Vultee eight passenger plane at Floyd Bennett field 11 hours 59 minutes out of Burbank, Cal. He broke by but five minutes the time of the Eastern Airlines' Douglas commanded by Capt. E. V. Rickenbacker on its flight from Los Angeles to Newark last month. The record for racing planes is 10 hours 2 minutes, held by Col. Roscoe Turner.

TWA Challenges Record.

Doolittle's record was challenged by officials of the TWA, who asserted that Jack Frye, youthful president of their corporation, made a one-stop transcontinental air mail flight on May 13, 1934, in 11 hours and 31 minutes.

While Frye's transport plane was not carrying passengers, TWA officials say that it is identical with those used by the company in passenger service. It was equipped with an engine identical to that in Maj. Doolittle's plane. Frye's craft was a Northrup-Gamma with a capacity of 1,000 pounds of mail.

Flew 18 Miles Farther.

Maj. Doolittle today flew eighteen miles farther than Rickenbacker. The latter's flight ended at Newark and was timed at that point. By touching the wheels of his plane at Floyd Bennett airport Doolittle timed the flight to a point within the limits of New York City and also established a greater distance.

The pioneer of American blind flyers had to put all his knowledge to the test to win safely through with his two passengers, Mrs. Doolittle and Robert Adamson of the California staf of the Shell Petroleum Products corporation, for which Maj. Doolittle is aviation manager. He admitted it was the hardest flight of his experience, at least with passengers.

Ice Starts to Form.

Lifting the craft laden with 600 gallons of gas from the Burbank field and driving swiftly upward, Maj. Doolittle found the clouds extended thousands of feet higher than he had been informed. Around 15,000 feet ice started to form.

Swerving the plane to break up the ice, Doolittle drove it doggedly higher until, at 16,000 feet, it was nearly at its ceiling under full load. And there he had to hold it for most of the journey. It was enough colder, about 27 degrees Fahrenheit, at that level to allow the moisture drops to congeal before they hit the racing wing. But they struck the plane like shot.

Through the ventilators most of the night, Mrs. Doolittle said, ice particles as big as her fingernail came in stingingly.

All the while it was black dark. The flyer and his companions caught only one glimpse of the earth—snowcapped mountains over Colorado—until they came out of the clouds over Richmond, Va., just as the sun was struggling up. It was sheer flying by instrument all night.

"I wasn't liking it," said Mr. Adamson. "Our radio was not working and we were flying between the routes of American Airlines and T. W. A. and so could not use the beam. I did not say anything, however, until finally the major admitted it was pretty tough.

"The steady northwest winds drifted us far south of our compass course. If we had not had to go as far south as Richmond we would have made it fully an hour and a half faster than we did."

Doolittle's plane is a regular transport ship of the same type now in the passenger service of the American Air Lines. It was built to accommodate eight passengers and two pilots.

101 Years Old Today

MRS. ANNA HERRICK.
[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Mrs. Anna Herrick, 6023 University avenue, will celebrate her 101st birthday anniversary today. Her only living child, C. Judson Herrick, 66 years old, professor emeritus of neurology at the University of Chicago, as arranged a party in her honor at her home which will be attended by six grandchildren, five great-grandchildren, and a great-great-grandchild.

Mrs. Herrick was born in 1834 in Clarence, N. Y., near Buffalo. With her husband, Henry N., who died in 1893, she had lived in many middle western frontier towns.

She is the eldest of four children still living. A brother, Allen D. Strickler, 94 years old, lives in Buffalo. Another brother, Herschell J. Strickler, 92 years old, lives in Baltimore. A sister, Mrs. Allen Choate, 93 years old, lives at 7700 East Lake terrace.

OPEN NEW ROUTE TO GULF; RETURN EAST IN A DAY

New Orleans, La., Jan. 15.—(AP)—A new air service was inaugurated between Washington and New Orleans today when a plane in charge of Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker landed at Shushan airport, bringing as passengers Mrs. Woodrow Wilson and Mrs. Eugene Meyer, wife of the publisher of the Washington Post.

The plane was piloted by Dick Merrill.

Tomorrow Capt. Rickenbacker will make a "real test" flight between New Orleans and New York and return, with the expectation of launching round trip daylight service between this city and the east.

Breakfast in New Orleans, lunch in New York, and dinner in New Orleans—all in the same day—is tomorrow's schedule, which the Eastern Air Lines hope to make permanent.

RADIO STATIONS GUIDE AIRSHIPS BACK TO PORTS

Sunnyvale, Cal., Jan. 15.—(AP)—Zero visibility far out at sea—and snatches of music from the latest popular song, perhaps even Grand Opera, may lead the navy's giant airship Macon safely home.

Lieut. H. N. Coulter, communications officer, has assisted in a new type of radio direction finder.

Frequently, Lieut. Coulter said, from 500 miles at sea, the Macon has hit San Francisco "on the nose" by "homing" from an ocean voyage on one of San Francisco's boardcasting stations.

The Macon can use a station 3,000 miles away.

METALS EXPERT SEEN AS CHIEF AID TO AVIATION

Notre Dame Studies Plan for Aeronautic Course.

BY WAYNE THOMIS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

South Bend, Ind., Jan. 15.—[Special.]—The metallurgist, rather than the designer or the engineer, in all probability will contribute the most to aeronautical advances of the near future, Victor Kleisrath, head of the research department of the Bendix Aviation corporation, told authorities of Notre Dame university tonight.

Kleisrath's predictions were made during a round table discussion of the aviation industry. His was the chief contribution to the discussion, although there were a dozen prominent civil and military flying men present. The group was called together by the Rev. John F. O'Hara, president of the institution, to advise the school authorities on the feasibility of introducing a course on aeronautics into the curriculum.

Gives Metals Men Credit.

The metallurgist's contributions to flying, the speaker pointed out, are primarily responsible for the tremendous advances made during the past two years in building commercial air liners such as the Douglas DC2, the Boeing 247D, the Vultee, and the Lockheed Electra. All these planes are of all metal construction including spars and "skin."

Duraluminum and a still later, stronger, lighter metal designated 248T Alclad, made it possible to build the full centilever wings [wings braced wholly from within, thus abolishing drag of struts and wires] which are a feature of all these craft. It also made it possible to spread much of the stress formerly borne by spars in both fuselage and wings of airplanes to the metal "skin," thus allowing the ships to be lighter in proportion to "pay" load than earlier ships built of wood, wire and fabric.

New metals now being synthetically "created" in laboratories throughout the country will make it possible to build even lighter and stronger ships in the near future, Kleisrath said. Lightness will allow engineers to build both slow landing speeds and high cruising speeds into the same airplanes.

Cut Down Landing Speeds.

The airliners of today have landing and cruising ratios of approximately 1:3, said he. That means that the Douglas, for example, cruises at 190 miles an hour and lands at between 60 and 65 miles an hour. If the metallurgists are successful in fabricating new light, strong metals this ratio can be increased and should be increased to at least 1.5. In other words, he explained, the big liners should be built to land about 40 miles an hour, but cruise at 200.

"Pay load," the commercial cargo capacity of an airplane, will benefit at the same time, the research expert declared. In the Sikorsky S-42, which he described as one of the most efficient airplanes flying today, the pay load amounts to slightly more than 9,000 pounds, while the total weight of the airplane when loaded is 38,000 pounds. Planes of the near future will be able to carry a pay load of almost half their gross weight if the metallurgists are successful.

Can Reduce Engine Weight.

With these new metals the experts are seeking the engine builders will be able to reduce the weight per horse power ratio; at present the commercial engines used today have a ratio of 1 horse power to 1.5 pounds of weight, generally speaking, he said. This will be brought to 4 horsepower per pound in the future as it is today in certain racing engines which cannot stand more than an hour of steady running.

Col. W. A. Bishop, foremost "ace" of the Royal air force during the world war; Prof. H. J. Burden of Toronto university, another war ace; Commander H. B. Grow of the United States navy; Col. T. R. Sherburne, commandant of Fort Benjamin Harrison at Indianapolis; Herbert L. Sharlock, also of Bendix corporation, and Will Rogers, who described himself as a "distinguished deadhead," were others present at the conference.

At its close Rev. O'Hara said: "If the trustees decide to add an aeronautical course to those now offered here, we will specialize in the chemistry and the engineering phases of flying. No actual course in piloting will be offered. The trustees will decide the matter some time this spring."

JAILED FOR GAS THEFT.

Mrs. Lillian Baskerville, colored, 38 years old, manager of an apartment building at 4563 Michigan avenue, was sentenced to 30 days in the Bridewell by Municipal Judge Scheffler yesterday for tampering with gas meters.

ELEVATOR UNION GETS BOOKS BACK AND IS ABSOLVED

Books and records of the Elevator Operators and Starters' union, seized in a raid on the offices, 159 North State street on Jan. 11, have been returned to the union officers, according to the state's attorney's office. At the time of the raid, Matt Taylor, Thomas O'Grady, and Thomas O'Brien, officials of the union, were questioned on reports that gangsters had exacted $7,000 in tribute from the organization. Capt. Daniel Gilbert, after questioning them and examining the books, said he was convinced the report was an error.

What about your Street Car Service?

● If you live in Chicago you ride on street cars.

Eighty per cent of all using local transportation depend upon them daily.

You are entitled to know the facts about the Chicago Surface Lines. It serves you and it would like to serve you more. It is a Chicago institution spending in Chicago the money it collects in fares. With its gridiron of tracks and buses it reaches practically every neighborhood. That is common knowledge.

BUT, DID YOU KNOW THAT—

1. Of all the money it collects in fares much more than half goes for wages.
2. Sixteen thousand five hundred persons are employed at wages which for several years have been the highest paid by any privately owned street car system in the United States.
3. A total of $36,000,000 was spent in operating expenses last year—practically all of it in Chicago.
4. The Surface Lines pays in the neighborhood of $4,700,000 a year in local taxes and other compensations.
5. It also pays the city $365,000 a year for street cleaning and snow removal.
6. Every time it snows its plows and sweepers clear the snow from more than 500 miles of streets used by other traffic as well as by its cars and buses.
7. It paves the part of the street its rails occupy and maintains the pavement.
8. Since the 1907 franchise ordinances were passed, it has paid for general taxes, street paving, maintenance of pavement, the city's 55 per cent of divisible receipts and for other public benefits a total of $150,000,000.

Why do we advertise all this? Because it is your money—money that you contributed in street car fares. And you have a right to know where it has gone.

The conductor who collects your fare and the motorman who operates the car are your employes. Your fares pay their wages.

Although private capital built and maintains it, the Surface Lines is your street car system.

Some day the traction question must be settled, and you will settle it by your votes. So your ought to know all about it and to give you the facts is the purpose of this and subsequent advertisements.

DENEEN GROUP GIVES UP HUNT FOR CANDIDATE

Unable to Find Leader to Run for Mayor.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Another search for a suitable Republican candidate for the mayoralty nomination came to a fruitless termination yesterday. This time the Deneen group followed the previous day's example of the city central committee by deciding not to enter a candidate in the primary.

But this decision was not reached until after the Deneenites had made a vigorous search for acceptable timber, a hunt that was active over the week-end and on Monday, and one which wound up with definite, final refusals to run from four different men its leaders considered qualified for the race.

Those refusals came from George E. Q. Johnson, former United States attorney and judge; Noble B. Judah, former ambassador to Cuba; Circuit Judge Daniel P. Trude, and Edwin L. Ryerson Jr., long an important figure in civic movements.

Further Search Made.

The group also made efforts to get in touch with Thomas E. Wilson, packer and business organization leader, and with Charles S. Dewey, former assistant secretary of the treasury under the Coolidge administration, but neither was accessible.

Having reached this point, the twenty leaders of the group who met at luncheon in the Hotel Morrison at noon determined that further efforts to bring into the race a man of their liking would be futile, since tomorrow is the last day for filing nominating petitions. Then came the decision to let further action remain in abeyance until the filings are complete and it is determinable whether any candidate who has placed his name before the party is acceptable to former Senator Deneen and his aids.

Hopes for Fund Shattered.

What was called the sad side of the story for the Republican party was described at the luncheon as due to an unusual bit of political history in connection with the filings up to this time. It was a story of hopes of a large campaign fund that were shattered at so late a date that organization leaders could not get into action.

Emil C. Wetten, who was first assistant corporation counsel under the late Fred A. Busse, according to the luncheon group, solicited the support of ward committeemen and in some manner left with them the impression that he had $450,000 or $500,000 in the bank ready to throw into his campaign. This meant approximately $10,000 per ward, and under present conditions that looked to some committeemen like $1,000,000.

Fund to Be Raised.

Those ward representatives stampeded to Wetten—but only temporarily. Before long they began to ask for tangible proof of the rosiness of the future and then it is said Mr. Wetten said he would have to go out and raise his campaign fund just like the ordinary candidate and that he expected the committeemen to help.

His petition was filed, as was that of Mrs. John Wesley Gray, but by this time the committee was helpless to go out and find a live candidate.

Two or three other candidates may file, but nowhere is there anybody in sight who meets the ideas of the leaders as to the needs of the situation. They were a sad lot yesterday.

TOKIO PROPOSES JAPANESE-SOVIET FRONTIER BOARD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Jan. 16 [Wednesday].—Deploring the recurrence of alleged invasions by soviet Russian troops and planes into Manchukuo, a foreign office spokesman disclosed today that Japan had again approached Moscow for the formation of a mixed border commission to put an end to the irritating incidents.

The spokesman also said Japan is prepared to enter an agreement not to station troops on the border and to have Manchukuo agree not to fortify the border. He expressed optimism over future relations with the soviet and declared that Foreign Minister Koki Hirota, in a forthcoming speech to the diet on Jan. 18 which he is submitting to the emperor for approval, will mention the great improvement in Japanese-Soviet relations, particularly as to the purchase of the Chinese Eastern railway.

The spokesman recalled that in his speech in the diet last year Hirota was pessimistic, inasmuch as the soviet leaders, Josef Stalin and Gen. Vassily Constantinovich Bluecher, soviet commander in chief in the far east, had attacked Japan in their speeches. However, inasmuch as the Russians have calmed down, he sees hope of an improvement in relations.

Policeman of Milwaukee to Head Wilmette Force

Capt. Cloyd C. McGuire, for 22 years a member of the Milwaukee police department where he is in charge of the police training school, was appointed assistant village manager of Wilmette last night by the village board. This new position, created by the board at last night's meeting, places Capt. McGuire in charge of the police department.

Chief Henry Brautigan will assume the title of superintendent of police for a year and then revert to his old rank of captain. The new post pays a monthly salary of $270 and was created because a village ordinance provides that a peace officer must have been a resident of the village for a year.

TEAMSTER UNION HABEAS CORPUS HEARINGS TODAY

Petition for a writ of habeas corpus in behalf of Edward McDermott, business agent of the Chicago Coal Teamsters union, and seven other members of the organization were set yesterday for hearing today by Chief Justice Denis E. Sullivan of the Criminal court.

McDermott and the other members of the Chicago Coal Teamsters union, branded an outlaw organization by State's Attorney Courtney, were seized at the yards of the Consumers Coal company at the foot of South Water street. They were reported to have tied up work for an hour while they sought to persuade coal drivers to strike.

At the same time, officials of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, recognized by the state's attorney as the authentic union, announced that, in case a strike is called by the other organization, striking workers would be replaced with brotherhood members.

Eight hundred policemen guarded the city's coal yards yesterday after Frank Jensen, 1730 North Talman avenue, a driver for an independent concern, reported that he had been threatened with violence if he continued to deliver coal.

Chief Justice Sullivan yesterday set Feb. 15 for rehearing of the Trucking and Transportation [T-N-T] conspiracy case.

STATE STREET DOLLAR DAY TO BE TOMORROW

Stores Ready for Rush of Willing Shoppers.

State street merchants yesterday promised Chicagoans the "best values and widest assortment of merchandise ever offered" in the sixth Dollar day sale under the sponsorship of the State Street council tomorrow.

Final plans for the event were completed yesterday at a meeting of store executives. As usual, State street is to be decorated with banners, streamers, Dollar day signs and posters from Congress to Lake streets. Window decorators busied themselves preparing displays with hundreds of one dollar items on view.

Believes People Will Spend.

"The merchants anticipate the largest volume of business yet done on a special day of this character," H. H. Reiger, executive secretary of the State Street council, said yesterday. "The unusual bargains should assure a record volume of sales. The heavy business during the holiday season proves that the people are ready to buy if good values are offered."

The council announced that the following would be offered among the goods on the dollar lists: two pairs of women's hose, shoes, lingerie, hats, dresses, pajamas, gloves, scarfs, purses, cosmetics, curtains, rugs, furniture, mirrors, china, tableware, sheets, pillows, table cloths, ties, socks, spats, canes, food, and automobile accessories.

Special Transit Facilities.

Transportation companies, downtown parking lots, and loop restaurants have agreed to coöperate with the merchants in making the Dollar day sale a success. The transportation companies announced preparations to handle extra trafic to and from the loop.

Parking lots have made arrangements to handle thousands of extra cars and all loop restaurants have planned to feature special Dollar day menus to give shoppers ready lunches so that they may have as much time as possible in the stores.

The last of the bargain days was held in July when thousands of Fair visitors augmented the Chicago shoppers, and took advantage of State street's demonstration of its importance as a shopping center.

Resume "L" Service Today on the Stockyards Loop

Full service on the stockyards elevated loop, destroyed in the big fire nine months ago, will be restored today. The first train is scheduled to run at 5:16 a. m. An inspection train, carrying stockyards officials and other leaders will make the trip at 9 a. m.

LAKE COUNTY'S CREDITORS SHUT DOWN; FUEL LOW

It looks like a long, cold winter for Lake county unless the officials can scrape up some money to pay bills. The oil dealers have announced that at the end of January they will refuse further credit, and the oil burning furnace in the courthouse must be turned off. The coal dealers have served formal notice that there will be no more credit for coal to supply the furnace at the Lake county general hospital in Waukegan.

While the county finance committee, headed by Chairman John D. Thomas, was in extraordinary session last night, hoping that the cold weather doesn't continue, more grief appeared. Purveyors of food, drugs, medicines, and such supplies were reported as complaining that they could not stand giving credit any longer, either. None of the creditors has been paid since last June.

Mr. Thomas sorrowfully admitted the county is $420,000 "in the red."

PARK TAX LEVY OF $20,746,000 IS VOTED FOR 1935

A tax levy ordinance of $20,746,530 for 1935 was adopted yesterday by the commissioners of the Chicago Park district. Of this sum $12,289,531 covers the bond redemption and interest requirements of the 22 superseded park districts, and $8,477,946 will be used for corporate purposes [park operations].

President R. J. Dunham said the levy for the 22 consolidated districts would be reduced by 25 or 30 per cent before the 1935 taxes are extended if the contemplated debt refunding plan is approved by the general assembly during the present session. Loss and cost of collections increase the corporate levy by $719,771.

Other levies made in accordance with state law include $600,000 for the Field museum, art institute, and aquarium; $348,170 for police retirement and pension funds, and $311,111 for retirement and pension of park employés other than policemen.

U. S. ENTRY INTO WORLD COURT IN SENATE'S HANDS

Munitions Quiz Delays Action on It.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 15.—[Special.]—The world court and munitions of war, both designed for the settlement of international disputes, occupied the entire session of the United States senate today except for a brief tribute to the sixth anniversary of the Kellogg peace pact.

Majority Leader Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas introduced the world court protocols with an hour-long speech in their support, but the fireworks expected to emanate from Messrs. Borah and Johnson, Republican opponents, were deferred while Senator Gerald P. Nye [Rad., N. D.] talked for three hours on munitions.

Mr. Nye, a young man who declaims with the zeal of an evangelist, is seeking another $100,000 to carry on the work of his munitions committee. Most of his attack on "war profiteers" was directed at the du Ponts, whom he almost called traitors, but in response to a question from Senator Lewis [Dem., Ill.] the speaker implied that the war department is trying to block his inquiry.

Believe Roosevelt is Opposed.

Most observers credit the administration with opposing the additional $100,000 appropriations, recalling that President Roosevelt recently appointed the Baruch war policy committee, designed to "take the profits out of war," when Mr. Nye, a Republican, was getting the spotlight. Senator Huey P. Long, the Louisiana Kingfish who is very much out with the administration, implied as much today.

Long asked Nye whether there had been any disposition to stop his inquiry.

"Down my way it looked like it was getting pretty hot for somebody. I just wondered whether you were getting too close to home. They have been investigating me for about two years and I don't think it would hurt to spend a little money on these damn scoundrels."

Takes Crack at War Office.

Nye quickly replied that he was confident no United States senator had sought to block the inquiry and Senator Lewis wished know whether this was an intimation that the war department, or any other agency of the government, had interfered.

"I shouldn't like to answer that," Nye replied, pausing then for the full effect of his innuendo. "I shouldn't like to do any one an injustice."

"You mean injustice or justice?" Long demanded.

Senator Nye reviewed the high lights of evidence adduced before his senate investigating committee, the essence of which seemed to be that munitions makers make money when war comes. Their business depends on war, just as the undertaker's depends on people dying, the physician's on sickness, and the criminal lawyer's on crime.

Sees International Ring.

Nye soared into paroxysms of oratory as he described what he called an international ring of munitions makers who sell guns and ammunition and betray military secrets to future foes of their countries. He said the du Ponts paid very large salaries to their executives, distributed bonuses of 15 million dollars and then made a profit of 400 per cent on their investment during four years of the world war.

"The doughboys," said Senator Nye, "never stopped to quibble about their rate of pay. But when the government wanted the du Ponts to construct and operate the Old Hickory power plant during the world war they quibbled about their profits for more than three months, refusing to undertake the enterprise except on their own terms. The records of the war department show this."

Backs Court Adherence.

The White House announced this evening that President Roosevelt will send a brief message to the senate tomorrow urging ratification of the world court protocols, including the Root formula signed in 1929 and the modified reservation No. 5 adopted last week by the foreign relations committee. Senator Robinson defended the Root formula as amply affording the guarantees demanded by the senate, but said the modification cleared it of ambiguous language.

The only obligation the United States will incur, by adhering to the court, is that of sharing its expenses, Robinson declared.

Senator Johnson and Borah may start their opposition debates tomorrow.

TOM SAWYER AND HUCK MODEL BOYS AGAIN BELOW CARDIFF HILL

Hannibal, Mo., Jan. 15.—(AP)—Mark Twain, creator of Tom Sawyer and Huckelberry Finn, was extolled tonight at the spot where the originals of his characters once walked and talked.

President Roosevelt and Gov. Guy B. Park joined in opening a year's celebration of the 100th anniversary of the birth of Samuel L. Clemens.

President Roosevelt, at Washington, touched a golden key to the Memorial lighthouse on Cardiff hill, overlooking the Mississippi, where Mark Twain was a pilot for years. Visitors gazed on a life size statue of "Tom and Huck" erected at the foot of Cardiff hill.

It was on Cardiff hill, after fleeing "Aunt Polly" that Mark Twain had Tom Sawyer and "Huck" Finn plan many adventures.

LINK BRIDGE CASH TIED UP; SEEK TO MAKE IT USABLE

Park Board to Apply to Legislature.

BY JOSEPH ATOR.

The fund which the old south park board created by sale of bonds for construction of the outer drive link bridge now contains approximately $1,800,000. By the time the construction season opens, tax collections should increase cash held in the fund to nearly $3,400,000, enough to finance about half the work remaining to be done on the bridge.

Nevertheless, the commissioners of the new consolidated Chicago park district, the present custodians of the fund, confront a dilemma. If they use the money to complete the bridge, they can no longer use it as a revolving fund to protect the credit of the district and the morale of its employés, as the south park board did, by borrowing from it to meet bond and interest payments and pay rolls. And if they take this latter course, investing the cash on hand in 1935 tax warants, they will be unable for at least two years to apply the fund to the purpose for which the voters authorized its creation, namely, construction of the bridge.

Up to General Assembly.

Robert J. Dunham, president of the new park district, said yesterday that a solution of the dilemma is possible, under which the district can resume work on the bridge by July 1 and still maintain its credit and meet its pay rolls. The solution is enactment by the legislature of a group of bills now being prepared on behalf of the park district.

These bills will give the district authority to:

1. Refund the outstanding bond issues of the 22 park districts which were consolidated. For the present issues which mature serially and which thus place a severe strain on the taxing bodies because of the tax delinquencies, there would be substituted sinking fund bonds callable when revenue became available to retire them.

2. Create a revolving fund to help finance park operating expenses until tax collections be restored to their normal schedule.

3. Wipe out present legal technicalities which prevent the incumbent board from using taxes levied for operating purposes by its predecessor boards.

4. Give back to the old Lincoln park funds cash now invested in maturing park bonds, through issue of refunding bonds.

Tax Collections Ease Situation.

The Lincoln and south park boards originally sold bonds to create a fund deemed sufficient at the time to complete the link bridge. They had to stop construction of the bridge because they used this money, with perfect legal authority, for other purposes. The south park board sold tax warants to the bond funds and used the proceeds to retire maturing bonds, pay bond interest and meet pay rolls.

Tax collections are just beginning to "unfreeze" that South Park bond account. Originally, after payment of bills for work already done on the bridge, it contained about $4,185,000. At present, in addition to the $1,890,000 received in the last few weeks as a result of the redemption of tax warants by current and delinquent tax collections, it holds unredeemed tax warants in the following sums: 1931 corporate fund, $48,007; 1933 corporate fund, $100,000; 1933 bond and interest fund, $1,366,367, and 1934 bond and interest fund, $780,000.

The Lincoln Park board lacked legal authority to issue tax warants, and so it invested its bond funds in maturing bonds and interest coupons for retirement of which tax collections were not available.

KNOCK OUT COLDS IN FIRST ROUND

Give Colds No Chance to Wear You Down and Put You on Your Back!

Don't dally with a cold! It may end seriously—in the form of flu or pneumonia.

When a cold strikes, strike back with redoubled force. Depend on no mere makeshift remedies.

A cold calls for a cold treatment, not a preparation good for all kinds of ailments.

A cold also calls for internal treatment, for a cold is an internal infection.

Make Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine your treatment and you have hit a cold a body blow.

Bromo Quinine is effective because it is a cold tablet made expressly for the treatment of colds and nothing else. It routs colds quickly because it is internal treatment, fourfold in effect.

First, it opens the bowels, an advisable step in treating a cold.

Second, it checks the infection in the system, a vital measure.

Third, it relieves the headache and fever.

Fourth, it tones the system and helps fortify against further attack.

Be wise and play safe! At the first sign of a cold go right to your druggist for a package of Bromo Quinine. Begin taking the tablets at once, two every four hours.

In 24 hours, if taken promptly, Bromo Quinine will have your cold licked.

Bromo Quinine contains nothing harmful and is safe to take. When you ask for it, insist upon getting what you ask for. The few pennies cost may save you a lot of worry and money.

Greatest Increase in Home Institute Inquiries Parallels Greatest Gain in Grocery Products Advertising

TWO great groups awarded extraordinary recognition to the New York Herald Tribune in 1934.

Reader inquiries reached the great total of 405,298 for the year—175,000 more than in the previous year. A great portion of these inquiries came to the famous Herald Tribune Home Institute—the great home laboratory to which thousands upon thousands of women readers turn for accurate, dependable information on the marketing and preparation of foods.

This active interest on the part of Herald Tribune readers is reflected in the increased use of its pages by grocery products advertisers. Last year the New York Herald Tribune made a gain of 80,822 lines in Grocery Products Advertising—the greatest gain made by any New York newspaper, morning or evening, standard or tabloid.

• • •

The pages of the New York Herald Tribune are the meeting place for these two great groups. READERS know that they contain the most accurate and up-to-the-minute home information, and ADVERTISERS depend on the interest of these readers for the success of their campaigns.

The large increases in both reader inquiries and advertising shows that the Herald Tribune is leading the way. The high quality of its editorial content and the purchasing power of its audience make the New York Herald Tribune the keystone newspaper for successful advertising in 1935.

CAPITAL STOCK TAX VALUATION UP 9½ MILLION

Commission Makes Public Assessments for 1934.

The state tax commission made public yesterday its 1934 assessments on the capital stock of Illinois corporations doing business in Cook county.

Th valuations for the county total $72,848,982, not including a $6,963,647 assessment against the Pullman company, which is still subject to hearings before the commission. The assessment total is an increase of $9,462,431 over the total for 1933, and for 1934 the commission assessed 3,666 corporations, as against 3,205 for 1933 and 1,637 for 1932, the last roll made up by the preceding tax commission.

Five Classes Handled Locally.

As usual, the levies on utility and service corporations comprised the largest items on the Cook county list. The state law excepts five classes of corporations from the general rule that the tax commission shall fix corporate stock assessments. The county assessor handles these five classes, namely, corporations engaged in manufacturing or mercantile pursuits, in the mining and sale of coal, in publication of newspapers and printing, in live stock breeding, and in the banking or building and loan business.

Some of the larger 1934 assessments as made by the tax commission are:

| | |
|---|---|
| Aragon Amusement company | $ 104,062 |
| Chicago Business Men's Racing corporation | 241,298 |
| Chicago Cardinals' Football club | 27,750 |
| Chicago City Railway company | 185,000 |
| Chicago Elevated Advertising company | 196,562 |
| Chicago National League Ball club | 118,989 |
| Chicago Railways company | 220,000 |
| Chicago Title and Trust company | 925,118 |
| Commonwealth Edison company | 7,613,700 |
| First State Pawners' society | 726,987 |
| Great Lakes' Construction company | 155,400 |
| Illinois Bell Telephone company | 1,845,000 |
| Illinois Federation corporation | 1,221,000 |
| Industrial Barge Lines, Inc. | 1,665,000 |
| Loanbank System, Inc. | 527,250 |
| Mather Humane Stock Transportation company | 217,557 |
| 900 Michigan Avenue North Building corporation | 1,998,000 |
| North Shore Health Resort company | 108,225 |
| Paschen Brothers, Inc. | 555,000 |
| Peoples Gas Light and Coke company | 3,900,000 |
| Public Service Company of Northern Illinois | 3,185,000 |
| Studebaker Sales Company of Chicago | 610,500 |
| Thornton Coursing club, Inc. | 161,337 |
| Washington Park Jockey club | 48,337 |
| Willett company | 160,571 |
| World's Fair Greyhound Lines, Inc | 447,287 |

The term capital stock tax assessments, it was explained by Commissioner Barnet Hodes, is somewhat of a misnomer, since the law does not contemplate an assessment upon the full capital stock of a corporation, but merey on that part of its capitalization not offset by real estate or tangible personal property on which the corporation already pays taxes.

Explains Assessment Statute.

"The law under which the assessments were made was passed in 1872 and is still in effect, with minor modifications," said Commissioner Hodes. "It directs the commission 'to ascertain and determine the fair cash value of the capital stock [of Illinois corporations], including the franchise, over and above the assessed valuation of tangible property.'

"Plainly, then, the tax is not in reality a tax 'on' or 'measured by' the capital stock of corporations, as the words are used in their ordinary connotation, but it is a tax on the 'corporate excess' of corporations."

HOLDUP KILLER SENTENCED TO DIE ON FEB. 21

CRIMINAL COURT.

Walter Maciag, robbery, sentenced to 1 to 20 years in the penitentiary by Judge Denis E. Sullivan.

Wilbur Armstrong, Leroy Bollinger, Charles Dailey, and Earl Hannion, larceny of an automobile, sentenced to 1 to 20 years each in the penitentiary, by Judge Cornelius Harrington.

Chester Novak, 30 years old, a paroled convict, was denied a new trial yesterday by Judge Harry B. Miller in the Criminal court and was sentenced to die in the electric chair on Feb. 21. Novak and a co-defendant, George Gross, 35 years old, were found guilty by a jury a week ago of the murder of Henry Mendelbaum, 48 years old, 2031 Pierce avenue, during a robbery last July 1.

Judge Miller also denied a motion for a new trial in behalf of Gross and sentenced him to 99 years in the penitentiary as recommended by the jury. Testimony at the trial showed that Novak and Gross halted Mendelbaum and his wife, Belle, near Damen and Pierce avenues.

Mendelbaum, whose arms were full of bundles gathered in a shopping trip, was shot down by Novak when he was slow to raise his hands. A police squad heard the shot and captured Gross as he left the scene. Information furnished by Gross led to the arrest of Novak.

During the trial Novak, who was paroled from Joliet penitentiary two months before the robbery, offered the unique defense that Mendelbaum had tried to rob him and that he shot in self-defense. Novak had been convicted for robbery and had served nine years before his parole.

"Moist-Throat" Method ended his COUGH in 2 days

"I'm a singer," writes Russell Johns, Chillicothe, O. "3 days before an audition I had a bad cough. Pertussin made it stop quickly!"

WHEN you catch cold, your throat feels dry because thousands of its tiny moisture glands clog. Infected mucus irritates—then you cough. To relieve the coughing, you must "unclog" those glands and so moisten the throat. Pertussin does just that. It helps the throat glands to pour out their natural moisture. Sticky phlegm loosens—Relief. Get a bottle now!

JUDGE ASSAILS "RUBBER STAMP" RECEIVERSHIPS

Teacher Is Ousted as Flat Manager.

Criticism of "rubber stamp" approval of receivers, as given by the courts in the past, was expressed yesterday by Circuit Judge Benjamin P. Epstein.

His remarks came after he had ordered the removal of J. E. Huber, 1450 Howard street, a school teacher, as received for the two apartment building at 217 South Oak Park avenue, Oak Park.

Huber had asked that Mrs. L. M. Kane, resident and former owner of the building, be held in contempt for making unauthorized disbursements of rent money she had collected. At a previous hearing Mrs. Kane explained that she had spent some of the rent money for plumbing repairs without consulting Huber "because he was never around."

Tells of Huber Appointment.

She said Huber was approved as receiver more than a year ago at the suggestion of the holder of the mortgage on her building. Her testimony indicated that the appointment was made without investigation and on the indorsement of attorneys for both sides.

"There is no evidence of Huber's fitness for this important position," Judge Epstein said in ordering the school teacher's dismissal. At a previous hearing he had dismissed Huber's contempt petition.

"I shall appoint in his place," Judge Epstein went on, "a man experienced in real estate management, who has the time and who lives near enough to the building to give his attention to its affairs."

Assails Judicial "Looseness."

"In the past there has been too much looseness in naming managers for income bearing properties in receivership. Too many judges have accepted the ill considered reccomendations of litigants, without making their own investigations as to the receiver's fitness. It is the solemn duty of the courts to appoint receivers who are equipped with the time and qualifications to serve the best interests of all concerned."

Judge Epstein cited a recent instance in which he removed as receiver a traveling salesman who had been appointed to manage the affairs of an apartment building.

Other judges have assailed "rubber stamp" appointments. Circuit Judge Stanley H. Klarkowski recently imposed a jail sentence on a milkman who was unable to give an accounting of funds he had collected as receiver for a building.

ASKS ANNULMENT AFTER HALF HOUR OF WEDDED LIFE

Testifying that she and her husband separated a half hour after their impulsive marriage here a year ago, Mrs. Henrietta Deemer Crough, 19 years old, 3821 Pine Grove avenue, sought an annulment yesterday from Circuit Judge Philip J. Finnegan.

The girl said she was married to John H. Crough, son of the chief of police of Yonkers, N. Y., while he was visiting her in Chicago on Jan. 6, 1934. Judge Roman Posanski, sitting in the County court, performed the ceremony, she said. Crough, who lacked one month of being 21 years old, left immediately for his home, she testified.

Miss Beatrice Barbee, with whom Mrs. Crough lives, corroborated her testimony. Judge Finnegan continued the hearing until Jan. 31.

EX-WIFE OF FILM ACTOR IS FOUND DEAD ON BEACH

Henry Kolker's Former Mate Dies Destitute.

New York, Jan. 15.—[Special.]—The body of Mrs. Carroll Kolker, the destitute divorced wife of Henry Kolker, noted actor and recently a film director, was found early today on the beach of Gravesend bay in Bath beach, Brooklyn. Mrs. Kolker had stretched herself out on the last of her worldly possessions, an expensive mink coat.

The police theory is that she attempted to drown herself after leaving the home of a friend, but ran back on the beach when her feet encountered the icy water and froze to death in the near zero temperature. A bottle, partially empty, found near the fully clothed body, leads to the assumption that she might have taken poison. An autopsy to be held tomorrow will clear up the mystery of her death.

Mrs. Kolker boasted that she had been a member of Ziegfeld's Follies, but did not give the year. The Theatrical Who's Who states that she married Mr. Kolker and that her name was Lillian Carroll, but the date of the marriage is not given.

Henry Kolker, the woman's former husband, was a distinguished actor in his day. In 1897 and 1898 he tourned with James O'Neill in the "Count of Monte Cristo." He was the leading man for Bertha Kalich, Margaret Anglin, and Alla Nazimova. In 1931 he quit the company playing "Topaze" in Los Angeles and joined a moving picture concern as an actor.

HYDRAULIC BRAKES... STEEL BODIES...

Now..REDISTRIBUTION OF WEIGHT!

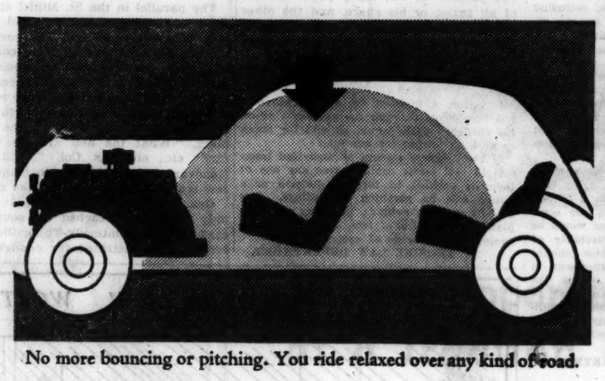
A NEW KIND OF RIDING COMFORT—(Above) Arrow indicates center of balance in a conventional car. (Below) Note how engine and center of balance are moved forward in all Chrysler Motors cars . . . giving the "Floating Ride" first introduced last year in famous "Airflow" cars.



No more bouncing or pitching. You ride relaxed over any kind of road.

(Above) The new 1935 Plymouth. Like all Chrysler Motors cars it has Hydraulic Brakes, All-Steel Body, Floating Power and Redistribution of Weight.

It Can't be a Coincidence that the Outstanding New Car Features of the past Ten Years were Pioneered by Chrysler Motors

WHAT DO THE NEWSPAPERS say about the new 1935 cars? What are the high-spots? What do people talk about as they leave the Auto Show?

First...Hydraulic Brakes. Second...Steel Bodies. Third . . . Redistribution of Weight.

These are the "Big Three" features for 1935 . . . without which no car is modern.

And which cars offer all three? The answer is dramatic. Only Chrysler Motors cars ...Chrysler, De Soto, Dodge and Plymouth... offer all three of these vital features, together with patented Floating Power.

Never before has it been so clear that "As Chrysler goes, so goes the Industry."

Never has it been so easy to see where automobile improvements really come from.

First of all, take Hydraulic Brakes. Every man who buys an automobile this year will want them. Here are the facts:

Chrysler Motors Hydraulic Brakes are instantaneous in action. They are always equalized on all four wheels . . . can't be otherwise. They are absolutely foolproof.

But all Hydraulic Brakes are not the same. On Chrysler Motors cars they have been perfected . . . the result of building over 3,000,000 cars with this kind of brakes. And note: Today, Plymouth is still the only low-priced car that has them!

Next, Bodies. You need a Steel Body to protect you and your family in any emergency. But you want it to be ALL-Steel. You want solid protection on all four sides.

For many years all Chrysler Motors cars have had Safety-Steel Bodies. They have been rolled over and over down hills . . . submitted to every shock and strain that man can devise. Today they are perfected. Ride in them with confidence.

This year you're interested in Weight Redistribution. Here are the facts about that:

It is a new principle. The engine and passenger seats are moved forward. Changing the center of balance, giving new comfort.

This principle was conceived by Chrysler Motors engineers. It was introduced for the first time last year in the famous Chrysler and De Soto Airflow cars. This year, it is offered in every Chrysler Motors car.

One more thing . . . Economy. Amazing mechanical features in Chrysler, De Soto, Dodge and Plymouth cars this year make them the most economical cars to operate in the history of Chrysler Motors.

We invite you to compare these cars with any of the others . . . for Comfort, Safety, Economy and Advanced Engineering.

KILLING THE GOOSE.

Only mild applause marked the conclusion of an address by Mr. Eastman before two thousand officials of twenty-one railway brotherhoods and unions at their annual convention Jan. 12. Later, in direct opposition to the views and warnings expressed by the coördinator of transportation, the convention voted to proceed with its program demanding, among other things, a six hour day, limited length of freight trains, and pensions.

This sharp disagreement between Mr. Eastman and the representatives of railway labor is the result of political opportunism. Running through the interstate commerce act and all of its amendments, including the Hoch-Smith and other resolutions, is the fixed and untenable theory that the commerce of the country is a definite quantity that can be taxed at the will of the carriers; that the freight burden of the country is a constant total that may be shifted from one railroad to another, from one district to another, or from one commodity to another at the will of congress. When the financial structures of the carriers staggered under a decade of these rule of thumb methods of management they were permitted to increase their revenues fifteen per cent, then twenty-five per cent, then forty per cent. Is it any wonder that labor, following the same line of reasoning, considers that further percentage advances in freight rates may be made for its benefit? None whatever, except that two wrongs do not make a right. Railway earnings never have adequately responded to the percentage advances, thus sustaining the truism that the volume of trafic, given sufficient time to adjust itself to new conditions, will fluctuate inversely to the transportation costs levied on its movement.

The period of the twenties was one of extremely rapid industrial expansion in the United States, but the railways participated in the general prosperity to a minimum degree. Commerce and industry under the lash of pyramided freight rates responded with a twenty-five billion dollar motor transport industry, an unprecedented demand for the expansion of waterway service, and a policy of reducing rail tonnage to a minimum.

With the worst possible background, Mr. Eastman is trying his best to save labor from itself. For the last two years he has been engaged in an intensive study of railway patronage and well knows that the salvation of the railways and the welfare of their employés lie in giving the American public "quick, convenient, comfortable, and safe means of transport at the right price" rather than in higher freight rates and fares. History points straight and true to reduced tonnage, reduced trains, and consequently reduced employment, as the inevitable result of freight rate advances. Many of those railway employés who come directly in contact with carloadings at our various industries must have noted the dwindling of tonnage under previous freight rate advances and can visualize the dire results of further pressure. Deprived of the profit motive, no shipper will seek sales beyond his own hinterland, and highly localized transportation will supersede the long haul competitive movements in which rests the prosperity of both railways and their employés.

MISGUIDED YOUTH.

Of 200 youths in a CCC camp in New Jersey 125 last week presented an ultimatum: "No 11 o'clock bedtime hour or we won't work." The captain of the camp did not favor their demand and they were expelled. The rebels had obviously adopted the popular New Deal doctrin that the government owes everybody a livelihood on terms entirely satisfactory to the individual. This conception of the relation of the citizen to government is a natural result of the socialistic philosophy preached by New Dealers since their accession to power and is indeed one of the few aspects of the New Deal that is really new in this country. It is in sharp contrast to the American tradition and will have to be eliminated before American character is restored to its original independence and self-respect.

This incident and some others of the same kind suggest that these misled young men would be better prepared for the duties and privileges of life if enlisted for a term in the army, where they would have the benefits of a discipline upon which a manly self-respect and a wholesome conception of the responsibilities of American citizenship can be founded. The CCC is one of the best projects of the administration and the great majority of its recruits, we believe, appreciate its opportunities and are being benefited. But it is evident that in several of the camps the loose talk familiar in all times of depression, though never before in high official quarters, has had its effect, perhaps assisted by deliberate subversive agitation. It is an unfortunate preparation for the responsibilities of life in a free country and an injustice to the youth affected. A course in self-respecting citizenship is needed where these outbreaks appear.

SAFE HIGHWAYS.

The executive committee created by the Illinois conference on highway safety has asked the governor to use his influence to insure the enactment at the present session of the automobile driver's license and the financial liability bills drafted by the committee. These measures were introduced at the last session and the driver's license bill was passed almost unanimously by the senate, but the house failed to reach them. They have been discussed and indorsed in conference on highway safety and have been tried, it is said, with good results in other states.

Their enactment, however, should not relax the demand for the only form of public protection that will radically check the dreadful death toll—separate ways. More legal restraints will be discounted by the same conditions that cheat existing regulations of their proper effects. The accident rate in states that have the strictest laws and enforcement is still far too high. The only substantial protection is in the construction of highways, and especially of crossings, that are physically safe. Well considered regulations and faithful enforcement are desirable, and the latter, at least, is greatly needed, but both are not enough to bring substantial relief. Highways cannot be made safe unless they are built safe.

OLD GRADS AS UNDESIRABLE JUVENILES.

What is called higher education in the United States has the use of a great deal of money every year, contributed either by the citizens in the form of taxes or by the gift of wealthy persons who think they are doing the public and themselves some good in supporting education. The results of these expenditures should be found in the graduates of the institutions, who, it happens, are displayed for public view most frequently and in largest numbers at the college competitive sports.

It is true that a minority of these exhibits of higher education can give a tone to the entire assemblage and judgment based on the exhibited phenomenon may be inconsiderate of the less demonstrative residue, but the natural inquiry after the exhibition would ask why the money is being spent. Is it to produce overprivileged juveniles of adult years whose sportsmanship is yellow, whose loyalties are childish, whose manners are boorish, and whose character apparently has been unaffected by any discipline? It has become so that such sports as college football and basketball are made painful by the adolescent excesses of graduates given the benefits of an education supposedly calculated to make them thoughtful, mannerly, and considerate human beings.

These alumni make it difficult to sustain the theory that higher education has social benefits indispensable to a civilized country. They insult the officials and the players. They exhibit the effects of delirium. Their loyalties magnify trivialities and distort proportions. Altogether their behavior is that of very small and very bad children made worse by incompetent parents.

The affliction is one which seems to seize the children of the universities after they have entered the life for which their education was supposed to train them. Frequently the undergraduate body is a much better disposed assembly of sportsmen, and it is seldom that a complaint can be made of the players themselves. The graduates are the persons who introduce juvenility into the whole system of college sports, and, inasmuch as they are the flower of the educational process, a system which produces them certainly stands upon the question, Why does the college curriculum bring forth so much nitwittery? Higher education occasionally must seem to be a waste of time and money upon the material subjected to it.

HONOLULU-OAKLAND BY AIR.

Amelia Earhart's solo flight from Hawaii to Oakland will have two widely different effects. The sensational publicity it received throughout the civilized world will encourage adventurous femininity to new adventures in all fields of experience, exploiting new liberties and latitudes. On the other hand, it can hardly fail to impress the traveling public with the rapid advance aviation has made toward reliability and safety. With all due respect for Miss Earhart's special experience as a leading woman flyer, the average man or woman will assume that a flight that can be made by a woman cannot be extraordinarily difficult or hazardous. The progress of airplane engineering and the development of navigational safeguards are proceeding at a rate that is rapidly putting air travel among the normal experiences and resources of mankind.

Editorial of the Day

CONSIDERING THE COST.

[Daily Oklahoman.]

While humane souls have been urging the payment of pensions to Oklahoma's aged citizens and while a few racketeers have sought to derive financial or political profit from promising pensions to aged citizens, it is extremely doubtful if the people generally have any accurate idea of what the proposed system would cost.

If the state undertakes to pension only the 28,630 citizens who are 75 years old or older and pays each of them $25 a month the total cost to the state will be $8,500,000 annually.

If it gives a $25 a month pension to each of the 96,888 citizens who are over 65 the annual cost will be $28,066,400.

If it pays a monthly pension of $25 to each of the 160,000 who are more than 60 the annual cost will be $48,000,000.

And if it pays $25 a month to each of the 239,270 who are above 55 the total annual cost will be $68,781,000.

Even the smallest total that any one has suggested ($25 monthly to those who are over 75) will be only $2,000,000 less each year than the total cost of maintaining the state departments and institutions for the current fiscal year.

Such figures do not deny the justice or the desirability of pensioning the helpless aged. They by no means prove that such pensions ought not to be paid.

But the figures do reveal the appalling magnitude of the task the legislature is facing. They emphasize the supreme wisdom of the most careful and exacting consideration of the issue by the lawmakers.

For this most humane of all recent relief movements contains among its possibilities the complete bankruptcy of the state if not a positive peril to the continuity of state government.

Even if the federal government arranges to pay 75 per cent of the cost, the smallest burden that the state can possibly assume will still constitute the largest continuing fixed charge in the history of the state.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

AN APPREHENSIVE JOURNEY.

I went on the choo-choo cars one hundred and ten miles to Warsaw, Ind., to let my dentist, who lives down there, do some plumbing and general overhauling on my teeth. It's an awful thing to ride one hundred and ten miles to see your dentist. It's bad enough when the dentist's office is only four or five blocks down the street. The dreary foreboding over how he is going to drill and pound around in your mouth makes those four or five blocks seem like two hundred and thirty blocks. But think of traveling one hundred and ten miles to see a dentist. Oh, those one hundred and ten miles were long. I am convinced that Warsaw, Ind., is farther from Chicago than Constantinople, Moscow, or the southern entrance to the Suez canal. I tried to look out the window and forget my apprehension by watching the scenery. The scenery consisted of dreary black trees, mud, and oil stations. It was very hard to forget sorrow when looking at those things. And every now and then something bobbed up that made me think with greater horror on my tragic mission. At one little town the train stopped and I became so interested in wondering why a train, any kind of a train, would stop at a dreary little tank town like that that I became interested in what some workmen were doing. They were handling some kind of machinery that went "buzz, buzz, buzz, gr-rrr-rrr-rrr-wham." "That's a steam drill," said the man in front of me. I nearly fainted. It reminded me of the horrible drills my dentist had. I hadn't seen him for months and probably by now he had one of those steam drills waiting for me.

The train finally got away from that terrible place, but the next time it stopped there was a great deal of noise right outside the car window. There was terrible hammering and sawing and loud cries of "Pull, boys; pull hard! One more yank and she's out!" I shut my eyes and held my fingers against my ears, but I couldn't shut out the horrible sounds. I knew what they were well enough; two or three dentists were pulling somebody's teeth out and putting in a new upper plate. The man in front of me again explained things to his companion. "They're buildin' a new house," he said. But he didn't fool me any. I knew what was going on and I held my breath and counted to four hundred and twenty-five before the train decided to continue the trip. I tried to quiet my gloomy thoughts by reading a magazine. But all of a sudden a pair of gleaming forceps would flash before me and I would let out a groan. Those gleaming things weren't forceps; it was the conductor's punch that he waved around when he collected tickets. But they were so like forceps and gave me such a shock every time I saw them that I had a notion to ask the conductor if he couldn't give me laughing gas or chloroform each time he came in the car to take up the tickets. Finally the brakeman came through the car yelling "Warsaw, Warsaw, all out for Warsaw!" And the talkative man in front of me said: "Right on time; took us only two hours and fifteen minutes from Chicago." Two hours and fifteen minutes! Liar! I knew how long that trip was; two years and three months, that's what it was.

WHAT ACCIDENT?

What accident could bring two souls like ours
To fusion in so turbulent a fire?
It needs a finer earth than man's desire
To bring to birth such star-like, phantom flowers.
There must have been a magic in the wind,
A golden dust rasped from the moon's thin ledge;
A music lifted from the marshes' sedge;
A fretful truancy of soul from mind.
There must have been a moment when the world
In a whimsied hour swung among the spheres
Forgetful of its burdening of years,
Forgetful of its centuries unfurled.
For only such a moment could have brought
To earth a love so beautifully wrought.

TUBERCULOSIS OF THE INTESTINE.

TUBERCULOSIS has been rather accurately described as the most curable, under proper conditions, of all of our chronic diseases. If the diagnosis can be made early and if the patient can be placed at absolute rest we can with reasonable certainty say that he will recover. But in too few of our cases do we insist upon absolute rest, and the disease between the ages of 20 and 40 continues to be the cause of approximately one death out of every five. As has been pointed out in earlier articles, tuberculosis may affect not only the lungs but other parts of the body, and it has long been recognized that tuberculous ulcers may form in the intestine as a complication of lung tuberculosis.

Only in recent years has the problem of intestinal tuberculosis been attacked with success. Formerly the condition was looked upon as hopeless, but now, with methods of reasonably early diagnosis, intestinal tuberculosis, while offering a serious problem, does not present an impossible one.

Every patient with pulmonary tuberculosis who has persistent symptoms of intestinal disturbance should, during the progress of his treatment, be the subject of a careful intestinal X-ray study. Symptoms of colon involvement are largely pain and bloating. Diarrhea is present in rather more than one-third of the cases. Tenderness over the abdomen is not alone indicative of the disease. About one-third of these patients show no symptoms whatever, yet on examination fairly extensive ulceration is found. In most instances, in adults, the disease comes from the swallowing of tubercle bacilli coughed up from the lungs. When they reach the intestine they first attack the lymph tissue close to the beginning of the large bowel.

Once the diagnosis has been determined it is extremely important that the patient be placed completely at rest. Sunlight treatment or treatment with the ultraviolet light is most gratifying and may be combined with bed rest. Without perfect rest the condition probably will go from bad to worse.

The diet should be free from fiber, easily digested, not gas forming, and not inclined to stimulate bowel activity. Gas forming foods are peas, beans, potatoes, cabbage, and pastry. If the patient has difficulty in eating, olive oil will prove a valuable food. Orange juice is not only palatable but relished by most patients and may be used alone or combined with tomato juice. Lean meat is the basis of the best diet. Milk is rarely used, as it provides a good culture medium for the bacteria growing in the already infected intestine. A diet high in vitamins, with the use of half an ounce of cod liver oil daily, is recommended. Laxatives should not be used. Bowel movements may be obtained by injecting into the rectum at night four to six ounces of olive oil or cottonseed oil.

Several years ago a physician of our acquaintance had an extensive tuberculous involvement of the colon. The disease in the lungs yielded to careful management and was healed in approximately one year's time. The intestinal ulcers, however, required two years additional, but the patient is now entirely well and normal as to weight, strength, and resistance.

There is a definite nervous element associated with intestinal tuberculosis, and individuals suffering from this disease are inclined to expect results too quickly. There will be periods when the patient will go backward, with an increase of symptoms. When this occurs patients become impatient and frequently drift from physician to physician with the result that progress is delayed.

Prevention depends upon early diagnosis and proper management of lung tuberculosis. Patients should be warned against swallowing sputum. In spite of this warning some sputum will be swallowed; hence the patient must not be permitted to become constipated. Unfavorable bowel symptoms should be recognized and given proper care.

GOITER.

Mrs. M. F. writes: In November, 1933, I had an operation for goiter. While the operation itself was a success, I was left paralyzed on the left side. Since then I have recovered the use of my leg, foot, and arm, but my hand is still paralyzed. Is there anything that can be done to hasten recovery?

REPLY.

You evidently had a blocking of the circulation in a portion of the brain. The chances are that improvement will continue as time goes on.

STOMACH CANCER.

Mrs. C. writes:

1. Does an X-ray of the stomach usually show up cancer?

2. Does a person gain or lose weight when cancer is present?

REPLY.

1. Cancer of the stomach can usually be detected if the patient is given a barium test meal followed by a series of X-ray plates. These must be interpreted by an expert.

2. The patient loses weight.

FORECLOSURE.

Chicago, Jan. 11.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I am interested in foreclosure proceedings. What is the present Illinois law as to foreclosure? H. B.

Immediately upon default as to principal or interest a bill for foreclosure can be filed without warning. The mortgage debtor in executing the papers nearly always signs away his homestead rights, and often also assigns to the creditor the rents and profits. As a matter of practice, however, the courts do not grant immediate possession of a homestead before sale unless the creditor can show that some income is essential to prevent irreparable damage to the property. In most cases a sale can be forced within ninety days. The creditor commonly bids in the property for less than the amount due, and a deficiency decree is entered followed by the appointment of a receiver, unless the debtor is willing to pay fair rental, and the court approves such an arrangement as a substitute for receivership. After the entry of the deficiency decree the debtor's other assets and income, in excess of exemptions, may be subjected to execution sale or garnishment. The debtor has the right to redeem by paying off the total amount within twelve months after the date of sale, or fifteen months, including the three months during which he can redeem through a judgment creditor.

While the certificate of purchase is assignable during the fifteen months, the uncertainty as to whether there will be a redemption limits the market. Hence it is usually worth while for the creditor to pay something for a quitclaim deed. The amount he will be willing to pay will depend in part on what portion of the expenses he has already incurred.

The total cost of foreclosure of a mortgage of $5,000 or less may be roughly estimated at about 10 per cent. On a $7,500 mortgage it would be about 7½ per cent, and on larger sums the percentage would be smaller. In weighing the advisability of executing a quitclaim the debtor should consider the possibility of enhancement in the price of the real estate during the fifteen months so that refinancing may be possible. Ordinarily the situation is sufficiently complex and there is enough at stake to make a personal interview with an attorney desirable.

AUTOMOBILE LICENSE.

Chicago, Jan. 12.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Is there a reciprocal agreement between Illinois whereby nonresidents may stay a considerable time within either state without the purchase of an automobile license? 2. Is a student coming from out of state expected to buy an automobile license?

1. This wording implies that you have intended to mention some other state, but you have neglected to do so. Illinois has reciprocal agreements with many other states.

2. Not if his legal residence is still with his parents and the car is licensed there.

CHATTEL MORTGAGE.

Joliet, Ill., Jan. 11.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A purchased dental equipment from B, signing 36 notes, one due at the first of each month for three years. A chattel mortgage, as security on the equipment, was made, but A failed to file it and had neglected to return it to B. B sold the notes to a finance company and so far A has paid 32 notes, at the time due, to the finance company. 1. Why should a chattel mortgage be filed? 2. Will the mortgage be dissolved when all the notes are paid? 3. Should the mortgage be filed at this late date? M. F.

1. If it is not filed, the lien could be defeated by subsequent purchasers or judgment creditors of the mortgage debtor.

2. Yes.

3. The Illinois statute requires filing within ten days. Hence it would be preferable to secure new papers if that is possible.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

JOINT PROPERTY.

Chicago, Jan. 12.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Property is owned jointly by two people. If one party pays one-half of all taxes, or his share, and the other party ignores and does not pay any of his share of taxes [1] can one-half of property be sold for taxes? 2. Can all of property be sold regardless of half paid? R. C. A.

1. Unless a division for taxing purposes has been made through the assessor's office, the entire property would be sold for taxes, or at least offered for tax sale.

2. Yes. Where owners of undivided interests in real estate cannot agree any one of them is entitled to force a division or a public sale by partition proceedings. The cost of such proceedings, including the complainant's solicitor's fees, are chargeable against the proceeds of sale.

AN OPPORTUNITY MUFFED!

Cleveland Heights, O., Jan. 10.—Your column on the editorial page in THE TRIBUNE of Sunday, Jan. 6, headed "Generals," was extremely interesting to the writer, particularly the latter part where you imply that there has been covering up by our high command of mistakes committed in the world war.

I am convinced you are right. It is my firm belief that we missed a golden opportunity at St. Mihiel to end the war in a smashing roundup and consequent surrender of at least half of the German army in France by not pushing ahead to the four track railroad through Sedan-Montmedy-Thionville to Germany.

We stopped on Sept. 14 in accordance with Foch's orders to Pershing, and Pershing, trained in the West Point tradition of "orders are orders," held us there and then pulled us out at once to the Argonne, where, after 50 days of slogging and fearful losses through four heavily fortified trench positions, we reached that same railway.

Recall an almost identical situation in the civil war. Grant had pushed south of Vicksburg and, turning northeast, had beaten Johnson's forces, taken Jackson, Miss., and there destroyed stores, factories, etc. Turning sharply westward, he beat Pemberton's army at Champions' Hill and Big Black river bridge, driving them demoralized into Vicksburg and capturing that important nodal point together with Pemberton's entire army comprising 31,000 men.

Yet right in the midst of that furious campaign Grant was specifically ordered to stop, as Pershing was at St. Mihiel. Fortunately he did not obey.

Let Grant tell it in his own words:

"While the troops were standing as here described [i. e., deploying for the action], an officer from Banks' staf [Brig. Gen. Dwight] came up and presented me with a letter from Gen. Halleck [Grant's superior at that time] dated May 11. It had been sent by New Orleans to Banks to forward to me. It ordered me to return to Grand Gulf and to coöperate from there with Banks against Port Hudson, and then to return with our combined forces to besiege Vicksburg. I told the officer the order came too late and that Halleck would not give it then if he knew our position.

"The bearer insisted I ought to obey the order and was giving arguments to support his position when I heard great cheering to the right of our line and saw Gen. Lawler leading a charge on the enemy. . . . I saw no more of the officer, I think not even to this day [1884]."

The parallel to the St. Mihiel situation seems very close. If Foch had known how completely we had the enemy on the run his order would, I am confident, have been revoked and he would have praised Pershing for going ahead.

The veriest buck private knew we were throwing away a golden opportunity in halting. How well I recall the grumbling, "What the hell are we waiting for?" etc., etc. As Col. "Wild Bill" Donovan said: "Nothing in front but a few scared Heinies running like mad."

Gen. Dickman was convinced we not only could have reached the south railroad [Sedan-Montmedy-Thionville], but could have penetrated far enough north to threaten the north railroad through Liege-Aix la Chapelle.

This whole thing should be dug out of oblivion, no matter whose toes are stepped on or whose reputations suffer. I'll gladly help. F. D. LARKIN,
Ex-Captain 23d Engineers, A. E. F.

PEDDLERS BANNED.

Chicago, Jan. 10.—A resident of the south shore district, I have just learned that peddlers and junkmen have been banned from this territory. Whether by a busybody city council or by an increasingly overbearing, petty police administration is immaterial, the objection being on both humane and economic grounds.

Here are men willing to work, doubtless as high a percentage of honesty among them as in other classes, deprived of an honest, if hard and little remunerative, means of livelihood. More burden is placed on the taxpayer for unemployment relief. The possibility of forcing a percentage of these men into crime is manifest. Finally, the city loses a moderate source of tax income for peddler licenses.

South Shore is a splendid residential section, but who are we, its citizens, to get so high hat in these times? Who are the residents of any community to obstruct honest individuals in their pursuit of an honest living? J. E. T.

THE NEW MILK REGULATION.

Chicago, Jan. 12.—I am informed that by the latest ordinance of the board of health the milk companies are not allowed to exchange any unsold milk left in stores.

Such an ordinance is made in the interest of milk companies, as the merchants are now selling milk two and three days old. They can't afford to stand the loss by spilling the unsold milk in the sewer. Can you blame them if all they make is 1½ cents on the bottle for ice, service and profit?

In plain words it is a new racket to kill small business under the camouflage of children's health and to help the milk companies to get more money. If the board of health is unable to sufficiently inspect one hundred milk companies, how does that board intend to inspect thousands of little stores? If the unsold milk is not returned to the companies the Chicago children will have to drink it. MRS. J. O.

BEGGAR IN TAXICAB.

Chicago, Jan. 12.—In answer to your article, "Throngs Sigh Over Cripple," I must say that I am glad to see a cripple that knows how to take care of himself while thousands of normal and strong men sit and wait for the charities to take care of them.

Our policemen had better leave a harmless beggar alone and get after the gangsters and swindlers.

What would you rather have, two healthy legs or a ride in a taxi?

Just because nature wrought an injustice on him should he be denied the fundamental necessities of his life?

WORKERS' TEARS FAIL TO REOPEN STRIKE-HIT MILL

1,100 Lose Jobs as Plant Is Liquidated.

Boston, Mass., Jan. 15.—(AP)—The pleas and tears of Southbridge workers and merchants today failed to save the jobs of 1,100 employés of the Hamilton Woolen company, one-fifth of the community's employable population, as stockholders of the corporation voted, 26,589 to 815, for liquidation.

"These people will be thrown upon the world helpless as babes," George W. Grant, resident of Southbridge and stockholder, asserted tearfully. He said adjacent towns with an aggregate population of from 40,000 to 50,000 would be affected and begged for further consideration.

He declared 95 per cent of the workers would return if not influenced by "outside organizers who would sacrifice Southbridge, or even Boston, to obtain their own ends."

The plant was closed permanently in November after the third strike in four months led directors to recommend liquidation. Richard Lennihan, president of the company, replied to the entreaties by saying that to continue "would endanger the safety of the workers."

Representatives of the workers charged that the company was the victim of politics in connection with an attempt by a federal mediator to settle the strike.

Charges of "racketeering" by union organizers also were made as individual residents of the town and workers with tear stained faces described the plight of the community revenue.

The prisoner pleaded not guilty to the charge when he was arraigned at a brief hearing yesterday. He contended he was in Covington at the time Labatt was dragged from his automobile between Sarnia and London, Ont., and held captive for two days.

SEE WHITE HOUSE SHADOW IN ICKES FEUD WITH MOSES

PWA Chief Is Silent on Cat's-Paw Report.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 15.—[Special.]—With stony silence Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes today met reports that he is acting as a cat's paw for the settlement of a White House political grudge in his controversy with Robert W. Moses of New York.

The controversy rose with the issuance of a recent order by the secretary as Public Works administrator that no person could hold a position on any authority administering PWA funds if he held another official position. The order was seen as being aimed directly at Moses, who is both New York park commissioner and a member of the Triborough Bridge authority.

See Familiar Method.

In serving notice through the order that New York could get no more PWA money for the bridge or any other public works projects Ickes was believed to be offering another example of the administration's settling of political grudges. It is no secret that the President, although ordinarily most friendly, has a long memory for political enemies.

Moses made his bed among such company when he sided with Al Smith at the height of the latter's feud with the President. Those close to the White House say the President didn't like the move and can never forgive Moses despite the services Moses rendered Roosevelt when the latter was governor of New York. Smith later went against Moses and supported Lehman, Roosevelt's candidate for governor.

This interpretation of the order was strengthened last week when the President was asked if he had any information on the controversy. He replied that he had a great deal of information—most of it in his head—and that he was not ready to discuss the matter.

Another ax has been swinging over the head of Moses in the President's immediate official family. Louis McHenry Howe, White House secretary, came to grips with the fearless, uncontrolable, and irreverent Moses some years ago and came out second best. Howe also bears his master's disposition for repaying grudges.

In addition to playing the rôle of the angel of retribution for the administration Ickes has a personal grievance against Moses, according to observers. As Ickes has settled many old slights in his home town of Chicago during his tenure of office, it is reported that he would not hesitate to repay those received in office.

Has Assailed PWA.

In his outspoken manner Moses has repeatedly assailed the PWA and its administrator frequently for tardiness in handing out funds for the bridge and for general policies. He pulled no punches in his statements, which irked the administrator, according to his attachés.

When he issued the order Secretary Ickes said that it was general and that it is just too bad if it affected Moses. He has persisted in this statement although his staf admits that the order affects very few persons as there are not many holding dual posts. The staf was unable to name any others.

Mr. Ickes, who enjoys being called a fighter for the people, has persistently refused to comment on his position in battling Moses known as a fighter for the people. He maintained his position today as rumors of secret motives for the ouster threat were again brought to his attention.

In the meantime Mayor La Guardia of New York, who was in the capital today in connection with the feud, has backed his park commissioner. With this backing Moses has announced he would refuse to quit either job and "sit tight."

PAY WINDOW OF NEW DEAL MAY BE IN CHICAGO

55 Disbursing Offices to Be Grouped in Plan.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 15.—[Special.]—Uncle Sam may soon open in Chicago a huge "cashier's window" through which all the New Deal millions of Chicagoland will be disbursed.

This was learned here today from Guy F. Allen, head of the treasury department's disbursement division. Mr. Allen disclosed that he is planning a federal disbursing office in Chicago for the seventh federal reserve bank district. This district comprises northern Illinois, most of Indiana and Michigan, southern Wisconsin, and all of Iowa.

Relief, public works, veterans, and all routine expenditure for that region would be handled through the new central office, Mr. Allen explained. Hundreds of millions of dollars would flow through the office each year as long as the New Deal easy money spending continues.

Would Group 55 Offices.

Approximately fifty-five small disbursing offices now scattered over the five states effected may be consolidated in the new central office. Allen said, however, that he was not sure all types of cash disbursing could be brought into the Chicago office. Personnel for the Chicago office probably will be transferred from the other offices in the region.

One of the first to be brought into the consolidation, Allen indicated, will be that of the veterans' disbursing office now at Hines hospital.

Arrangements have been made to set up the vast "cashier's cage" for Chicagoland in the old postoffice building, according to Allen. Space has been arranged for. Original reports were that the remodeling now being done on the northeast corner of the new postoffice building was for the disbursing office, but treasury building officials said it was for the naturalization and immigration service.

All types of federal easy money—running well up into the hundreds of millions—will be handled except the money spent by the army, navy, and postoffice departments. Public works, relief, drouth relief, and departmental bills will all be paid through the new office.

Actual control over the money will vary, however, according to its type. Relief money, for instance, will merely be handed over to the state relief authorities in a lump. Veterans' compensation, on the other hand, will be handled down to the mailing of the checks to individual veterans.

Part of "Economy Drive."

Public works funds being spent directly by the federal government in Chicagoland similarly will be mailed out by the office, but PWA money allocated to states or cities will be turned over to them in a block, as is required to finance the projects.

Routine government pay roll checks, such as those for federal revenue and justice agents, coast guardsmen, federal judges, and similar functionaries all will be handled from Chicago.

This consolidation in Chicagoland is part of a policy inaugurated in 1933 when President Roosevelt set up the disbursement division in the treasury department as part of his "economy" drive.

Prior to the creation of the bureau which Allen now heads, there was no central disbursing system for the government and each department and agency handled its own payments.

Having centralized the Washington control, the bureau proceeded with consolidation of its field offices.

CHURCHES UNITE; PLAN CONCEIVED ON GOLF COURSE

rth Town Presbyterian, St. James Merge.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

A story of how a church union was advanced on a Chicago golf course was made public yesterday in the announcement of the merger of the North Town Presbyterian church, Peterson and Tolman avenues, and the St. James Evangelical church, Rockwell street and Albion avenue.

THE REV. LOUIS LANDGREBE.

The golf course was important because it was there that the pastors for nearly two years discussed possibilities of the now completed merger while playing golf.

The golfing pastors who turned their physical recreation to spiritual advantage are the Rev. Louis Landgrebe of St. James' church and the Rev. Clifford Earle of the North Town Presbyterian church. The latter will become pastor of the church resulting from the union. It will be known as St. James' United church. The Rev. Mr. Earle announced that he has been tendered several calls by important Presbyterian churches in the west.

Special Service Set for Jan. 27.

The Rev. Mr. Landgrebe announced that, although the merged churches have already begun functioning as a unit, the "Consummation service" of the United church will not be held until Jan. 27, when high officials of both Presbyterian and Evangelical-Reformed churches will participate. According to the Rev. Mr. Landgrebe, these officials regard the merger as significant of rapidly moving trends which will reunite all churches now belonging to the Evangelical family of communions.

Officials of the denominations involved in the Chicago merger are enthusiastic in their praise of the merger, not only as it affects those groups in Chicago, but also for what it portends for ultimate Protestant unity.

Calls Merger a Blessing.

The Rev. A. R. Zimmerman, president of the Evangelical-Reformed conference, said he expected the merger "to be a blessing to both of the denominations involved." Dr. Henry Seymour Brown, of the Presbyterian Extension board, declared the articles of federation of the two churches "were unanimously and heartily approved."

Among unusual features of the merger was the admission to membership in the Chicago presbytery of the Presbyterian church of the Rev. Mr. Landgrebe. He thus becomes a fully recognized minister in what formerly were three distinct communions, the Presbyterian, the Evangelical, and the Reformed. The articles of federation of the two local congregations, declared by leaders to be significant in the progress of general Protestant reunion, were drawn up by the pastors of the two merged churches.

At the neighborhood Infant Welfare station where Mrs. Martindale took her baby, she was told the doctors would not be down till noon. ## LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: Progress

ROTARIANS OF SIX NATIONS REPORT RECOVERY TREND

Directors Convene; Exhibit Opens.

World business, although handicapped by nationalistic measures, is making a slow and certain recovery, it was indicated yesterday in reports by representatives of six nations assembled at luncheon at the Hotel Sherman for the first 1935 meeting of the board of directors of Rotary international.

The report came at an auspicious moment, for it prefaced the formal opening of the second annual business exposition of the Rotary clubs of metropolitan Chicago, an exposition in which 150 business and professional men are displaying a million dollar array of exhibits in the Hotel Sherman as tangible evidences of recovery.

Nations' Conditions Summarized.

Excerpts from the statements of the international directors for five foreign countries, summarizing the business outlook in the nation represented by each, follow:

SOUTH AMERICA—"Conditions improving at a slow but seemingly certain pace. Great paralysis of international trade continues."—Donato Gaminara, Montevideo engineer.

FINLAND—"Unemployment on the decrease. Business prospects for 1935 generally bright."—Paul T. Thorwall, Helsingfors advertising man.

GREAT BRITAIN—"Real upward turn made with minimum of legislative interference; every sign of improvement continuing despite extraordinarily high taxation."—H. E. Galloway, Newcastle-on-Tyne manufacturer.

JAPAN—"Permanent and substantial recovery possible only with the return of free trade policies, a tendency which Japan would welcome."—Tsunejiro Miyaoka, Tokio attorney.

FRANCE—"The year 1934 has not lived up to our expectations; artificial measures have brought about temporary relief but not a definite cure. National egotism is at the root of the evil."—Maurice Duperrey, Paris hotel administrator.

Chicago Rotary Praised.

In summarizing the American situation Robert L. Hill of Columbia, Mo., president of Rotary international, praised Chicago Rotarians for the progressiveness shown by them in holding their second business recovery exposition.

"In this exposition Chicagoans are showing what energetic, courageous, and ambitious business men of the nation have done to pull their own industries out of the slump," he said. "They are contributing materially to national recovery."

2 GIRLS RUN INTO PATH OF TRUCK; CRITICALLY HURT

Jean Geraghty, 10 years old, 523 Stratford place, and her sister, Elizabeth, 7 years old, were critically injured yesterday when they were struck by a truck as they returned to their home from the Mount Carmel elementary school, 690 Belmont avenue.

Witnesses said that the two girls ran from behind a southbound automobile in front of 3253 Broadway and were struck by a northbound truck of the Davies Laundry company, 2349 Cottage Grove avenue. The driver, Byron Watt, 31 years old, 1432 Balmoral avenue, told police that he did not have time to apply his brakes before the accident.

An unidentified man about 24 years old was fatally injured last night when the car he was driving left the road at Kedzie avenue and 104th street, struck a tree, and hurdled a four foot ditch. The driver was thrown through the roof. He died a few hours later at the Little Company of Mary's hospital in Evergreen Park.

Police traced the license number to Maurice Anderson, 6728 South Maplewood avenue. Mrs. Anderson viewed the body, but said it was not her husband, an unemployed railroad man. The dead man later was identified as James Kane, 24 years old, 6125 South Racine avenue, also a railroad man, to whom Anderson had lent his car.

This death and one other raised the Cook county motor fatalities for 1935 to 26. The victim:

Morris Pierce, 33 years old, 516 West 44th street. Died in county hospital early today after being struck by a hit and run autoist at 43d and Halsted streets earlier in the morning.

DON'T BE FOOLED

News of the Radio Stations

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Lily Pons, coloratura soprano of the Metropolitan Opera, is to join the roster of talent on that cigaret show which has had Andre Kostelanetz's orchestra as the headliner the last few weeks. Miss Pons will make her first appearance at 8 o'clock tonight over WBBM-CBS. Kostelanetz and the present lineup, which includes a choir, will continue, and another distinguished artist is to be announced tonight. This is the same program which had Rosa Ponselle, Grete Stueckgold, and Nino Martini on the air all last year.

Ray Noble, noted British conductor, composer, and pianist, has been engaged by Coty's to do a series of broadcasts with his own English orchestra over NBC starting around Feb. 15. Noble was brought over last fall to direct his orchestra in the Rainbow room, the night club 65 stories above the street in Radio City. Trouble with the musicians' union developed and Noble was stymied. Now, it is reported, Noble and his bandsmen have joined the American federation and will be allowed to work for the network. Noble's latest popular ditty is "The Very Thought of You."

Bob Becker's blood pressure won't be back to normal until after those dog shows at Minneapolis and St. Paul around the first of the month. Simon, his Sealyham terrier [he's Redlands Defiance in the record books] already has 12 points toward the necessary 15 for a championship. And Bob interrupts work on his TRIBUNE dog stories and his W-G-N-NBC canine broadcasts several times a day to hope fore those three points.

Ben Bernie, who smokes two dozen cigars a day, will emerge in his next picture as a cigaret puffer, our Hollywood spy reports. Picture went into production as "One Night Stand." It's half finished now and the name at present is "Stolen Harmony." Your guess is as good as ours as to the final title.

Virginia Simms, who sings with Tom Gerun's orchestra at the French Casino, is to join Kay Kyser's W-G-N orchestra as soloist. . . . And Kay Morton, Herbie Kay's new songstress at the Edgewater Beach hotel, used to be Alpha Louise Morton when she was singing with Don Pedro. . . . Clyde McCoy, long a W-G-N favorite, will play for the University of Iowa military ball Friday night before hopping to Dallas, Tex., where he is to open a hotel and radio engagement.

Shades of Nellie, the Beautiful Cloak Model, and other ladies of unimpeachable virtue will be brought to radio when "The Nickelodeon," an air version of the old time silent pictures is introduced over WENR at 9 o'clock tomorrow night. "Sylvia Clark" will warble such ditties as "No, No, a Thousand Times No," and there'll be a tinny piano, too.

Judge Edwards Memorial Rites Planned for Jan. 25

Memorial services for the late Judge Claire C. Edwards, who died Dec. 31 at his home in Waukegan, will be held Jan. 25 in the Lake county Circuit courtroom in Waukegan. Judge Edwards retired from the bench in 1930 after sixteen years of service in the Seventeenth judicial district, which includes the counties of Lake, McHenry, Boone, and Winnebago. Brief talks in praise of Judge Edwards' record will be given by Circuit Judges Ralph J. Dady of Waukegan, Arthur E. Fisher of Rockford, and Edward D. Shurtleff of Marengo.

Antiquarians Will See Four Noted Exhibits

Annual Reception Jan. 25 at Art Institute.

BY JUDITH CASS.

IN yesterday's mail there came a card to what always is one of the most distinguished and important social events of each winter, the annual reception of the Art institute. The society of the Antiquarian society of the Art institute. The society will be at home this year from 3 until 5 o'clock on Friday afternoon, Jan. 25, in its galleries, and four notable exhibitions will be opened that afternoon.

Mrs. Richard T. Crane Jr. has been instrumental in persuading her friend, Mrs. Henry E. Coe of New York, to lend her remarkable collection of samplers, dating from the 17th to the 19th century; Mrs. Alfred E. Hamill is lending her wax miniatures; Mrs. Walter S. Brewster's collection of papier découpe is another loan exhibition, and the antique shoes that Mrs. J. Ogden Armour has given to the institute is the fourth.

Mrs. Armour is adding to this fine collection whenever she has an opportunity of doing so, and last summer when she was abroad she secured quite a number of lovely old shoes and some enchanting buckles.

Coe Collection Is Famous.

Mrs. Coe's collection of samplers includes specimens from Spain, Mexico, England, France, Czechoslovakia and the United States and is said by all who have seen it to be most interesting, with many large pictorial samplers as well as smaller alphabetical ones included in it. Mrs. Hamill's collection of wax miniatures is one of the most noted, if not the most noted, of its kind in this country, and not long ago it was written up in the English magazine Connoiseur which deals with important art matters.

Papier découpé are little scenes encased in glass made of cut paper, and Mrs. Brewster's collection of these fascinating and rare little ornaments is a well known one among people who know about such things.

Mrs. Joseph M. Patterson, elected president of the society last November, is in charge of arrangements for the reception. Mrs. James Ward Thorne is vice president; Mrs. Arthur Meeker, secretary; Mrs. Robert Hall McCormick, treasurer; and Mrs. Potter Palmer, Mrs. Chauncey McCormick, Mrs. J. Ogden Armour, Mrs. Crane, Mrs. Phillip Miller, Mrs. Kersey Coates Reed, Mrs. George A. Ranney, and Mrs. Hamill are directors.

Eugene du Ponts Visit His Parents.

The three stunning pictures of Miss Ethel du Pont, "Wilmington's number one debutante," which cover one page in the latest Town and Country, bring to mind that her new sister-in-law, Mrs. Eugene du Pont III., the former Margaret Chapman, is at Owl's Nest in Greenville, Del., with her husband visiting his parents, the Eugene du Ponts.

Young Mr. du Pont and his bride of last September—although the marriage was not revealed until during the Christmas holidays—are planning to take a trip soon, but her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Adams Chapman of Lake Forest, have not heard yet what their destination will be.

Another young couple that surprised society greatly during the holiday season by eloping, Mr. and Mrs. William Davey, will pass through Chicago some day soon on their way west, where they will attend a co-educational college. They will stop in New Mexico to see his stepfather and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus McCormick, to have the McCormicks help them in choosing between two colleges they have in mind. Mrs. Davey is the former Alice Bradley and is the daughter of the Herbert E. Bradleys.

Mrs. McCormick Leaves for South.

Mrs. Robert R. McCormick left by motor yesterday for Palm Beach to occupy the house she has taken for the rest of the winter. Her first two guests will be Mrs. Henry Hooper and Edward Prendergast who motored south with her.

Mrs. John L. Dole of Wayne and her little son, Johnny, are leaving soon for Warm Springs, Ga.

The Valentine C. Bartletts and their son, Valentine Jr., are leaving today for their new winter home at Hobe Sound, Fla. They will be away until their other son, Charles, finishes his school year at St. Mark's and then they will pick him up and return to Lake Forest for the summer.

Miss Kate Buckingham, who has had a particularly busy and pleasant winter because one of her young protégés, Joseph Benton, made his debut in grand opera with the Chicago company this last season, is leaving the end of this month for Chandler, Ariz. She plans to stay there until late spring.

Mr. and Mrs. Hallett W. Thorne have returned from Pasadena where they spent a month with her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Frank Taylor Andrews.

Mrs. Leonard Busby Returns from East.

Mrs. Leonard Busby and her talented daughter, Miss Janet Busby, have returned to Chicago from New York and are stopping at the Whitehall. They will be here for the remainer of the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick M. Hurd [Gene Bucklin] have moved into a new apartment at 69 East Division street.

Not more than fifty persons can watch Alexander Calder's puppet circus at one time, so only that number will be present at a performance of the circus tonight in Wieboldt hall at the University of Chicago.

Tickets may be obtained through the Renaissance society at the university this morning. Dr. and Mrs. Arthur Bissell, Thornton Wilder, Mrs.

Goes to Ranch in Arizona

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Miss Gwendolyn Bowen looked like this when she rode in Lake Forest last fall, but she won't be wearing such "spiffy" riding togs now that she is on the Bowen ranch at Castle Hot Springs for the rest of the winter, for "levis" (heavy denim trousers) and cowboy boots are better suited to the Arizona mountains and desert than custom made habits and boots. Miss Bowen and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen Jr., went west on Monday.

Open Chamber Music Series; Hail Composer

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Wherever Igor Stravinsky goes he is likely to hear his own music, and so those of us who go to concerts where he will be during the week or ten days of his Chicago visit are getting a better acquaintance with the Stravinsky music than we might get in two or three seasons otherwise. It thus works to advantage both ways.

His "Three Pieces for String Quartet," captioned thus simply, were played by the Mischakoff String quartet in the foyer of Orchestra hall last night. The group occupied the middle place in the first program given under the auspices of the Chicago chamber music committee this season.

The pieces seem to have been written about 1915, shortly after Stravinsky had finished "The Rite of Spring" and shortly before "Renard." In other words they came at a period of his career when he was most interested in investigating the possibilities of the greatest possible dissonances, and learning, as in this case, that they sound harsher in a small group like the string quartet than they do in a full orchestra. Perhaps for that reason he was content to make them extra short.

At that, enough time has gone by since their rise so that dissonances, as unexpected as they may be, may be startling but are not as shocking as they used to be. The audience, filling the complete space of the foyer, found them interesting and amusing, and, after calling the composer to his feet to acknowledge applause, called the Mischakoffs back to repeat the last piece, a jiggety little affair sounding something like a slightly demented bagpipe.

The group was preceded by the Mozart quartet in B flat and followed by that from the pen of Tschaikowsky, opus 30, in E flat minor. Once again there is reason to call attention to the fact that the Mischakoff quartet is a highly expert and well trained organization.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

Dame Fashion decreed some time back that your lipstick must match your nail polish. Every one thought that was a swell idea, but there was always the high cost of living angle. If you really lived up to the letter of fashion's new law you were tossing quite a bit of money about, especially if you fancied different shades for different frocks and moods.

Now, praise be, the idea has been worked out to the economical point where the genteel poor get a chance at it. Some makers of nail enamels, known the world over for their quality, up and brought out lip rouges to match at a price the most money harrassed of us can pay. And they're dandy lipsticks, too, not drying, easy to spread in just the right amounts, and with plenty of what it takes to stay on for a long time.

The nail polishes need no introduction. Nearly all the women of the civilized world have heard of them, and a good many of 'em have used and liked them. They, too, are nicely priced, and the shades are excellent.

In the harmony series there are four lipsticks. One, called "Natural" for want of a better name, tones in perfectly with any one of three of the more delicate polish tints, the ones on the pale and conservative side. It will be the choice of the woman who uses nothing more daring than a rose in nail enamels.

For those who prefer vivid tints, consistently or only on occasion, there are heavenly twins in coral—a rich, live shade of polish and a lip rouge that matches it exactly. This coral tint isn't too startling—it just misses the blood red depth that some women like. It's stunning with certain dress colors on all types.

A bit more dashing are the ruby and the cardinal, but the fortunate women who can wear these shades will love having lips and nails of the same tint.

The polishes and lipsticks are just about everywhere.

ELEANOR NANGLE.

INFORMAL THRONG

The foyer in Orchestra hall was a greeting place for music lovers at the first of the concerts sponsored by the Chicago chamber music committee, and the room was filled to the last chair. Only a few were dressed in evening clothes, and these women wore simple dinner gowns and the men black ties.

M. Stravinsky dined before the concert with Mr. and Mrs. John Alden Carpenter, who had as their other guests Mr. and Mrs. Carl Bricken, Mrs. Robert M. Hutchins, and Samuel Dushkin.

Miss Peggy Hambleton, a committee member, was dressed informally in black with a bright red hat and a matching cloth flower pinned to her fur muff pocketbook. Mrs. Adlai E. Stevenson, another committee member, wore a tangerine dinner gown trimmed with sable. Mrs. Philip Maher, escorted by Philip T. Dayton Jr., was another who dressed.

Others present included Miss Janet Fairbank, Miss Marouchka Anisfeld, Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Wolfe, who came informally; Burke Williamson, Robert Cook, and Mrs. Avery Brundage.

Start Judging Paintings Entered at Institute Show

A jury of prominent artists yesterday began judging 1,200 paintings by middle west artists entered in the 39th annual Chicago artists' exhibition at the Art institute. The jury is composed of Edward Bruce, adviser to the painting and sculpture department of the United States treasury; Henry G. Keller, Cleveland, and Grant Wood, Cedar Rapids. The names of the ten winners of the prizes, totaling $2,050, will be announced on Jan. 31.

Expert Locates Smart Hats in Small Sizes

Off the Face Models Are Stylish Again.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Shoppers out to fit small heads are filling a department in one of the shops. It holds one of the best collections of different small hats available. All the perky affairs with tiny snips of veils, tiny tufts of ostrich feathers bobbing right on the peak of the front brim, and snappy flats with even flatter crowns, are shown.

Colored felts and street browns, blacks, and navys are plentiful, and some very exciting new straws in all colors.

All of these new models are made with much dash and daring. Felt models are twisted, dipped, and turned until only the very young shopper will dare to wear them. However, they are the best of the picturesque small affairs that rest so lightly on the tips of the heads of fashionwise hat collectors.

Off the face hats are "on again," very flattering face framers so far, with the back sectors fitted smoothly so that you can wear them comfortably with thick fur collars.

From the front they have a distinct flaring line, sometimes cleverly indented and held in place with a bit of trimming or tailored bow. Some of the turnback sections have two clips for glittering contrast, and some of the newest creations have the upturned brim outlined with narrow silk plaiting or braid.

Stitched taffeta fashions some extremely small hats that dip swankily over the right eyebrow, small models with elaborated crowns to achieve height. Brimmed taffetas are as smart as the small hats and come in all street colors. If you have hunted for small head sizes, without much success, this collection will make up for all former disappointments.

The Ten Open Exhibition of Modern Art

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

For several seasons a group of Chicago painters has exhibited as The Ten in the Marshall Field gallery. They comprise a well known segment of the modern half of Chicago's painting colony. Their current show has recently opened.

The exhibit puts a period to any thought that radical art, here at least, is vitally different this year from last or the last of ten years ago. It is a tepid and level exhibit, no mountain tops of achievement break away from the monotonous equality of the pictures hung.

If one looks for charm, then by all odds honors go to "Girl in White" and "Alice" by Frances Foy, who, after all is said, is the most strikingly individual member of the group and the finest craftsman.

Flora Schofield continues to produce terra cotta females of mathematical parentage, as flexible as a piece of wall board. Jean Crawford Adams has reduced creative art to a science and solves problems in design through the medium of color. Emil Armin here shows himself in picturesque vein and offers a quaint "Midway Chapel."

Charles Biesel repeats the song of flowering fruit trees in "Early Summer"; his landscapes in this poetic mood are always welcome.

"Winter Rest" by V. M. S. Hannell shows a graveyard in winter. In the front is a newly dug grave, at the back are stones, some old and crooked, all pathetic and forlorn. His grays and whites would have been the more forceful had he framed his canvas in dead black. It needs throwing into stark relief for its best seeing.

Gustaf Dalstrom has a nice piece of work in "Seated Woman"; his "Country School" is quaint. Emil J. Grumieaux is the bold realist in "Yellow Barn" and "Back Yard," both strong pieces of color. Frances Strain is stiff and unpersuasive in "Children's Breakfast"; "Fred Making a Water Color" rings more true.

The exhibit will continue to Jan. 20.

Front Views and Profiles

KARL DETZER, former Chicago newspaper man, author, and husband of Clarice Nisley, former Chicago newspaper woman, is in Hollywood under contract to adapt into one film four short stories of his that appeared in the Saturday Evening Post. The picture, "Car 99," is now being filmed, and it glorifies the police rather than the crook. Dozens of handsome Michigan state troopers are in it, I am told, and Frank Craven plays the part of the sheriff and Sir Guy Standing that of the crook.

Double—Target—Fringe—
Mobiles.

A few days ago, on location, a Hollywood friend writes, Frank Craven's double was performing from a bridge over one of the reservoirs which was serving as a Michigan lake. As he splashed into the water Frank Craven trembled.

"I feel I'm getting double pneumonia," he wisecracked.

SPEAKING of crime, at the time of the recent Gibson shooting four government agents were stationed at strategic positions waiting for their moment when a fairly well dressed man came along, tiptoed up the steps to a neighboring veranda, and after looking to see if the coast was clear tried to jimmy open a window. He made a perfect target standing there—unaware that government agents surrounded him. Failing to get the window open, he left, to return shortly with better tools. Once more he started to work on the window, and once more he failed to get it open. He gave up and departed. Meanwhile the government agents stood their ground and moved neither hair, hand, nor foot. Had the inefficient burglar persisted he might have joined the fray—and his Maker, a few moments later.

CHAUNCEY BLAIR tells of the man who came into the barber shop in a great hurry to get a haircut.

"Do I have to take my collar off?" he asked the barber.

"You don't even have to take your hat off," assured the barber, getting busy on the fringe that surrounded his bald pate.

IT was a gay crowd that gathered at Wieboldt hall Sunday afternoon to see the exhibition of Alexander Calder's "mobiles," under the auspices of the Renaissance society. It was decidedly not a long-faced appreciation that met his peculiar type of sculpture. The guests played with the objects in his "circus," which is to be given tonight at Wieboldt hall, and which Mr. and Mrs. Walters Brewster have invited friends in to see their home Sunday evening. One guest murmured something about the atmosphere being frightfully continental.

"Yes," agreed Mrs. Daniel Rich, wife of the young assistant curator of painting at the Art institute. "So continental that some one is pinching me right this minute."

It turned out to be one of the "mobiles" that had been set in motion on an adjacent table.

* *

"SANDY" CALDER, nephew of William and Henry James, a large, boyish fellow with luminous blue eyes, dark hair streaked with gray, and an engaging manner, was a sculptor in clay before he began doing his more recent work. It was Marcel Duchamps, I believe he told me, who began calling his pieces "mobiles," and it was after a visit to the studio of Mondrian, a Dutch painter in Paris, that he began doing some of his most startling work. Seeing Mondrian's white rectangles with horizontal and vertical lines drawn through and filled in with primary colors, he decided it would be fine if those rectangles were to vibrate. He went back to his own studio and began to work it out. Now many of his pieces move within their frames. He is doing some things for a production of "Socrates" to be given at Hartford, Conn., shortly, and when last seen was in search of a blacksmith he wanted to do some work for him.

Hope to Make Globe Theater Company a Chicago Institution

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

A theater intended ultimately to make Chicago the center of Shakespearean interest in America appeared nearer yesterday as the Chicago Bar association's special committee went forward with plans to promote interest in a permanent organization of the Old Globe Elizabethan players at a luncheon in Henrici's restaurant.

This company's tabloid productions of Shakespearean plays brought record crowds to the Old Globe theater in the English village of A Century of Progress last summer. On Jan. 26 the players will end an engagement at the Studebaker theater and go on tour. Shakespearean enthusiasts hope a permanent organization may return them to Chicago.

De Wolf Hopper, dean of American actors, chief among the enthusiasts at the luncheon, declared that the Shakespeare presented by the Globe players is "the real thing, and, further, is not commercial."

"This permanent theater is something that must be done," the actor continued. "Think of seeing Shakespeare today as he would have had us see it were he alive."

Introduced by George F. Anderson, chairman of the bar association committee, as "the man who put Shakespeare back into Shakespeare," Thomas Wood Stevens, director of the players, touched on the general plan for the permanent theater.

"We want a theater which people are starving for, one which they will want to come into again and again," Mr. Stevens said. "It is not a matter of enormous enterprise, but a comparatively modest shop where we can do things freely.

"We must find a place in which we can give an atmosphere such as we had at the Fair. None of these things is impossible, but they are all difficult. It is imperative that we hang together and keep on working until we have developed the idea we have started."

Among those at the luncheon were Municipal Judge John J. Lyle, Judge Ross C. Hall of the Appellate court, Sidney Gorham, former president of the Chicago Bar association, Joseph T. Ryerson, John R. Thompson, restaurant operator, and Mrs. Charles R. Walgreen.

Mr. Walgreen, owner of the drug store chain, and a student of Shakespeare, last night bought out the entire theater so that 1,700 of his employés might attend "Twelfth Night" and Marlowe's "Dr. Faustus."

Trained Baby Roller Skates at 15 Months

Psychologist Avers 'Don't' Does No Harm.

New York, Jan. 15.—(AP)—A 15 month old girl climbed seven foot inclines, dropped unaided from four and a half foot heights, and roller skated today before an audience of psychologists and doctors.

Her twin sister Margie, unable to perform any of these feats, was present as a laboratory exhibit of the untrained child.

Florie, the agile child, and her identical twin have put in an eight-hour-five-day week since birth at the normal child development clinic in the babies' hospital of the Columbia-Presbyterian Medical center developing for scientists the latest theories of child training.

In their brief lives Florie and Margie have upset some of the earlier rules laid down by specialists for the proper training of the young.

Dr. Myrtle B. McGraw, who has had the twins in daily charge, said that her studies indicate that some of the advice handed out to parents has been "bunk," specifically the idea of undisciplined freedom for children and the warning never to say "don't."

"Let's look at this idea of freedom," said Dr. McGraw. "I will permit a baby, which has just learned to reach for an object, to pull out and push in a bureau drawer as often as it wants in order to develop its sensory experience.

"But to let your 2 year old child who doesn't need that type of sensory experience pull out and push in a bureau drawer just because it wants to is downright damaging to growth.

"At the age of 2 the child should be discriminating and adjusting himself to his environment. By giving him that so-called freedom you're not forcing him to discriminate as he will have to do later in life."

Dr. McGraw's study of Florie's behavior with a kiddy car demonstrated, she said, the lulls in development which she described as "just as important as increment and advancement." Months ago Florie could propel the car across the room. Now that she is learning to walk she sits motionless when placed in the car.

"I get the most improvement," said the doctor, "when I select the thing that is developing most in my babies and pick on that and let the others go. I think you do the child damage to insist on its advancing when it is in one of those lulls."

RED STEFAN

By PATRICIA WENTWORTH.

SYNOPSIS.

Stephen Enderby, an Englishman, had lived as a boy on the Russian estate of his stepfather, and grew up with the large brood of children of a peasant family. When his mother died he went to live with his guardian in England. After the revolution in Russia, as Stefan Ivanovitch, he became a "secret observer" for England adopting various peasant rôles to hide his identity. Now Stephen has inherited the fortune of his guardian and wants to quit his hazardous work. He is escaping out of Fronsk when he meets and rescues Elizabeth Radin, the widow of an executed engineer. Though English her husband was half Russian. She is flying from the advances of Commissar Petroff, who is also after a secret formula of her husband's. Stephen takes her with him and tells her his history. They stop at the home of the grandparent of the peasant children Stephen had grown up with, who believe Stephen to be one of their many grandchildren. Stephen tells them Elizabeth is his wife and her name is Varvara. Irina, a beautiful communist, wanted Stephen herself and resents Elizabeth. Scenting danger Stephen departs with Elizabeth for the border, stopping en route at Fronsk where they are overtaken by Petroff and Irina. Stephen plans to outwit them by denouncing Elizabeth claiming he never suspected her identity until she began to talk in her sleep. Petroff believes his story, as does Irina. Elizabeth is put in prison, thinking Stephen has turned against her. She is called before Petroff. Stephen is with him. Petroff dismisses all officers, wanting to do all the police business himself and keep Elizabeth. Then Stephen knocks him cold and ties him up. Stephen disguises himself and Elizabeth.

INSTALMENT XXVII.

TRICKERY.

Elizabeth sat down. She shut her eyes when she was told to shut them, and felt Stephen's fingers busy with her face. He was staining her skin as he had stained his own, rubbing the stuff well in and then dabbing things here and there. He talked all the time.

"I was afraid you might think I had let you down, but of course I hoped you wouldn't. If I hadn't got to Petroff first he'd probably have arrested me, too. You do see that I was bound to stop them arresting me, don't you?"

"O, yes," said Elizabeth.

He drew back a little and looked at her critically.

"I hope I haven't made you too brown. You didn't say that 'O, yes' as if you meant it. Here's your wig. It's quite clean inside. You said 'O, yes' exactly as if you meant you did it to save your own skin, you swab!' Is that what you thought?" He was adjusting the wig as he spoke.

Her eyes met his and fell. It was like being stared down by a terrifying stranger. His eyes were strange under the shaggy brows. But the voice and the hands were Stephen's voice and Stephen's hands. The voice was gentle.

"I expect it was bound to look like that," he said, reassuringly. "Once I was arrested, you wouldn't have had a chance. Don't you see that? As long as I could keep on the right side of Petroff there were bound to be chances all the time. This is one of them. I couldn't have done anything if I'd been in prison, too, or even if I'd been under suspicion. I had to go the whole hog. The great thing was to keep you out of the hands of the G. P. U. Once they've got you they never let go. Fortunately Petroff wanted to run the show himself—if there was any credit going, he didn't want to share it. I told him you'd probably die just to spite him if he let you go to the political prison, so he wangled that. I persuaded him to have you here so that he could deal with you all on his own without any prison officials to cramp his style. The fact is they want that process of Radin's, and if Petroff managed to get it out of you nobody would ask any questions about how he got it. Give me that handkerchief from your neck—it'll help to keep the wig on."

He knotted it under her chin and then suddenly held up the mirror.

Elizabeth uttered a faint exclamation. She saw a face which she would not have known, framed in dark greasy hair, just streaked with gray. Coarse eyebrows covered her own and concealed their delicate arch. A strip of very dirty sticking plaster crossed the left cheek whilst three large warts adorned forehead, nose, and chin.

"And now we've got to hurry," said Stephen.

He made a bundle of the newspapers, taking care that nothing fell from them. When he had pushed them into the stove and watched them burn he came back to the table and began to put away all the things he had used. He was slipping the canvas roll into his pocket when Elizabeth suddenly caught him by the arm. He turned his head, and so for the moment they stood and listened.

Some one was coming up the stair.

Firm, light steps coming up the stair. No policeman ever walked like that. There was a knock upon the door, and in the same moment the handle was turned and shaken, and Irina's voice said:

"Let me in, Petroff. Why have you locked the door?"

Stephen's hand came up empty out of his pocket. He put his arm around Elizabeth for a moment and, turning his face from the door, he laughed and said:

"Shall I let her in, comrade?"

Stephen released himself from Elizabeth, pushed her gently away, walked around the table without making a sound, and spoke in Petroff's rasping tones.

"Tell her she can't come in!"

Irina raised her voice in some annoyance.

"Why can't I come in? You've got that woman there. Open the door! I want to speak to Stefan."

Stephen walked to the door and leaned against it. He sounded very persuasive as he said:

"Well, here I am. If you've got anything to say to me, I hope it's something nice."

"Why?" said Irina shortly. She twisted the handle again and rattled it.

Stephen laughed a lazy laugh.

"Why? Why, because we've got a damned obstinate woman here, and I'd like something pleasant for a change." He dropped his voice and spoke into the crack of the door. "Irina——"

"What is it?"

"I want to come and see you."

"Do you?" Her tone was soft.

"When will you be in?"

"All the evening."

"Will you be alone?"

"I can be."

From the other side of the room came Petroff's voice again. The illusion was so perfect that Elizabeth started and looked around to see if the commissar had broken in upon them. Petroff's voice said angrily:

"Go away—I'm busy! Don't you know when you're not wanted?"

And immediately Stephen was whispering at the door.

"You'd better go. We can't talk here. I'll come when I can."

There was a pause. Then Irina said softly:

"Come quickly."

They heard her step going away down the stair.

Irina's last faint footstep died away. The house door shut with a dull bang.

Stephen turned around with a soundless whistle.

"That was a near thing!"

He took Elizabeth by the arm and hurried her into the back room. As her foot crossed the threshold she felt the old sick fear. The light sprang on in the ceiling and she looked instinctively at the big bed in the corner. It was as if she expected to see the terrible old woman who had slept there—white scanty hair flying loose, thin lips drawn back in a sneer, jaws mumbling out cruel words, and red rimmed eyes aglitter with malice. Instead there lay propped up against the pillows a mummied Petroff, rolled up stiff and stark, with the sheet over his head. The blankets lay in a pile on the floor.

Stephen nicked the strongest with his knife to cut the hem, and then tore it into strips, which he knotted into a rope. Over the last knot he nodded to Elizabeth.

"Put out the light and shut the door to the other room."

She saw the mummy heave. Then the darkness came with a rush, and immediately the wind blew cold from the opened window. Such a horror fell upon Elizabeth that she had no fear left for the drop to the yard.

She climbed eagerly out upon the sill with the blanket rope about her waist and met the bitter air with relief.

"Steady now," said Stephen, whispering. "Let your eyes get accustomed to the dark. There's snow on the room below—that will help you. Get as far as the gutter and then let yourself down gently. It's quite easy."

Doris Blake Answers

Left Early.

"Dear Miss Blake: I invited a boy to come and see me. He came but stayed only an hour. He said he had to go to a house party. Would you bother with a boy like that?

"BINNIE."

If it were so that he had the other engagement he should have so explained and asked to be excused, making a date for some evening.

YOU AREN'T GOING TO LET SKEEZIX MAKE THE TRIP TO MILITARY SCHOOL ALONE, ARE YOU?
YOU MEAN BECAUSE OF THE INQUISITIVE WOMAN IN BLACK, PHYLLIS? NO! I WOULDN'T THINK OF IT.
I'M PROBABLY FOOLISH ABOUT IT. NOTHING HAS HAPPENED SINCE SHE TALKED TO HIM.
NO! I GUESS IT WAS JUST A CASE OF SUPER-CURIOSITY. I'VE QUIT FRETTING ABOUT IT.
SAY, YOU'RE GOING TO MILITARY SCHOOL. YOU WON'T HAVE ANY USE FOR ALL THAT STUFF.
WELL IF I CAN'T USE IT IT WILL BE GOOD TRADIN' STOCK.

Sees America as Stabilizing Uneasy World

BY ELEANOR PAGE.

Malcolm W. Davis, director of the Geneva Research center at Geneva, Switzerland, spoke on recent European developments before the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations at the Palmer house yesterday. He dealt mainly with France, Italy, and central Europe, and the results of the United States' policy of neutrality in that sector.

Mrs. Walter Lichtenstein, presiding in the absence of her husband, who is president of the council, introduced Mr. Davis, who in addition to being director of the research center, which is maintained jointly by the Carnegie Endowment and the Rockefeller Foundation, is European representative of the league of nations and a director of the Council on Foreign Relations in New York.

Mr. Davis said the old balance of power has been unstable since early in the century, and there are now three power areas—Europe, Asia, and the Americas, with the stable influence of the United States balancing the other two.

Mr. Davis looks upon the France-Italy agreement as paving the way to better political understanding between those countries and Germany and England.

The larger countries do not want to be drawn into difficulties by the smaller states, and at the same time the little states are occupied with how to avoid being on the losing side in case of trouble between large countries, for they know well the penalties of being on the side of the big fellow who loses, the speaker declared.

Mr. Davis concluded with an explanation of American policy, and declared that the continued interest of this country in foreign affairs has been heartening to Europe as well as a steadying influence.

Loses His Girl to a Football Hero—Almost

BY DORIS BLAKE.

It isn't always safe to take your beloved to a country club dance where a number of your old college confrere's foregather.

Anyway, that's what "Bill's" thinking these mournful days. He took his gal to a fancy ball and lost her—almost. One of his old school pals had an eye for the same type of beauty that attracted Bill.

One chap and another claimed her for a dancing partner while William morosely leaned against the door jamb, looking on. Then, late in the evening, he looked and found his fair one had deserted the floor entirely and with her went the season's football hero.

He found her in somewhat of a huddle with the football idol and Bill undertook then and there to denounce her in loud and ringing tones. Eventually he did go home alone.

There followed evenings of thunderous silence when the tingle of the phone means any one calling but the desired voice. Each is bewailing the silence.

He wants to call and say he's sorry—but the girl made such a fool of him at the party before all his old pals he can't do it. The girl believes she's the one that was made the fool of before the crowd.

BY MARY MEADE.

There was a woman in our town and she was wondrous wise. She had the slimmest kind of a housekeeping allowance, but she was noted among all her neighbors as the queen of cake-makers. The joke of the whole thing was that the smart lady had only one cake recipe—for a simple, fluffy egg cake of the most inexpensive kind. But after she had baked her cake—then wonders started. For in her recipe box this wise cook kept a wealth of recipes for fillings and frostings—scores of different sorts which rescued her simple cake from monotony and made it the toast of the town.

Generously she has loaned them to us for the decking out of inexpensive cakes of our own. First comes:

COCONUT SEA FOAM FROSTING.
2 egg whites, unbeaten
Dash of salt
1½ cups brown sugar, firmly packed
1-3 cup water
1 teaspoon vanilla
1½ cups moist sweetened coconut

Blend the egg whites, salt, sugar, and water in the top of a double boiler, beating with a rotary beater (not over heat) until well mixed. Place the pan over briskly boiling water and beat constantly with the egg beater, cooking for seven minutes or until the frosting will stand in peaks. Remove from the heat and add the vanilla. Continue beating until the frosting is thick enough to spread without running away. With a spatula spread it between the layers and over the top and sides of a simple cake. Over the frosting between layers and over the whole cake sprinkle the coconut while the icing is still soft. There will be enough of this frosting to cover a nine inch two layer cake, a large sized loaf cake, or two dozen little cup cakes.

LEMON COCONUT FILLING.
1 cup confectioners' sugar
1 egg, slightly beaten
¼ cup lemon juice
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup shredded coconut

Combine all the ingredients except the coconut, cooking them in the top of a double boiler. This will take about five minutes, during which time the filling should be constantly stirred. When thick and smooth remove from the heat and stir in the coconut. This is enough to go between two good sized cake layers.

COCONUT MOROCCO FROSTING.
1½ cups brown sugar, firmly packed
2 egg whites, unbeaten
⅓ teaspoon salt
1 one ounce square unsweetened chocolate
1-3 cup water
1 teaspoon vanilla
1½ cups moist sweetened coconut

Combine the sugar, egg whites, salt, and water in the top of a double boiler. Before putting over the heat mix with a rotary egg beater until well blended. Place over boiling water and cook for about seven minutes, beating continuously. When the frosting will stand in peaks remove from the heat and fold in the vanilla and the melted and cooled chocolate. Do not mix or beat, but spread at once on the cake. Sprinkle the coconut over the frosting while it's still soft.

Children, Too, Dislike Being Interrupted

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

Place—the Johnson's home.
Time—after dinner.

"Helen," says George Johnson to his wife, "I forgot to tell you—I met Buck and Hank Bergson just as I was coming out of the office. It's five years since I've seen them, so we decided to . . ."

"O, mother! Can't I get a new fountain pen? I dropped this on the point today," breaks in the daughter of the Johnson's.

"Betsy," say her mother, "don't interrupt. Your father's talking. Go on, George."

Place—the same.
Time—ten minutes later.

"And so, mother, we stopped at the drug store and there were Jenny and Jack, and they were having a sundae, and . . ."

"Helen," broke in Betsy's father, "did you call up the laundry about that missing shirt of mine?"

"Just a minute, George, Betsy's telling me something," says Betsy's mother.

Or does she? She should if she would say it to her daughter when her husband is talking—but does she? Would you?

Do you listen as attentively to your children's talk as you do to that of your equals in age? Do you try, within human, common sense limits, of course, to avoid interrupting your child as you would a grown person?

Children appreciate and respond to an appreciation of their position as human beings.

Frock Has Youthful Air

WOMAN'S OR MISS' DRESS.

A youthful air marks this simple type of daytime dress. The material used in the original model was a silk and wool mixture in a rich rust shade with plain brown contrast. A plain, bright, crinkly silk crêpe or one of the printed silk crêpes will be equally charming.

The pattern, No. 2695, comes in sizes 14, 16, and 18 years and 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measure.

Learn to Bend Gracefully and Be More Agile

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Women around home perform dozens of duties daily that they could just as well be converting into lessons of grace and pliability while they're at them. Take bending, alone. Perhaps you're not conscious of how often you bend in a day's household tasks. A friend of mine declared she never bent down. Immediately, thereafter, she stopped to take a vegetable pan from a shelf low down in a cabinet.

Next moment she stooped to turn on the gas in the lower oven. Again, she reached down for a mixing bowl on the lowest kitchen cabinet shelf. We didn't count how often she picked threads and paper scraps off the floor, nor when she tidied Junior's, yeah and Senior's room how often she made contact with the rug.

There's a simple trick to bending which gives one superlative grace with its consistent practice. A great way to save your face, too, should your purse contents suddenly spill all over the street and you have to rescue nickels and quarters and compacts and lipsticks. You don't need to come up red and panting once you learn the bending trick. You don't need to go down on all fours. Nor flop over, making anything but a graceful picture.

Try this trick once and see if it doesn't suggest great possibilities in acquiring a graceful bend. Get within reaching distance of the object to be picked up. Have one foot a short step ahead of the other. Then sink down. Exactly that—sink down easily.

Come back up by giving an up push with the rear foot. Keep head and back as upright as you can while you sink and rise. Incidentally, this is a snappy little exercise whether you have to pick anything or not. Kinda takes the rustiness out of the knees.

Try it and see how much your knees need it. Lent's coming on and you'll need knees that don't wobble and totter when you sink and rise on them. The ability of those knees after all, is pretty much of a test of the youth that is still yours.

Cruise to Call at Lonely Isles in South Atlantic

Chicagoans to Sail Friday from New York.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

"For to admire and for to see,
For to behold this world so wide."

Kipling's British soldiers sang these lines in one of the immorta! "Barrack-Room Ballads." So might the dozen and a half Chicagoans who are embarking in New York on Friday on the gleaming white Empress of Australia for strange seas and far ports.

Armed with everything except guns, they are going into Africa, to Mombasa of the thunderous sound, to Zanzibar and Madagascar, then back across the southern ocean to South American capitals and the West Indies. The Statue of Liberty will not loom into view again until April 24.

Considering the character of the cruise, it is no wonder that it has enlisted several of Chicago's most experienced travelers. On board will be Robert Allerton and his foster son, John W. Gregg, Col. and Mrs. Robert W. Stewart, and Mr. and Mrs. Scott S. Durand, who have circled the globe twice and penetrated the interiors of most continents.

Still others going are George S. Middleton, his son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. George S. Middleton Jr., and their daughter, Miss Frances Middleton; Henry Newell, Mrs. Ester Cornell, the L. K. Coopers, and W. F. Dunham.

After leaving Cape Town on March 18, one of the most out-of-the-way experiences of the whole cruise awaits these vacationists. The Empress of Australia will put in at Tristan da Cunha, a British group of three small volcanic islands in the South Atlantic ocean 1,500 miles southwest of St. Helena and reputed to be the world's loneliest islands.

The total area of the three is only 44 square miles, while the largest and only inhabited island has a total population of just 217. Most of these residents are descendants of the British soldiers who were stationed at St. Helena during Napoleon's captivity, or settlers from whaling ships. In 1885 they faced extinction when all but 15, only four of these men, were lost at sea.

The cruise itinerary calls first at Madeira, which is wrapped in the atmosphere of Columbus' time, then moves on to Athens and the Holy Land with a visit to the Mount of Olives, Garden of Gethsemane, and Bethlehem, Mecca of all Christendom. In Cairo memories of the great Saladin will be awakened for the party as the members mount Citadel hill to gaze out over the fairylike city.

At Port Sudan the ship will pick up the Durands and the other members of the party that have taken the shore excursion up the Nile via Luxor. Across the equator there will be a stop at Mombasa, which in its curiously mixed population presents a mosaic unique and rich in human interest. Then there will be the bright island of Zanzibar and Madagascar, the third largest island in the world and celebrated for its travelers' tree that carries in its hollow leaf base more than a pint of distilled water condensed from moisture in the air.

Reaching South Africa and Durban, indeed a garden city, all of the members of the cruise party will want to have a ride with one of the ricksha boys who wear feathered headdresses symbolic of speed and widespread horns of oxen, signs of surety.

From Durban a number of the vacationists are making a side trip to Victoria falls, the great falls of the Zambesi river, a view of which is the unrealized ambition of thousands. The native name translated "the smoke that thunders" more nearly conveys perhaps the poetry, beauty and majesty of the great cataract.

From Cape Town, filled with history and romance in its old fashioned squares and streets, the Empress will take off on its return crossing of the Atlantic with Buenos Aires as its destination. Not by accident did Ibañez lay the early scenes of "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse" in Buenos Aires when he wanted to portray a wealthy society with foundations of grazing herds and ranchos in the back country.

Montevideo, Rio de Janeiro, Kingston, and Havana will be further ports of call before the Empress of Australia moves slowly again into New York harbor.

Much of the African interest of this cruise awaits Col. George T. Langhorne, who left Chicago yesterday to join his friend, Maj. Francis T. Colby of Boston, and sail from New York Saturday on the Conte di Savoia. Landing at Naples a week later Col. Langhorne and Maj. Colby, a veteran African explorer, will board an airplane for a trip up the Nile. They will make the village of Kantala their headquarters for a big game expedition. It will be late spring by the time Col. Langhorne returns to Chicago.

Courting Old Man Winter rather than balmy temperatures, Mr. and Mrs. Donald B. Douglas with their young son are embarking today on the S. S. Washington for Havre. After a brief stop in Paris they will go to St. Moritz in the Swiss Alps for several weeks of tobogganing, skiing, and snowshoeing.

St. Moritz, famous for its baths as well as its snow, has been attracting fashionables ever since 1875. The great slide, Cresta Run, is there; also Engadine lake and the leaning tower that makes the visitor think of Pisa in Italy. Of medieval vintage St. Moritz refused last year to tear down the tower or straighten it. Instead it spent a considerable sum to make its present foundation more secure.

With their baby son, Montgomery Ward Thorne, a nurse and a valet, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon C. Thorne are embarking Jan. 25 on the S. S. President Coolidge on the first lap of a trip that will take them around the world. Honolulu, the orient, India, Egypt, and Europe all have a place on their four months' itinerary.

New Quilt Block Is Destined for Great Popularity

Honeycomb.

BY NANCY CABOT.

"Honeycomb" is a recent addition to the ranks of blocks which is destined to rival the popularity of older designs. It is a pattern which is certain to be striking, no matter whether it is used to design an allover pieced quilt or a coverlet of alternate pieced and plain blocks. Even in a special arrangement of blocks the pattern has an unusual charm and appeal all its own.

Another edition is out—Nancy Cabot's second book of quilts is ready. It contains 96 more illustrations of favorite quilt patterns, together with one complete pattern, "The Rose Basket." Price, 5 cents; by mail, 7 cents. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, One South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

A FRIEND IN NEED

Needs Clothes for Voyage.

Mr. X is 62 years old, unemployed and handicapped by blindness in one eye. He has relatives in another country, to whom he wrote recently asking if he might come to their small farm. They have agreed to accept him, whereas in this country he faces an old age on relief and finally a public home for the aged. Transportation has been arranged, but Mr. X will be unable to make the long journey in the scanty clothing he now wears. He will need an overcoat size 42, suit size 42, shoes 8½, underwear 46, socks 10 and shirts 15½. His return to his native country will provide at least a home for his old age and relieve this country of another public charge.

Paintings of 1934 Fair Go on Exhibition Today

Twenty-five scenes of the 1934 edition of A Century of Progress, painted by prominent artists, will be placed on exhibition today at the Chicago Lighting Institute Art galleries, 20 North Wacker drive. Among the artists whose canvases will be shown are Elmer Forsberg, Otto Hake, Edward T. Grigware, Tunis Ponsen, Carl Preussl, Victor Poole, Rudolph Ingerle and Otto Koch.

Antiquarians Will See Four Noted Exhibits

Annual Reception Jan. 25 at Art Institute.

John U. Nef, Mrs. William A. Nitze, and Mrs. William Eisendrath Jr. are some of those who plan to attend the affair tonight.

Dearborn Alumnae Meet Tomorrow.

What pleasant memories of the day when they were in their teens and most of life was ahead of them will be recalled tomorrow when the women who received all or part of their education at the old Dearborn seminary meet for their fifty-fourth annual meeting!

These meetings always are delightful occasions, especially to those who when they were girls saw each other every day, and now that they are grandmothers see each other perhaps only once a year at their school reunion.

Tomorrow's meeting and luncheon will be held at the Blackstone hotel and among those who have made arrangements to be there are Mrs. Clifford Williams, the oldest living alumna of Dearborn seminary; Mrs. Ferdinand Peck, Mrs. Howard Shaw, Mrs. Eugene H. Garnett, Mrs. Charles H. ReQua, Miss Jeanie Adsit, Miss Jessica Jenks, and Miss Carrie Blair Neely.

Bennett Alumnae Sponsor Dance Recital.

To judge by the numerous plans for benefits revealed in the last week, the late winter is rivaling the pre-holiday season in charity interest. Yesterday afternoon at tea in the restaurant at 900 North Michigan avenue the members of the Chicago Bennett club announced that they had taken over as a scholarship benefit the boxes and a block of main floor seats for the recital that Carola Goya, the Spanish dancer, is to give at 3 o'clock the afternoon of Sunday, March 3, in Orchestra hall.

Miss Frances Weary, chic yesterday in wine colored velveteen, has been made the chairman of the benefit. Assisting her will be Mrs. Orton Elbert, president of the Chicago and suburban alumnae of the Bennett school, which is at Millbrook, N. Y.; Miss Katherine Healy, Mrs. Samuel Carson Pirie, Miss Veronese Beatty, Miss Virgene Richey, Mrs. Corey Blanchard, Miss Ruth Burns, Mrs. Nathan Davis, Mrs. Rene Travelletti, Mrs. Donald LaChance, and Mrs. William R. Abbott.

Farther north yesterday afternoon at the home of Miss Nettie Baumann at 430 Hawthorne place, there was a tea for Mrs. Virginia Judy Esterly, assistant to the president of Scripps college, an eight year old progressive minded college for women on the Pacific coast.

Mrs. Walter Miller and Mrs. Otto Schmidt presided at the tea table.

Mrs. Raymond Redheffer will open her residence at 1430 Lake Shore drive this morning at 11 o'clock for the second of three lectures by Dr. Hugo F. Simon. His subject this morning will be "The New Germany."

CONQUERING CONTRACT

By P. HAL SIMS

MORE EXAMPLES OF THREE-BIDS.

The final hand in yesterday's article brings up a point which I have already touched on, but perhaps not in a sufficiently definite manner. Whenever, after an opening three-bid in a major suit, RESPONDER'S FIRST RESPONSE SHOWS AN ACE, BUT OPENING BIDDER IMMEDIATELY SIGNS OFF BY BIDDING FOUR IN HIS OWN SUIT, the responder must assume the initiative in a manner not devolving on him under other circumstances, if he has certain other values in his hand. Opener's sign-off tells him in the most transparent manner that the ace he has shown is a complete duplication—that it fails to remove a loser, that he is void of that suit, and that he dare not make a probe because as far as he knows the hand will still only deliver four-odd. If responder has either a second ace, or else the king of both the unbid suits, he should make another move. If a second ace, bid that ace at the level of five—it must necessarily be lower in rank than the trump suit, so that opener can still sign off at five. If the two kings, bid four no trumps, permitting him to now bid the full limit of the hand or else probe at the five-level if he has some reason for doing so. But do not make any such move on the strength of merely one of the unbid kings, as that may be as much of a duplication as your useless ace. Of course, if you have the king or queen of trumps and another king, then you should make this move [four no trumps]. That would be the time when the opener, lacking a high trump honor and expecting to lose it, would probe rather than bid forthwith the limit of his hand. Now if you have the right king outside the trump suit, he will ask for it and be able either to bid six in his suit or else sign off at five. Your trump honor in this instance will make the hand as safe at five as he knew it to be at four when he opened the bidding. It is just too bad when both your ace and also your outside king are duplications—but at least you will have found this out in time. If you revive the bidding by saying four no trumps, and your partner probes for an off king and you deny it, now he really knows that you have a trump honor [because your assumption of responsibility in driving the bidding to the five level was explained neither by a second ace nor by both unbid kings]. This trump honor will be an entry; it may enable him to make use of your so far useless ace. If he has not got two immediate losers in the same suit in his hand, he can now bid the small slam.

Sp. A x Di. —
Hs. A K Q J x x x Cl. Q J 10 9

Three hearts. If the response is three no trumps, he bids four clubs. If the reply is four spades, showing both black kings, he bids six hearts. If five clubs, he signs off at five hearts.

If the first response were four diamonds, he must sign off at four hearts. Opener cannot make another move. However, responder may be able to do so, as just explained, having been told that opener is void of diamonds.

If the first response were four clubs, now probe by bidding five clubs. If the reply is six clubs, which denies the king of spades, bid six hearts. If it is five spades, showing both black kings, bid seven hearts.

If the Bidding Is Opened Against You.

It may happen that you pick up an honest-to-goodness three-bid, but you are not the dealer, and the bidding is opened against you. Such opening bid is not necessarily a psychic. It may well have been made on a hand of extremely aggressive type, a distributional freak not unlike your own hand, though probably weaker in high cards. Be that as it may, do not be dismayed. Disregard that bid and make the facts known to your partner by bidding two more than is necessary. One spade, four hearts; one club, three diamonds. This says: "I would have made a three-bid had I been permitted to open the bidding." This will spike psychics and clear away anticipatory interference. It is useless to set aside these triple jumps for preëmptive or sacrifice overcalls. Deceptive bids of ever varying kinds, psychic barricades, if you like, serve this purpose far better. With not quite a three-bid, either make a simple jump overcall or a double of the strategic type.

19 TROTZKY AIDS PLEAD GUILTY TO TERRORIST PLOT

Zinoviev, Kamenev Admit Subversive Activity.

MOSCOW, Jan. 15.—(AP)—Leo Kamenov and Gregory Zionviev, former powerful communist leaders, and 17 persons associated with them, who went on trial yesterday at Leningrad for participating in the counter-revolutionary group which inspired the murder of Sergei Kirov, all pleaded guilty today.

Kamenev, Zinoviev and seven others of lesser prominence than the two famous old bolsheviks were charged with participating in a Moscow secret counter-revolutionary center.

The remainder of the defendants were charged with participation in both Moscow and Leningrad counter-revolutionary centers, out of which grew the plan for Kirov's murder last December. Leon Trotzky, exiled red leader, is alleged to have been one of the "brains" of the plot.

New Evidence Uncovered.

The indictment said no proof existed that the Moscow center had directed or agreed to the terroristic murder of Kirov, but that they stimulated the terroristic ideas of members of the group.

Kamenev admitted, according to announcements officiall made, that he participated in the Moscow center until 1932, and said he did not fight with enough energy against the decomposition of the group, which grew out of a fight within the communist party.

The alleged counter-revolutionaries were ordered to trial, it was announced, because new evidence had been received since Kamenev and Zinoviev were sent before the special council of the peoples commisariat of domestic affairs which, it had been indicated, would order their exile. Evidence available at that time, it was announced, did not justify their trial on charges of terrorism. The new evidence included testimony by N. P. Bakaieff and others of those arrested.

Reveal Testimony of Aid.

One hundred and seventeen persons already have paid with their lives for alleged plotting against the soviet since the murder of Kirov. Whether the new group of accused persons faced the death penalty was not revealed.

A transcript of the testimony of G. Evdokimov, who went on trial with Zinoviev and Kamenev, included his confession that he had been at fault in opposing the program of the communist party. He said he felt that "Zinoviev, Kamenev, myself, and others were guilty of systematically intoxicating the people and must be responsible now."

Evdokimov testified that he and associates of the counter-revolutionary group were separated from the real life of the country and the party.

"We were blind to our relationship with the party," he said, "and did not recognize its success."

Tells Plot Against Stalin.

He said they called collectivization "lunacy" and pronounced industrialization a failure. He added they were enemies of the workers just as much as the foreign bourgeoisie.

He admitted, according to the transcript, that the counter-revolutionary group criticized communist party control and "tried to insinuate against Stalin."

He said Zinoviev had told him "the workers' movement has now been transferred to the second internationale."

Busy with collecting unfavorable facts to use against the communist party, Evdokimov said the counter-revolutionaries worked for a cleft in the party leadership and circulated poison "which helped to kill Kirov."

He was reported to have said that any sentence imposed upon him by the court would be accepted in the belief that he merited it.

1,100 Delegates Cheer Stalin.

A prolonged ovation tonight greeted Dictator Joseph Stalin's election as the first member of the presidium [controlling committee] of the all-Russian congress of soviets, which opened tonight in the great Andrew hall of the Kremlin palace.

Eleven hundred delegates leaped to their feet and cheered the dictator, clad in a simple khaki uniform, for many minutes, compelling him to rise again and again, to acknowledge the applause.

Also elected to the presidium, amid unrestrained enthusiasm, were Michail Kalinin, president of the union of Socialist soviet republics, Klement Voroshiloff, commissar for war and navy, Lazare Kaganovich, secretary of the all-union council of trade unions, and Viacheslav Molotoff, president of the soviet of people's commissars.

In the Ukraine and in various other republics of soviet Russia, meanwhile, local congresses were in session in preparation for the all-union congress of soviets to be held in Moscow on Jan. 25.

GIRL KNOCKED DOWN BY DUKE OF KENT'S CAR

LEBOURGET, France, Jan. 15.—(AP)—An automobile containing the duke and duchess of Kent knocked down a little girl and injured her slightly today while they were hurrying to catch a plane here for London.

The girl, Marguerite Ollier, 5 years old, was crossing the street to school when the car struck her. She was covered with bruises, but after emergency treatment at a hospital went home.

The duchess, the former Princess Marina of Greece, and the duke were alarmed by the accident, but a member of the British embassy staf induced them to continue while he remained behind to see that the child was taken to a hospital. He telephoned them at the airfield that the child was not seriously injured.

LEAGUE TO GIVE THE SAAR BACK TO GERMANY TODAY

Solution Is Seen to Major European Problems.

GENEVA, Jan. 15.—(AP)—A solemn session of the league of nations' council, it was announced this evening, will hear tomorrow the formal proclamation of the reannexation of the Saar to Germany.

Arrangements for the ceremony were made by the council's committee on Saar affairs, headed by Baron Pompeo Aloisi of Italy. Earlier today it recommended to the council that it act speedily to return the territory to the reich.

See European Problems Aided.

As league of nations observers, with but few dissenting voices, predicted early disposition of the Saar would hasten solution of Europe's major problems, Pierre Laval, French foreign minister, announced he would speak briefly at tomorrow's council meeting to say that France had pledged herself to abide by the outcome of the voting and bows to the result.

The clearcut German victory in the plebiscite was regarded as giving greater importance to the visit Laval and Premier Pierre-Etienne Flandin of France will make to London Jan. 31.

British and French leaders at that time, it is believed, will seek common ground for negotiations with Germany, particularly in regard to disarmament and the reich's entrance into European security pacts.

Doubt German Return to League.

Unofficial German quarters close to the Hitler régime this evening voiced doubt as to whether the Saar vote would hasten Germany's return to the league, one spokesman expressing the belief that Germany is more likely to emulate the United States in cooperating closely on various questions, including disarmament, if she is assured of her equality rights in armaments.

The German victory greatly strengthened Adolf Hitler, in the opinion of most Geneva observers, and reinforced Germany's position among the continent's great powers. The German chancellor's post-plebiscite broadcast was generally deemed conciliatory in nature, and hence likely to facilitate settlement of problems growing out of the recent Franco-Italian accords.

ILLINOIS DEMOCRATIC CONGRESSMEN TO PICK A CHAIRMAN TODAY

Washington, D. C., Jan. 15.—[Special.]—The nineteen Illinois Democratic members of the house of representatives have been summoned for a meeting tomorrow afternoon to choose a chairman and discuss forthcoming legislation.

The meeting was called by Representative A. J. Sabath, who, it appears, has the inside track for the chairmanship. It was said that Sabath, who is dean of the house, is also a candidate from the Illinois-Wisconsin zone for a post on the steering committee.

The delegation will also select a member of the congressional committee and discuss the choice of an assistant whip for the Democratic side. The whip is Representative Patrick J. Boland [Dem., Pa.].

Sabath said that the group would discuss the proposed sale of the sanitary district canals for $90,000,000, slum eradication and housing, and an air mail port in Chicago.

The latter plan is embodied in a bill introduced into the house this session by Sabath. According to the plan, the government would purchase all lands in Chicago located between Ashland avenue on the west, Loomis street on the east, 22d street on the north, and the Chicago river on the south.

BROOKHART OFF U.S. PAY ROLL 1ST TIME IN 8 YEARS

$69,000 Paid Him Alone; Famed as Nepotist.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 15.—[Special.]—Former Senator Smith Wildman Brookhart of Iowa today parted company with the federal government's pay roll for virtually the first time in eight years.

The AAA handed the radical ex-senator his last pay check, and he retired to private life, having been given $9,308 for 20 months of work as a Russian "trade adviser" to the agricultural brain trust.

Senator Brookhart, who has established himself as a leading "pay roll statesman" during his official life here, has lived off the federal taxpayers since March 4, 1927, and, in his own name alone, has drawn $69,000 in pay from the treasury for eight years' work, an average of more than $8,600 a year.

Family Got $15,000 a Year.

In his heyday as a senator, however, Brookhart has had his family living off the government to the tune of $15,000 a year in pay alone, excluding miscellaneous income, such as stationery allowances and mileage payment which federal legislators have. At that time Brookhart had five relatives on federal payrolls.

Between 1927, when he was elected to the senate, and 1933, when his constituents "retired" him, Brookhart drew $10,000 a year in pay. Less than three months after, as a "lame duck" he had hobbled out of the senate, the New Deal picked him up and put him on the pay roll as a deserving "progressive" to advise on Russian trade matters.

His basic salary was to be $550 a month, minus a 15 per cent pay cut. In June, 1934, 13 months after he got the job, his pay cut was reduced to 10 per cent, and on January 1, two weeks ago, it sunk to 5 per cent. After deducting these cuts, the AAA paid him a total of $9,308 between May 25, 1933, and today, an average of about $465 a month.

No Trade, But He Stays.

Although there has been no Russian trade because of the Soviets' stubborn refusal to pay Russian debts, Brookhart has remained at his lucrative post in the AAA. Two years ago he was announcing that arrangements were complete for Russian purchases here of 500 million dollars' worth of goods.

When it finally dropped him today, the AAA explained that his functions had been taken over by the Export-Import bank, a New Deal institution which itself has been moribund for a year. Brookhart explained that he was retiring to private life to urge certain amendments to the AAA laws which, he admitted, have not found favor among the higher-ups at the AAA.

The end of Brookhart's career as a pay roll statesman recalled here today the fact that his defeat in 1932 was due in large part to his propensity for putting relatives on the federal pay roll. At one time he had the following relatives in the following federal positions:

Charles E. Brookhart, son, bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, $5,400; Smith W. Brookhart Jr., clerk in his father's office, $3,900; Edith Brookhart, daughter, clerk in her father's office, $2,200; Thomas L. Brookhart, brother, referee in federal bankruptcy cases, fees of approximately $2,500; O. E. Brookhart, brother, federal bailiff, fees, $1,000.

Together with the $10,000 a year which Brookhart was being paid as a senator, this list of relatives made the total federal money paid to the family, $25,020 a year.

LEAFS WHIP HAWKS, 3-2, ON CONACHER'S GOAL

RODAK SIGNED FOR CANZONERI FIGHT JAN. 31

May Get Ross Bout if He Wins.

BY FRENCH LANE.

The fistic pendulum swung slowly last night in the direction of a clash between two former TRIBUNE Golden Gloves champions in the next scrap that will have the world's lightweight professional crown at stake.

Late in the afternoon Leo Rodak agreed to fight Tony Canzoneri of New York at the Chicago Stadium on the night of Jan. 31. The engagement will be at 10 rounds and the weight at 133½ pounds.

The match has been hanging fire for nearly two weeks. A disagreement over weight caused the early hitch. Rodak first demanded that Canzoneri make 132 pounds. Canzoneri's handlers turned thumbs down to the demand. Next Rodak agreed to fight Canzoneri at 133 pounds. Again Canzoneri's manager said "No."

Reach Weight Compromise.

This caused the Stadium matchmakers, Jim Mullen and Nate Lewis to get up quite a heat despite the frigid elements which prevailed along Michigan boulevard.

Finally they pulled another half pound out of Rodak and there was a compromise at 133½ pounds.

If Rodak, a young kid who is climbing up the ladder with 22 professional victories in a row as his record, whips Canzoneri, a spectacular and brilliant older fellow who has survived thousands of punches and who by all the laws of nature and human endurance is slipping slowly down the ladder, then there is only one grand climax.

Ross vs. Rodak?

Barney Ross, pride of Chicago's ghetto and one of the greatest lightweight champions of all time must sooner or later—it will probably be as soon as the next summer months roll around—defend his world's lightweight championship against Rodak, three years his junior, a hard hitting determined Polish lad who during his sensational career as an amateur won Golden Glove championships in the flyweight, bantamweight and featherweight divisions.

Not many folks acquainted with fights or fighters will miss that one.

Yet there's a chance that the young Rodak, who has fairly skyrocketed toward the top heap of world's noted lightweights, may not be able to leap over the Canzoneri hurdle and go on to step up and shake his fist at Ross' nose and say, "Come on and fight me."

Canzoneri was the world's lightweight champion until Ross whipped and dethroned him in Chicago on June 23, 1933. He was not satisfied with that licking so Canzoneri fought Ross again, this time in New York four months later over the 15 round route.

Canzoneri Keeps Going.

This time Ross shellacked him with so much skill there was hardly a doubt in anybody's mind as to which was the better boy.

Still Canzoneri did not lose heart. He went on to whip Frankie Klick, knocked out Kid Chocolate and Cecil Payne, beat Cleto Locatelli, lost to Harry Dublinsky but came back to get revenge, and climaxed his efforts by knocking out Eddie Ran on Jan. 7.

Thus along comes Canzoneri to meet young Rodak in a match that will send one or the other out on a quest for the title. Rodak is due back from a short stay in California on Saturday and Canzoneri's traveling program will bring him into the loop on next Wednesday when he will establish a training camp.

IGNORE BAN ON ROSS

The announcement from the east yesterday to the effect that Barney Ross of Chicago, world's lightweight champion, had been suspended by the New York athletic commission until such time as he accepts a challenge from Lou Ambers of Herkimer, N. Y., was not taken seriously by Joe Triner, chairman of the Illinois athletic board.

"We will not concur with the New York commission in this ruling," Triner said.

Some persons closely acquainted with the situation took this to mean that a working agreement between the boxing commissions of New York and Illinois in effect since October of 1933 has suddenly been broken off.

Commissions Fail to Agree.

The first intimation of the break was foreseen when the two bodies failed to agree on the same title opponent for Ross early this month. New York named Ambers No. 1 challenger and Illinois selected Sammy Fuller, Boston, Mass.

"Barney and his managers, Sam Pian and Art Winch, proved good intentions when they signed with Joe Foley of the Stadium for a championship bout," Triner said. "It wasn't their fault if Canzoneri did not accept. When our commission was forced to sidetrack Canzoneri and name as a suitable contender we named Fuller.

Information Sent to New York.

"Manager Pian then informed this commission that he would agree to have Ross defend the crown against Fuller, Ambers or any other suitable foe as soon as a legitimate offer from a promoter was received. No such offer was received. All this information was sent to New York. Barney and his representatives abided by the Illinois ruling, and this state will not concur with New York in his suspension."

In the Wake of the News

BEARS AND GIANTS.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Jan. 15.—Coach Paul Schissler and his Chicago Cardinals, who departed for Chicago Monday night after their victory over the Chicago Bears, rate their fellow townsmen higher than the New York Giants, whom the Bears meet in post-season rivalry here Jan. 27.

In advance of their final coast appearance, Cardinals expressed confidence, hope of winning, but admitted the power of their rivals. On the other hand, they made desperate though futile efforts to engage New York Giants in the charity game at San Francisco Jan. 20.

Their eagerness went so far as to offer to play for the entire percentage of the gate receipts allotted to the competing elevens, with nothing to the loser. This offer was declined by 'Frisco sponsors, who thought Ernie Nevers' all-stars, because of Nevers' coast connections, might draw better.

This lesser estimate of the Giants may date back to the fall of 1928, when Oregon State, then coached by Schissler, met unbeaten New York U. eleven on which Ken Strong, present Giant ace, was star. Oregon State had been none too successful that fall. New York U. was considered invincible. Man for man, there seemed no comparison between the teams. The Wake remembers in our football forecast of picking New York U. Betting was 4 to 1, even money Oregon State wouldn't score.

To make matters worse, 15 of the 30 westerners were afflicted by flu, in varying stages, but all with temperatures, the day before the game. The situation was so serious Schissler went to Chick Meehan, New York coach, on the field and offered his regret at the poor showing his eleven might make, hoping it would not prevent future games. He was on the level. Meehan, sympathetic, offered to cut the quarters, but Schissler said, "Let's play the first half, and if it isn't too bad we'll play full time."

Schissler, as he relates the yarn, says there was no use making a pep talk. He simply said, "Boys, we've not done very well at home. Victory would atone for everything. I don't ask the impossible. Just do the best you can as long as you can. If that best happens to be good enough, it's a successful season."

New York received the kickoff, worked down the field slowly but surely, until Strong ran around left end for 47 yards. A touchdown quickly followed.

Jules Carlson, Oregon State guard, now with the Bears, heard the New Yorkers say "Let's make it 70." He retorted, "Just wait; we haven't had the ball yet."

After the oval had changed possession in a punting duel for the remainder of the quarter, Oregon State tried its first forward pass on the second play of the second period. It was completed for 40 yards. After that Howard Maple, a Peoria Central High product, rained passes at the easterners, and the half ended 19 to 7 for Oregon State. Maple, by the way, afterward was baseball catcher for Washington and is now in the Eastern league.

Oregon scored again in the second half and New York U. near the end, bringing a final count of 25 to 13. Meehan remarked to Schissler afterward: "Your fevered invalids looked all right to me."

That defeat probably cost New York U. the selection as a Rose Bowl contender against California.

Hollywood Hospitality.

Shortly after arrival of the Chicago Bears we met one of them [name withheld by request] one night at a dancing place. He was in the depths. He moaned to us he had taken cold on the trip, been bruised in practice, was in love for the first time in his life with a dear little girl back east, knew no one here, and was thoroughly lonesome. We tried to console him to no avail.

Finally he arose, muttering: "I can't stand this any longer. I'm going out to find some one." He returned in about 15 minutes. He was no longer so lonesome. Introductions followed, and the Bear and his lady sat at our table. We noted she wore a wedding ring.

After about an hour a man appeared. What followed amazed us. The lady introduced him, then remarked with the air of a dutiful wife, "I suppose, dear, it's time for us to go home, since you have to get up early."

"Yes," he replied, "I have to be on the set at 3 o'clock. But if you're having a good time there's no reason for you to leave. It's quite all right."

Evidently the young lady was having a good time. She remained.

GOLDEN GLOVERS! FIRST PHYSICAL EXAM IS FRIDAY

Instructions Mailed Out to 800 Entrants.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The first qualifying physical examination for Golden Gloves boxers who wish to compete in the Chicago sectional tournaments will be held Friday evening at Trafton's gymnasium, 180 West Randolph street. Nearly 800 letters of instruction were mailed yesterday to those boxers who had filed their entries in the first eight days that entries were accepted.

Do not report unless you have received a letter from THE TRIBUNE. Each letter yesterday contained instructions and a parental consent card. This card must be brought to the gymnasium Friday night. The hours for the examinations are between 7 and 9 p. m.

A. A. U. Cards Will Be Filled Out.

At this time A. A. U. registration cards will be filled out, the boxers will be assigned to the open or novice divisions of the Chicago tournaments, weights will be checked, and physicians will make a thorough examination of each contestant.

Entries received since Sunday will be included in the list now being prepared for the second physical examination which will be announced later for next week.

The Golden Gloves tournaments will be held at three centers this year, White City on the south side, Community Recreation center on the west side, and at Loyola university gymnasium on the north side. Generally boxers will be assigned to the section in which they live, but the south side tournament will be a double tournament in size and will be conducted on Feb. 11, 12, and 13, and again on Feb. 21 and 22. This eliminates last year's near south side tournament.

Those boys who pass their physical examinations will receive their tournament instructions and tickets by mail.

Closing Date May Be Advanced.

While no date has been set after which entries for this year's tournaments will not be accepted, it is obvious that none can be received within the week immediately preceding Feb. 11 because of the time required to examine and instruct the contestants. The date Feb. 3 is a tentative date for closing entries, but in all probability the date will be advanced. With 800 entries received within the first eight days it is quite likely that the lists will be closed before Feb. 1 to keep the number of bouts within reasonable limits.

Chicago will be represented by thirty-two boxers in the Tournament of Champions at the Chicago Stadium Feb. 25, 26, and 27, in addition to the championship team from the Catholic Youth organization. These thirty-two boxers will be chosen in the open division of the Golden Gloves. All will receive gold medals for qualifying.

The novice tournaments will qualify thirty-two boxers. These will receive qualifying medals. They will meet in the semi-finals of the Chicago novice tournament at the Stadium on Feb. 25 in conjunction with the Tournament of Champions. The finals will be decided on Feb. 26. Winners will receive a gold glove (without the diamond), while the runners-up will be awarded a silver glove.

Ghezzi Defeats John Revolta in Golf Playoff

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 15.—(AP)—Victor Ghezzi, of the Dal. N. J., golf club, won the Los Angeles open golf championship today when he shot a 37—36—73 to defeat Johnny Revolta of Milwaukee in the 18 hole playoff. They had tied at the end of 72 holes yesterday with 285's. Revolta took 75 strokes today.

After trailing by a stroke at the end of the first nine, Ghezzi evened the match on the tenth, where he picked up his par and Revolta took a bogey five because he was short on his approach. They played on an even basis for the next five holes, but Ghezzi moved into the lead on the 16th.

Although he dubbed his drive, Ghezzi got an excellent second shot, was on in three, and dropped a 7-foot putt for four, which Revolta three-putted.

On the 18th, Revolta took a trap to the left, then missed a 15-foot putt. On in three, Ghezzi holed out his ten-footer for a four, and a 36 coming home, as compared to his opponent's 39.

SCHROEDER WINS IN 5,000 METER OLYMPIC TRIAL

Minneapolis, Wis., Jan. 15.—(AP)—Eddie Schroeder of Chicago tonight won the 5,000 meter event of the Olympic skating trials, thereby making it impossible to name a third man to the United States team which will compete at Berlin in 1936 until after the final event Sunday.

The Chicagoan, who made the distance tonight in 8 minutes and 57 seconds, assured himself a place on the team last Sunday when he won the 1,500 meter event. Delbert Lamb of Chicago won the 500 meter event in the first day's trials, and the 10,000 event is the only one in which the winner remains to be determined.

BONURA RETURNS 1935 CONTRACT; SEEKS MORE PAY

Sox First Baseman Says He May Quit Game.

New Orleans, La., Jan. 15.—[Special.]—Zeke Bonura, first baseman of the Chicago White Sox, is dissatisfied with his 1935 contract and has returned it unsigned.

ZEKE BONURA.

Zeke said today: "I don't feel that the White Sox have treated me fairly in the way of compensation. The pay they have offered me for next season doesn't begin to compare with what I hear several other first basemen are getting. Of course I don't expect to be paid as much as some of the big star first basemen, but I tried to do a good job at Chicago and would have done a better job if I hadn't been hurt."

He's Not a Holdout.

Bonura said he had learned a lot of baseball at Chicago and would learn a lot more if the club sees fit to pay him what he thinks he's worth. Zeke insisted that he does not want to be regarded as a holdout. "I'm not a baseball lawyer or a grouch," he continued, "but I don't think the club has given me the proper kind of deal. I don't see how I can report unless my contract is revised and the pay shoved up some. I am keeping in good condition hunting and fishing and playing professional basketball and training the team of which I am owner."

Bonura said he likes the fans of Chicago but prefers to give up baseball unless he sees an opportunity for advancement.

Zeke's a Land Owner.

Zeke has been working in his father's commission house here and owns several buildings, one of which is in the downtown section and brings him considerable rentals. It contains four or five stores.

Zeke's claim of being in the best condition is borne out by his appearance. He is tanned and active.

HAAS MAY PLAY FIRST

In Chicago Zeke Bonura's apparent plight was accepted yesterday as a step in the plan of Manager Jimmy Dykes to install Mule Haas at first base and switch Al Simmons to Haas' old spot in center field. Al is to be flanked by Radcliffe and Washington, recent Sox acquisitions.

Vice President Harry Grabiner, before leaving for California, announced that 30 of 33 players on the roster had been signed but did not name Bonura as one of the three unsigned athletes.

Mail negotiations with Bonura will be conducted by Mr. Grabiner, but if Zeke's holdout status becomes serious Owner Lou Comiskey will enter the picture. Mr. Comiskey is expected to soothe the big first baseman and fix up everything.

He Did Real Well.

Bonura batted .301 last season, his first in major league society, and, although he was out many weeks, led the club in runs batted in with the fine total of 110, five more than Al Simmons accounted for. Zeke also led the club in homers by a wide margin, with 27, nine more than Simmons, who also was runnerup in that department. He led all the regular first basemen of the American league in fielding percentage.

Efforts were made in Indianapolis yesterday to list Chuck Klein as a Cub holdout. Chuck admitted he hadn't signed but that he anticipated no trouble in coming to terms. He said he expected to visit the Cub offices within a week. Klein last year had the same batting average as Bonura, .301, but drove in only 80 runs and finished with 20 homers.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The Toronto Maple Leafs, generally acknowledged to be the class of the hocky firmament, last night made it four straight victories over the world champion Blackhawks this season, when they turned back the Chicagoans, 3 to 2, in a great game at the Chicago Stadium.

The Hawks played with brilliance enough to dazzle an ordinary foe, but just the same they would have taken a much more decisive licking but for the inspired goal minding by Lorne Chabot. Chabot made thirty-three stops and about thirty of them were hair raisers.

Conacher Decides Fray.

The Leafs scored first on a sneaker by Joe Primeau, but Paul Thompson and Kendall switched the lead with a goal apiece. Then Thoms tied it up.

This set the stage for Charley Conacher, league's leading scorer, who broke the tie with one of his stirring solo dashes early in the final period.

Unlike the Bruins, who played such a lazy tie for 14,000 here Sunday night, the Leafs did no stalling, even when ahead in the final period. The 9,000 present saw the best hocky in weeks during the last fifteen minutes of the contest.

Taffy Abel, Blackhawk holdout defense man whose comings and goings out of salary conferences have been exciting some interest recently, was not in the opening ensemble. He and Owner McLaughlin were in conference for two hours yesterday afternoon, at the close of which the Hawks had high hopes the big boy would return.

Hawks Lead for While.

Abel, aparently in good spirits, asked for an hour to reflect, whereupon Maj. McLaughlin went to his club to await Taffy. He waited for an hour and a half. Abel did not show. He attended the game with Mrs. Abel.

The Hawks came out of the first period with a 2 to 1 lead, though the Leafs were the first to count. Primeau started the evening's tabulating in 8:25, while Thompson was in the penalty box. He got the puck on the end boards far over in his right ice, then scooted in along the wainscoating for six or eight feet, after which he swung over in front of the cage and jammed the rubber past Chabot's boots.

Thompson made up for his absence during Primeau's accomplishment by scoring the tying marker in 10:40. When Blair was chased for tripping the Hawks stepped on the gas. Morenz and Romnes carried the puck into the Leaf defense area, reaching a point back of the cage. From this spot Morenz passed out to Thompson, who let loose from 12 feet away, catching the right side of the net.

Hawks Bear Down.

Primeau was bounced in the 15th minute for tripping, another signal for a Hawk barrage. The first swoop was repulsed when Hainsworth made a miracle save on Cook, after Kendall had cleared the defense and put the puck a few feet from the Leaf goalie's toes. Undaunted by this unlucky setback of a brilliant foray, the Hawks came right back in. Thompson advanced along his left boards and passed to Cook, whose shot knocked Hainsworth off balance. Kendall then picked up the rebound and whanged it into the open cage.

Wiebe was off for holding when the Leafs tied the score in 4:30 in the second period. The goal was virtually a duplicate of the Leafs' first one in that Thoms picked up the puck on the end boards on a pass from Blair, and scooted it along the woodwork back of the cage. Then he rammed it past Chabot just as Primeau had done in the earlier instance.

There Goes the Ball Game!

The Leafs concluded the scoring in 4:10 of the third period when Conacher took a solo trip down the rink and fired past Chabot from about 20 feet out for the tie breaking goal.

When Cotton was put off in the ninth minute, Gottselig, March, Morenz, Thompson, and Cook went out and precipitated a terrific melee, but the all-forward onslaught was nipped when Thompson got penalized for hooking.

SEEK OFFICIALS FOR COAST STARS, GIANTS CONTEST

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 15.—(AP)—While Coach Ernie Nevers sent the Pacific Coast All Stars through workouts at Palo Alto and the world's champion New York Giants drilled on local soil, officials of the professional football game here next Sunday were searching for officials to handle the annual contest sponsored by Knights of Columbus.

Balked by a new Pacific coast conference ruling which prohibits its officials from handling professional games, the game committee believed it had lined up a trio of experienced men this afternoon.

Heading the list was Eddie Cochrane, Kansas City sports editor now in Los Angeles. He was to be assisted by Earl Walsh and Judge Carberry, Fordham university coaches who were reported vacationing in this region.

Amundsen at Von Steuben.
Steinmetz at McKinley.

Last minute victories by Lane Tech and Senn featured the second round of play in the lightweight division of the Chicago Public High School league yesterday. The triumphs enabled Lane Tech and Senn to remain tied for the lead in the north section race.

With 15 seconds remaining to play Norman Retchen sank a long shot to give Senn a 22 to 20 victory over Waller at the latter's gymnasium. Field goals by Norman Towne and Jim Dunwoody in the last minute gave Lane Tech a 20 to 17 triumph over Lake View.

Todhunter Plays Final Game.

George Todhunter, Fenger forward, ended his prep athletic career by scoring 13 points as Fenger defeated Calumet, 20 to 14. It was Fenger's first league victory and Calumet's first setback. Todhunter scored six baskets and one free throw.

Another outstanding individual performance was turned in by Anderson, Austin forward, who sank seven baskets and three free throws as Austin handed Marshall a 24 to 15 defeat in a west section game. Jenkins, Phillips guard, accounted for seven baskets and two free throws to help his team defeat Harrison, 38 to 14.

Roosevelt Beats Schurz, 45 to 19.

In the only league heavyweight game Roosevelt defeated Schurz, 45 to 19. Two lightweight games will be played today, Amundsen meeting Von Steuben on the latter's court and Steinmetz playing at McKinley.

MOON MULLINS—HANDY WITH HIS DUKES

BARKO TAKES SCORING LEAD

Kessler Second in Big 10 Industrial Race.

Leadership in the Big Ten basketball scoring race changed hands during Monday night's games when a stubborn Indiana defense held Frank Froschauer and Bob Riegel, Illinois' chief point getters, to a total of two free throws, while Johnny Barko of Iowa and Bob Kessler of Purdue led their teams to victories.

Barko scored 16 points on seven field goals and two free throws to set the pace for the Hawkeyes in their 39 to 36 overtime triumph at Minnesota. This accomplishment gave him a total of 42 points for the four games Iowa has played, and placed him first among conference players.

Kessler Gets 15 Points.

Kessler's contribution to Purdue's 33 to 31 conquest of Northwestern was 15 points, scored on six field goals and three free throws, bringing his total for four games to 35. This was one point more than Froschauer, who was dropped from the lead to third place, has been able to get in four games, and two points more than Riegel has scored. Riegel dropped from second into a tie with Rosenthal of Iowa for fourth place. Cottom, the Purdue star, who won the championship last year, is in the sixth place with a total of 31 points.

Barko Gets 18 Goals.

In addition to leading in total points Barko also sets the pace in field goals scored, getting 18 in four games, six more than Kessler, who holds second place over Froschauer by dint of 11 free throws, a branch of scoring in which he is tied with Rosenthal for the Big Ten lead.

MOSTLY about DOGS

By Bob Becker

Streamlined Dogs.

Of all the dogs that have been developed in Germany or fostered by that country, the Dobermann Pinscher is the one that most nearly fits into this streamlined age. Here is a breed that is the personification of smooth power, and it is not much of an exaggeration to say that even the brain of the Dobermann has the flashing speed of our modern streamlined vehicles.

Dobermann enthusiasts sometimes speak of their favorite breed as the one that has a human brain. After you have seen a well trained Dobermann in an exhibition of scaling a high fence or wall, retrieving, and doing other tricks you are not one to argue much about the mental alertness of this breed, nor question the fact that the Dobermann has extraordinary ability to assimilate training.

Although there is some question about the origin of this powerful, graceful dog that moves with a lithe activity foreign to many breeds, there isn't a doubt that the early ancestors of the present day Dobermann were smart working dogs. In fact, there is one story about the origin of the Dobermann which says that on one side of his family tree was a line of working dogs that were quick thinking enough and resourceful enough to herd cattle.

At any rate, the Dobermann has today a remarkably keen brain. He is quick to learn things, has the power to back up his thinking and all in all is a versatile dog. You can raise one as the playmate of a child and the dog will be a perfect pal for the youngster, constantly acting a faithful guardian. You can take another member of the breed and develop him into a dog for police work, a form of work that the Dobermann can do with much credit to himself. If you want a perfect watch dog for your car, home, or place of business the trained Dobermann again can do the job 100 per cent satisfactorily.

A nationally known German trainer of Dobermanns who now is located in Chicagoland told me some weeks ago that if a person wanted "just a dog" around the house, he invariably recommended some other breed besides a Dobermann. This was surprising until it was explained.

The trainer made his remark clear by saying: "If anybody wants 'just a dog' the Dobermann is not the breed for him, because the Dobermann is more than just a dog. He craves companionship and affection. He is a working dog, of course, happiest when in the company of his master, or watching over the children or a home. He is an active, eager dog, capable of doing many things through training, so it is not right to let him be just another dog."

With a short, dark, glossy coat easy to keep clean, possessing a keen brain and an affectionate disposition, the Dobermann Pinscher makes an ideal home dog. He can look after anything from a factory to a bungalow. Inasmuch as we have expert German trainers of Dobermanns plus fanciers extremely interested in the breed here in Chicagoland, dog lovers have an opportunity to see some outstanding Dobermanns close to home. One local kennel has a group of six trained Dobermanns that have been exhibited in many cities.

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 15.—(AP)—For the first time in more than twenty years, Canada will not play in the North American zone of the Davis cup competition this year, Philip D. Lyons, president of the Canadian Lawn Tennis association, announced today. ## Braves Seek New Home and Manager at Meeting.

New York, Jan. 15.—[Special.]—With President Ford C. Frick completing arrangements for the special meeting of the National league here on Friday, local baseball men and experts were dashing around in circles today delving deep in baseball law in quest of an answer to the vexing Boston dog racing problem, which seems to have dumped the Braves out into the cold without a home.

The meeting will be called at 10 o'clock in the morning in the league's headquarters at which time Judge Emils Fuchs, president of the Braves, will be asked to amplify and if possible clarify a situation whereby Braves field has been sub-leased to the Boston Kennel club.

They're Out Twice.

Because of this, the Braves appear, baseball men say, to have maneuvered themselves out of house and home on two counts. They cannot play on Braves field in conjunction with dog racing because of baseball law, which prohibits any open gambling on baseball premises under the jurisdiction of the league.

On top of this, they cannot go to Fenway park, the American league grounds in Boston, because of the opposition of Tom Yawkey, owner of the Red Sox, who stoutly asserts he will not permit the Braves to use his park if Braves' field is to be converted into a dog track.

Despite this stand, however, there was a pronounced feeling in local baseball circles tonight that Fenway park eventually would become the future home of the Braves and that as soon as this is done Babe Ruth would be installed as manager.

See Club's Reorganization.

In fact, from one highly reliable source it was learned today that this is almost certain to come about, but not until there has been a complete reorganization of the Braves with Judge Fuchs deposed as president and succeeded by Charles F. Adams, whose son is vice president of the club.

On the other hand, those who held that the prospect of paving the way for Ruth's entry as a manager in the rival league would make Yawkey all the more determined to bar Fenway park to the Braves, ventured the opinion that the entire matter was one of bluff. Others opine that as soon as those behind the Boston dog racing project become convinced the baseball authorities will not permit a combination of baseball and greyhounds to operate on Braves' field the racing enterprise will be taken elsewhere and the Braves restored to good standing with their landlord.

Fuchs Leaves for Boston.

No one seemed able to shed any definite light on the situation, least of all Judge Fuchs himself. Having disavowed all connection with the Boston Kennel club, the judge slipped out of his place of seclusion this afternoon just long enough to catch a train for Boston without making any further comment whatever.

That both dog racing and baseball will never be allowed to operate on Braves' field is practically a certainty, it is asserted, in view of the known opposition to such a hookup held by President Frick and numerous other club owners.

Even if this opposition could be removed there would still remain Commissioner Landis, who would remain as the final barrier. Landis already has expressed himself as unalterably opposed to any such enterprise and, under baseball law, the commissioner's word is final in all such matters.

STOEFEN, LOTT ARE BEATEN BY TILDEN, VINES

Providence, R. I., Jan. 15.—(AP)—Big Bill Tilden and Ellsworth Vines scored an 8-6, 6-3 triumph over professional tennis' newest recruits, George M. Lott and Lester R. Stoefen, tonight.

Approximately 2,000 saw Tilden and Vines romp through to their fifth victory in six matches with the pro newcomers.

Vines kept his record of singles victories over Stoefen intact as he rallied brilliantly after a slow start to win 3-6, 6-2, 6-0. Tilden maintained his winning edge over Lott in singles with a 4-6, 6-1, 6-3 victory.

Walser Named Coach at Joliet High School

Herman Walser, who captained the University of Illinois football team in 1933, yesterday was named head football and basketball coach at Joliet High school. Since his graduation, Walser has coached at Rhinelander, Wis. He will succeed Douglas [Gaga] Mills, former Illini, who has resigned to take a position on the coaching staf at his alma mater.

Malkov and Garibaldi Wrestle at Midway Arena

Zack Malkov, Russian light heavyweight wrestler, will meet Ralph Garibaldi in Johnny Coulon's wrestling windup at the Midway arena Friday night. Coulon is arranging a card of four bouts.

Hitchcock, Smith, Boeseke Lose 10 Goal Polo Ratings

New York, Jan. 15.—[Special.]—Polo, for the first time since 1922, is without a 10 goal player. Announcement of the new handicaps by the United States Polo association tonight revealed that Thomas Hitchcock Jr., Cecil Smith, and Elmer Boeseke Jr., who were all rated at 10 goals during the last season, have been dropped.

TOMMY HITCHCOCK

Smith and Hitchcock were reduced to 9 goal handicaps, and Boske to 8 goals. Winston F. C. Guest has been raised from 8 goals to join Hitchcock and Smith at nine.

Four 9 Goal Men.

This leaves the top of polo at 9 goals, a distinction held by only four men in the world, the three Americans and the Nawab of Phopol of India. Below these men are a lot of eight goal players, including two members of last year's victorious East team, Michael G. Phipps and William Post II. Both were raised from 7 goals and, with Boeseke, just offset a drop from that point of two other well known players, Eric Pedley and H. W. [Rube] Williams, who went to 7 goals.

Another addition to the seven goal group was Raymond R. Guest, younger brother of Winston, who was raised from 6 goals. These were the most interesting changes throughout the top ranks. Robert L. Gerry Jr., and Tom Mather, the Texan, have been raised to 6 goals from a previous rating of 5.

Gerry Gets Office.

The handicaps formed the chief interest of the annual meeting today, though there was fresh indication of the rise of the younger element in the game when Elbridge T. Gerry was elected treasurer in the place of George H. Mead of Dayton, who retired to a place on the executive committee. Gerry, a 7 goal player, is vice president of the Indoor Polo association. He was a spare on the East team last year and is regarded as one of the best of the young players in America.

One other change in officers was made. Thomas H. White of Cleveland was named vice chairman for the middle west to succeed Frederic McLaughlin of Chicago. Louis E. Stoddard remained as chairman, Carleton F. Burke as vice chairman for the far west, F. S. von Stade as vice chairman for the east, and J. Ford Johnson Jr., as secretary.

O'Reilly Not Reëlected.

The constitution was changed and the offices of honorary treasurer and honorary secretary abolished. F. O'Reilly, who has been secretary and treasurer for years, was not returned to these offices.

Plans for the coming season were discussed, but there was no announcement regarding them. It was generally understood, however, there would be no east-west match and no formal international match. It was planned to accent the open championship and other national tournaments. It is hoped a British team will come over for the open to repay the visit made to England last June by Seymour Knox and the Aurora team.

New Experience for Tommy.

The placing of Hitchcock at nine goals marks the first time since 1922 that he has been rated below ten goals. In that season, following his play with the successful American team in London in 1921, Hitchcock reached top ranking. Smith and Boeseke were raised after excellent seasons in 1933.

Guest has been as high as 9 goals during the seasons of 1929, 1930, and 1931. He has been at 8 goals since 1932. His play with the East team in defeating the West last season was outstanding and he continued to lead the Templeton team to the open championship. Phipps also played with him on this team. Post reached the final of the open with the Aurora team. The fourth member of the East team, James Mills, was left at 8 goals.

Friday Night Will Be Busy One for Londos

Jim Londos, heavyweight wrestling champion, must be at his best to retain his world's title when he meets Everett Marshall at the Coliseum Friday night, according to John [Doc] Krone, promoter of the show.

The match is gaining the attention of wrestling fans because of the struggle this pair waged in Philadelphia a few months ago when Londos won only after three hours and 20 minutes of endeavor.

Marshall is expected to arrive in Chicago today and has already arranged to work out with three training mates. While he will hold no public workouts he will drill at a private gymnasium today and tomorrow where a few close friends will see him put the finishing touches on his preparations.

Londos who has gone through a hard campaign since defeating Ed [Strangler] Lewis at Wrigley field last September is now in fine physical shape and will take only light exercises prior to the bout. The champion will be in the Chicago district today, but will spend much of his time at the Libertyville home of his manager, Ed White.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 15.—Treasury bonds today returned to the position occupied before the sudden anxiety about the pending Supreme court decision on gold created a dual market, with one price for gold-clause issues and another for currency bonds. Today both moved upward.

In the afternoon, coincident with a break in the stock market, second grade and speculative bonds dipped sharply. Declines of 1 to 2 points were numerous. Trading volume totaled $13,789,000, against $12,516,000 Monday.

Royal Dutch 4s Slump.

It probably is just a coincidence that interest in the gold payment question reached its peak here at the time a Dutch court was ruling that interest on Royal Dutch 4s could be paid in United States currency. These bonds declined 16 points yesterday and today they dropped 13½ points further on a few transactions, getting almost to a strict money basis as dollar securities. They still command some premium over plain investment value because the Dutch decision is subject to revision by a higher court.

Gild-edged corporate bonds were quiet but the trend was definitly upward.

High Grade Issues Rise.

Small fractional gains were made by Santa Fe 4s, Burlington general 4s and refunding 4½s, Chesapeake and Ohio refunding 4½s, Oregon-Washington 4s of 1961 and Virginian 5s.

Bonds of lower grades followed no uniform trend. Small gains and losses were about evenly divided. Foreign bonds floundered about without uniformity of trend even for the issues of a given nationality. Japanese bonds were definitly weak all day. Scandinavian issues moved lower.

Georgia Power and Light Co.

Investors' Guide: Kindly advise on the present condition of Georgia Power and Light 6 per cent preferred.—Miss N. M.

Answer: Georgia Power and Light company, a $6,350,000 concern, is an operating subsidiary of Penn-Southern Power company. It supplies a population of 65,022 in Valdosta, Waycross, Brunswick and 36 other southern Georgia communities with electricity.

On Nov. 22, 1934, Valdosta notified the company that it would regard its street lighting contract as terminated as of Dec. 31, 1934. On Sept. 29, 1934, the company accepted the order of the Georgia public service commission cutting rates 18 per cent, an estimated $66,000 a year.

For the first nine months of 1934 gross was $616,000 and net income was $33,000, or $3.15 per preferred share. For the corresponding 1933 period, although gross was only $580,000, net was $58,000, or $5.51 per preferred share. Net income in 1933 was $7.32 per preferred share, against $10.68 in 1932 and $9.69 in 1931.

Current position on Dec. 31, 1933, was satisfactory.

Although regular quarterly dividends were paid on the 10,993 shares of $100 par preferred on Feb. 1, 1934, nothing has since been paid, because of rate reductions and lower earnings. The stock is a speculation.

Frank G. Shattuck Company.

Investors' Guide: Please give information regarding Shattuck, F. G., stock. How are they rated?—G. J.

Answer: Frank G. Shattuck company ["Schraft's"] operates a chain of 42 restaurants and retail candy stores in New York City, Boston, Syracuse, Newark, N. J., and Philadelphia. It also sells candies through jobbers.

Loss of $75,000 in the third quarter of 1934 cut net income for the first nine months to $73,000, or 6 cents a share, against net income of $23,000, or 2 cents a share, for the first nine months of 1933.

The four year record of earnings follows:

| | Net sales. | Net income. | Inc. per share. |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1933 ..... | $15,081,000 | $ 324,000 | $0.26 |
| 1932 ..... | 17,083,000 | 693,000 | .55 |
| 1931 ..... | 22,330,000 | 1,711,000 | 1.34 |
| 1930 ..... | 26,213,000 | 2,486,000 | 1.93 |

On Dec. 31, 1933, current assets were more than 10 times current liabilities. Working capital was $7,142,000, against $6,623,000 at the close of 1932, a satisfactory position.

Capitalization consists solely of 1,269,170 shares. The dividend rate on the stock, effective Jan. 10, 1935, is 7 cents a quarter, against the previous 6 cent rate. The stock is speculative.

GRAINS BREAK 1 TO 4½ CENTS IN WILD TRADE

Drop in Canada, Gold Case Are Factors.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

A wave of selling swept over the grain market yesterday, bringing demoralization in all pits and knocking down prices 1 to 4½ cents a bushel. It was one of the wildest sessions witnessed on the Chicago Board of Trade in several months and the volume of business was estimated to have been the largest in weeks.

A combination of influences conspired to undermine the market. Wheat futures in Winnipeg fell to the minimum quotations fixed by the government and fears that Canadian selling would overflow into this market caused holders here to unload in wholesale fashion. As prices began to slide further weakness in the market was uncovered. Margin selling developed and stop loss selling orders were uncovered, adding momentum to the decline. Floor traders followed the falling market with additional selling pressure.

Wheat, Corn, and Rye Slump.

When the day ended wheat futures were selling 3 to 3¾ cents a bushel below Monday's final price, with the May contract quoted at 95⅛ cents. Corn lost 3¼ to 3⅞ cents a bushel. The May corn future dropped 4 cents a bushel, the limit allowed for one day under the exchange rules, and then rallied an eighth of a cent to close at 84⅝ cents. Rye and oats were correspondingly weak. Rye was off 3½ to 4½ cents a bushel and oats lost 1 to 2⅝ cents.

Closing prices on the May futures follow:

| | Yesterday. | Monday. | Week ago. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Wheat | .95⅛ | .98½ | 1.01⅝ |
| Corn | .84⅝ | .88⅛ | .91⅝ |
| Oats | .50⅝ | .53¾ | .54⅞ |
| Rye | .66⅜ | .71¼ | .75⅝ |

The break in the Winnipeg market to the minimum low prices was the outstanding market influence. Its effect was probably greater because of the nervous condition of the market growing out of suspense over the gold clause case now before the Supreme court.

Winnipeg at Stalemate.

It could not be ascertained if Canadian selling came into this market in any volume. It was apparent, however, that when prices hit the pegged minimum in the Winnipeg market holders there were unable to get out of their wheat. The Chicago market was the logical hedge for traders anxious to protect themselves against further possible losses.

July wheat in Winnipeg closed at 81¼ cents a bushel, the minimum figure. At the close wheat was offered at the price, but no buyers were attracted. The effect of arbitrary price limits is to bring trading to a standstill when the peg quotation has been reached. The May future closed an eighth of a cent above the minimum. The net losses amounted to only ¾ to 1⅞ cents a bushel by virtue of the limitations.

Commercial demand for grain both in the futures and cash market was in evidence again in yesterday's market. It was no match for the insistent liquidation. As the market gave ground and cash prices followed, buyers became more cautious.

Canadian Decline Expected.

The decline in Winnipeg was not unexpected. Canada is in a particularly vulnerable position because of her attempt to hold prices at an artificially high level while at the same time holding the biggest surplus of wheat in her history. Exportations of Canadian wheat to Europe have been extremely slow because Argentina and Australia have been shipping their wheat at much lower prices.

The situation was brought into focus yesterday by advices from England which said millers there want government control of the Winnipeg market removed if the 6 cents preference on Canadian wheat is to be continued. The Canadian government's operations boost the prices which English millers must pay. England has been able to buy Argentine wheat cheaper despite the preference given to Canadian grain.

RYERSON & SON PAY 25 CENTS AS SPECIAL DIVIDEND

Joseph T. Ryerson & Son, Inc., declared a special dividend of 25 cents on the common stock. During 1934 a total of $1.25 a share was paid on the stock, including a special disbursement of 50 cents on Dec. 19.

Directors of the Central Cold storage company yesterday declared a dividend of 25 cents on the common stock. In preceding quarters the company paid 12½ cents a share.

The Cherry Burrell corporation voted a dividend of 25 cents on the common stock and the regular quarterly payment of $1.75 on the preferred stock. In the two preceding quarters the company paid 15 cents on the common.

Directors of the J. K. Mosser Leather company, subsidiary of Armour & Co., declared a dividend of 50 cents a share, payable Jan. 31. On July 16, 1934, a similar payment was made.

Woolen Company Will Be Liquidated Due to Strikes

Boston, Mass., Jan. 15.—(AP)—The stockholders of the Hamilton Woolen company of Southbridge today voted to liquidate the affairs of the company by a ballot of 26,589 to 815. The decision to liquidate means unemployment for 1,000 to 1,100 textile workers, 20 per cent of the employable population of Southbridge. The plant had been affected by three strikes in four months and this situation had led to the recommendation of the board of directors to the stockholders to liquidate the affairs.

Howell Ruled '31 Corn Mart, U. S. Charges

Evidence purporting to prove that Thomas M. Howell, "mystery man" of the Chicago grain market, controled 85 per cent of the open position in corn and all the cash corn in Chicago during July, 1931, was introduced yesterday by Leo F. Tierney, attorney for the government, in the action brought by the Grain Futures administration seeking to disbar Howell from further grain trading. The government alleges Howell conspired to manipulate the market in violation of the grain futures act.

Robert J. Haney, vice president and secretary of the Norris Grain company, occupied the witness stand the greater part of the day, identifying records and testifying on various transactions of Howell. Tierney questioned the witness regarding the large purchases and sales of corn made by Mr. Howell during the period involved.

Describe Gain in Holdings.

Records submitted by the government indicate that of the total open interest in corn June 30 Howell had 57 per cent, against 85 per cent July 31. On July 4, the government's records show, there were 2,448,926 bushels of cash corn in Chicago, of which Howell had received 1,700,000.

On July 11 the government reported there were 2,980,000 bushels of cash corn in storage in Chicago of which Howell had received 2,810,000. By July 18, it was shown, the total rose to 3,085,601 bushels, while Howell had received 3,560,000 bushels. The big grain trader shipped out the difference between the amount he had received and the amount in storage, it was said.

The government alleges that in the three days, July 28 to July 31, Howell's holdings forced the price of corn up from the close of 58⅜ cents on July 28 to 70½ cents on July 31. It contends that shorts unable to deliver cash corn by the night of July 31, the date of expiration of the contract, were forced to pay Howell 72½ cents a bushel.

Defense Blames Shorts.

The Howell defense contends he began buying corn around 60 cents a bushel in April and that from that time up to July 15 there were only a few days when Howell could have disposed of his holdings and come out even, providing the market would have been able to take the large amount of grain such an operation would have entailed. The defense says the responsibility for the sensational rise rests with the shorts who did not go into the country to get corn to deliver.

Haney identified records which detailed the large purchases made for the account with the Norris Grain company known as "No. 75," and admitted by the defense to be owned by Mr. Howell. He also identified transactions of the Barrington company, also admitted to be largely controled by Howell. Letters were introduced which indicated the transfer of a number of other accounts with the Norris Grain company to the Barrington company. Authority for one of the accounts so transferred, No. 125, was contained in a letter addressed to the Norris company by Harry F. Hall, described as a secretary for Mr. Howell.

Tells of Shipments.

In the late afternoon session Louis Gallup, manager of the cash grain department of the Norris company, described shipments of corn made by Howell out of Chicago on lake steamers. He said that on July 14 214,824 bushels were shipped on the steamer McFarland; on July 17, 207,399 bushels on the Schneider, and on July 28, 280,000 on the Perseus. All shipments were made in the name of account 75.

In the morning session Barnett Faroll of Faroll Brothers testified he did not remember the details of several transactions in which Howell was alleged to have participated.

Attorneys for the defense are making a blanket objection to all the evidence being produced by the government, maintaining that the present action is without legal standing.

CLEARING HOUSE NAMES CUSCADEN TO PRESIDENCY

Fred A. Cuscaden, vice president and head of the banking department of the Northern Trust company, yesterday was elected president of the Chicago Clearing House association for 1935. He succeeds Frank R. Elliott, vice president of the Harris Trust and Savings bank, who held the post for two years.

William C. Cummings, president of the Drovers National and Drovers Trust and Savings bank, 47th street and Ashland avenue, was elected vice president to succeed Mr. Cuscaden. This breaks precedent in being the first time that an outlying banker has become a clearing house officer. If custom prevails, Mr. Cummings will succeed to the presidency. Howard Sims was renamed manager of the clearing house.

The clearing house committee will continue with Edward Eagle Brown, president of the First National, as chairman. Members are Walter J. Cummings, chairman of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company; Solomon A. Smith, president of the Northern Trust company; Howard W. Fenton, president of the Harris Trust and Savings bank, and Phillip R. Clarke, president of the City National Bank and Trust company.

ILLINOIS OUTPUT OF COAL LARGEST SINCE MARCH, 1932

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 15.—(AP)—More coal was produced in Illinois in December than in any month since March, 1932, Director James McSherry of the state department of mines and minerals announced today.

The director said more than 4,500,000 tons were produced last month. Nearly three years ago more than six million tons were mined just prior to the termination of the wage contract and a long lay-off. Production in January and March, 1934, exceeded the four million ton mark.

STOCKS CRASH; REVALUING OF DOLLAR FEARED

Mining Issues Bear Brunt of Selling.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 15.—The bogey of dollar revaluation was abroad in the financial district today.

Waif-word rumors from here and there, the spectacle of an almost uninterrupted climb of the dollar against foreign currencies and some fresh speculation on the possible consequences of an "adverse" Supreme court decision in the gold bond clause cases contrived to give the stock market an all-round bad day.

Nervous selling went on steadily and at times aggressively throughout the afternoon. Prices at their worst were ranging as much as nine points under yesterday's closing levels. The high-priced Homestake Mining, so-called "inactive" leader of the gold share group, showed a loss of as much as $38 a share and was 28 points off at the close.

Pace Outstrips Tickers.

When the selling was at its worst the tickers were telling the story a full three minutes behind actual facts on the floor of the exchange. It was the first delay of the machinery in many weeks. Volume ran more than 1,365,000 shares, considerably more than double that of yesterday.

Weakness was most pronounced in the mining shares, the gold and silver issues coming in about equally for the slaughter. U. S. Smelting was driven down nine points under a heavy stream of liquidation orders and American Smelting, Cerro De Pasco, International Silver, and Howe Sound tumbled in its wake to the tune of 2 to 4 points, a part of which in most cases was recovered in the later dealings.

McIntyre, Dome, and Alaska were under considerable pressure likewise at times and declines among them ran to more than $3 a share.

Utilities Show Resistance.

Except for the utilities, where some show of resistance was made for a time, one group of the remainder of the list was about as weak as another. The rails, after presenting a fairly firm front throughout the forenoon, tumbled sharply, the losses in such high grade issues as New York Central, Atchison, and Union Pacific running to more than 3 points. New York Central and Baltimore and Ohio sold down at their worst to the lowest levels since 1933. Central of New Jersey in one of its infrequent trades dropped more than $5 a share.

Rubbers went down without much fight and the chemicals retreated 1 to 2 points. Motor shares gave up a point or so, with Chrysler, General Motors, and Nash most directly in the line of fire.

Even the building stock group, which has been basking in the light of public favor on account of the advantages it is supposed to enjoy under the administration's housing and public works programs, reacted abruptly. Johns Manville dropped 2 points.

Pivotal Issues Less Active.

United States Steel, American Can, and other representative industrials appeared on the tape somewhat less frequently than some of the other trading favorites popularly rated in the inflationist column, but losses of a point or more were the rule for them.

American Telephone declined fractionally despite the statement of President Walter S. Gifford that 1934 earnings would approximate $5.85 a share, compared with $5.38 in the previous year.

A fairly long list of preferred issues dropped 1 to 5 points. Coca Cola, which was riding such a high horse last week, went down for a count of five or thereabouts.

The selling, which began to gain headway around the noon hour, abated somewhat in the final hour of trading when word went round that New York banks were "understood" to be unwilling to undertake gold shipments to this country and when it became known that President Roosevelt had summoned Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau to a conference. Closing prices were slightly better than the worst throughout the list.

SENATE GROUP APPROVES FIVE MEMBERS OF SEC

Washington, D. C., Jan. 15.—(AP)—Nominations of five members of the Securities and Exchange commission, including Joseph P. Kennedy, the chairman, were approved today by the senate banking committee, which deferred action on President Roosevelt's nomination of Marriner S. Eccles as governor of the Federal Reserve board and Adolph C. Miller, veteran member of the board.

Action on the Eccles appointment was postponed at the request of Senator Glass [Dem.-Va.], who was unable to attend the meeting. The committee left the Miller nomination for consideration at the same time it acts on Eccles.

Other members of the Securities and Exchange commission approved were: George C. Mathews, James M. Landis, Robert E. Healy, and Ferdinand Pecora. The latter already has indicated he will resign to accept appointment to the New York State Supreme court.

DUTCH BROKERS APPEAL DECREE ON 'GOLD' BONDS

THE HAGUE, Netherlands, Jan. 15.—(AP)—The Amsterdam Stock Brokers' association as plaintiff today appealed to the Supreme court from an Appellate court decision yesterday giving the Royal Dutch Oil company and its main operating unit, the Batavia Petroleum company, the right to meet service on their dollar bonds with depreciated dollars. The court held that the gold clauses in the bonds concerned gold coin and not gold value.

In the Royal Dutch case, the Appellate court reversed a lower court which had found against the company, stating that the bonds were payable in New York in gold as well as in Amsterdam in guilders, and that the holders had an option as to where they should be paid.

In the Batavia Petroleum case, the lower court's decision was affirmed. This decision held that interest was only payable in New York, since no fiscal agent had been appointed in Holland.

The judgment of the appellate court caused several hundred members of the bourse to sign a petition in Amsterdam asking a further appeal to the Supreme court, which was then made by the stock brokers' association.

WARD PROFITS RISE SHARPLY FOR DECEMBER

Net profit of Montgomery Ward & Co. in December gained substantially over November last year and December, 1933, the company announced yesterday. Net earnings for the month were $1,423,856, compared with $695,715 in November and $1,124,060 in December, 1933.

For the eleven months to Dec. 31 net profit after all charges, including current class A dividends, depreciation, state and federal income taxes, amounted to $9,302,023, or $1.77 a common share, against $2,246,969 in the corresponding period of the preceding year.

NorthernTrust Bank Officers Are Promoted

Directors of the Northern Trust company yesterday made a number of changes in officers of the bank as the annual elections continued throughout the city and county.

Frank M. Wallace was promoted from assistant secretary to second vice president. Four new assistant cashiers are Edward B. Smith, Lawrence A. Kempf, L. Kenneth Billings, and G. Lyle Fischer. Three new assistant secretaries are Gorden Arey, Nathaniel M. Symonds, and John C. Smith. William M. Stewart was made assistant auditor. All other officers were reëlected. Two appointments also announced were Alford J. Baschen as assistant manager of the bond department and Donald W. Laing as assistant secretary of the trust department.

Mercantile Trust Reëlects.

The Mercantile Trust and Savings bank, 541 West Jackson street, yesterday reduced its directorate from 14 to 13 members by reëlecting sitting directors and not filling the vacancy left by the death of Richard J. Collins. All officers were reëlected. H. N. Grut, president, reported to stockholders that deposits increased from $8,038,000 to $11,058,000 during 1934 and commented that the "outlook for business is exceedingly good."

The State Bank of Clearing increased its board from five to seven members by adding Attorney George M. Sundheim, LaGrange, and S. Prentice Porter, Lake Forest, to the directorate. John A. Camphouse was elected assistant cashier. Sitting officers and directors were unchanged.

Elects New Vice President.

The Hamilton State bank elected Charles H. Shaw vice president. All other officers were reëlected, and the board of directors was left unchanged.

The Drexel State bank directors reëlected all present officers of the bank. The Merchants National bank, which opened in December, held no election at its directors' meeting.

Alfred M. Severin was elected a director of the Evanston Trust and Savings bank to fill a vacancy caused by the death of W. J. O'Connell. Directors named Elmer M. Gality cashier to succeed Charles S. Castle, deceased.

All officers and directors of the Oak Park Trust and Savings, Beverly State Savings, and Glenview State banks were reëlected.

Steel Scrap Prices Boosted 50c a Ton to New High

A new high in the upward movement of steel scrap prices was reached yesterday when No. 1 heavy melting steel was raised 50 cents a ton to $13.50 to $14 in Pittsburgh. This price is $3.75 a ton above the low point reached October, 1934.

ELECT W. J. CUMMINGS DIRECTOR OF CASUALTY FIRM RULED BY RFC

Walter J. Cummings, chairman of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company, yesterday was elected a director of Maryland Casualty company of Baltimore, according to an announcement of the insurance company's local office.

This strengthens the hold of the Reconstruction Finance corporation on the company following installation by the RFC last April of Silliman Evans, former fourth assistant postmaster general, as executive vice president, and Edward G. Lowry Jr., formerly of the treasury department, as vice president and general counsel.

Control of the company by the RFC has come, as did control of Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company, which resulted in appointment of Cummings as chairman of the board, through ownership of preferred stock of the organization.

A total of $17,500,000 was made available to Maryland Casualty by the RFC. In February, 1934, it advanced $7,500,000 to purchase preferred stock, and in August, 1934, an additional $10,000,000 advance for purchase of preferred was approved.

The advances were made necessary by the company's practice of guaranteeing real estate bonds. At one time about 80 million dollars of bonds had been so guaranteed. Through refinancing and repurchase of outstanding bonds this sum was brought down to 51 millions when a reorganization, based upon RFC help, was effected.

O'Connell Named Receiver for Central Republic Suit

William L. O'Connell yesterday was named receiver for the stock liability suit brought against stockholders of the Central Republic Trust company, by Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley on a petition of the Reconstruction Finance corporation which was represented by Attorney John L. Hopkins.

Markets Tell Graphic Tale of Public's Fears

BY HOWARD WOOD.

What the market was saying yesterday was that a lot of people with money on both sides of the Atlantic ocean were figuring that the Supreme court of the United States will decide that congress' action in abrogating the "gold clause" in contracts, public and private, was unconstitutional.

Foreigners were buying dollars and selling their own currencies in the expectation of reaping a profit if the dollar should be restored to its old parity. Apparently, also, Americans who previously had transferred funds abroad were bringing them back for the same reason.

At the same time people in this country were selling stocks and commodities in the expectation of a decline in prices in the event of a decision adverse to the administration. Particularly were they selling gold and silver shares, which have boomed with the debasement of the dollar.

* *

That was yesterday. What happens today may be a different story. The public is jittery. It doesn't know what is going to happen. One day the markets go down as the public figures that the Supreme court will say "no" to congress. The next day they go up as the public changes its mind and guesses that the court will say "yes." While this eenie, meenie, miney, mo game goes on nobody is certain of gain except the brokers. The public is a prey to "saucy doubts and fears" just as it was in February, 1933.

Money hates nothing more than uncertainty. For that reason almost everybody in business and finance is hoping for an early decision.

Simplified SEC Regulations Still Long Way from Simple.

Industries hoping to float new bond issues and investment bankers interested in reviving their dormant business both are deriving much cheer out of the action of the securities and exchange commission in revising the requirements concerning information to be supplied in the flotation of new securities.

The new "simplified" regulations consist of some 44 pages of requirements and instructions. Compliance is still complicated and the potential liability of officers of issuing companies and of the bond men who underwrite and sell the securities is still vague, but the commission's move is regarded as a step in the right direction.

In the big job of reviving the heavy industries the bond business will have to perform the major function of financing, which it cannot do until bonds can be readily bought and sold.

* *

The prediction by Chairman Kennedy of the SEC that the remodeling of the commission's regulations will pave the way for the flotation of some three billions of financing are regarded as premature. Something more than easing of the securities act is necessary to revive the bond market.

The revision will doubtless make corporations more willing to borrow and bond dealers more willing to sell bonds but something must be done to make the investor more willing to buy bonds. The latter is still waiting for assurance of stable currency and the end of inflation. Right now he won't even buy government bonds. The banks and insurance companies must go on buying bonds because they have to do something with their funds, but the individual waits an end to monetary experiments so he may be reasonably sure before investing that he's going to get paid back in the same kind of money he invests.

DOLLAR CLIMBS ON CHANCE OF RESTORED VALUE

U. S. Checks Rise by Buying Francs.

London Gets Excited

LONDON, Jan. 16.—[Wednesday.]—(AP)—The spectacular gyrations of the United States dollar vied with the Saar for prominence in London's morning newspapers. The Express carried a double banner across the front page, "Secret of nine U. S. judges upsets world's money markets." All papers featured long dispatches from correspondents in New York.

New York, Jan. 15.—[Special.]—A violent rise in the foreign exchange value of the dollar, checked late in the day only by treasury intervention, reflected today the growing apprehension of financial markets that the Supreme court's decision in the gold clause cases would topple over the entire structure of the government's monetary legislation, forcing a return of the dollar to its old gold parity.

The movement in the foreign exchanges was the most extreme since devaluation of the dollar on Jan. 31, 1934. Realizing that a return to the old parity would involve a 70 per cent rise in the dollar and a 41 per cent fall in the French franc and other foreign exchanges, banks, merchants and speculators hastened to dump their holdings of foreign exchange and buy dollars.

Pound and Franc Slump.

With virtually no buyers in the market the foreign exchanges broke violently. Sterling dropped more than 5 cents to $4.83⅛, the lowest price since Nov. 4, 1933; the French franc fell 14½ points to 6.45 cents, the lowest price since Feb. 9, 1934. At this quotation the franc was 2.7 per cent below its parity of 6.6335 cents and the dollar stood at a premium of 2.8 cents over its franc parity.

Other leading exchanges plunged downward spectacularly, the gold standard group going to the lowest since last February at discounts of from 2.3 per cent to 2.7 per cent, while the sterling group was cheaper than at any time in the last fourteen months. The situation was aggravated by the failure of the gold standard to operate in a normal way.

Fear Change in Gold Price.

Ordinarily the fall of the franc and the other gold standard exchanges of Holland, Switzerland and Belgium would have been checked at a discount of about one-half of 1 per cent below parity because at that level it becomes profitable for banks here and abroad to sell dollars for francs, purchase gold from the Bank of France and ship it here for sale to our treasury at $35 an ounce.

Today the margin of profit on gold imports from Europe reached fabulous dimensions, but no banks engaged gold. They feared that while the gold was on the way here the government might revalue the dollar and that instead of receiving $35 an ounce they might get only $20.67 an ounce, the old statutory price. Banks besieged the treasury for assurance that they

This Bank is cooperating in the aims and purposes of the United States Government to bring about business recovery.

We are making loans for the repair, improvement and modernization of real estate under the provisions of the National Housing Act (Title I).

The plan of modernization as sponsored by the United States Government is essentially patterned after the way we have lent money for the past 18 years—not only for home improvements but for the multitude of other reasons which make it desirable for families to borrow moderate amounts.

Therefore, we are peculiarly qualified by training and experience to give intelligent service to our borrowing customers and practical aid to the Government in effecting a desired objective.

BROKERS HERE TO STAY DESPITE LAWS — O'BRIEN

Exchange Head Declares Business Essential.

Neither depression nor man made laws will kill the securities business, Michael J. O'Brien, president of the Chicago Stock exchange, told 400 persons at the fourteenth annual dinner of the La Salle Street Cashiers in the Morrison hotel last night.

"Our business is essential, and no less a person than President Roosevelt has made that statement," he said. "Thrift, investment, and even speculation are instincts of our people. Instinctively, men have shown an ability to take care of themselves. These human qualities are governed by natural laws and not by laws made in legislatures.

Believes Outlook Good.

"I do not believe the stock exchange act is going to put us out of business. It is not so intended. I think we are going to be able to live well—not extravagantly—under the securities exchange act, and when we emerge, as we are now doing, from the readjustment of our business we shall find perhaps a smaller business, but a good business, and one with which we shall be glad to be connected."

Mr. O'Brien did not hesitate to criticize boom practices or to discuss federal legislation.

"So far we have been fortunate in the commission itself," he said in talking of the securities act, "but it is very easy to see that the administration of this act, if put in the hands of people unfriendly to our business could prove very disastrous to us."

Urges Coöperation.

He said it is the duty of all to cooperate with the commission as long as its present attitude prevails, pointing out that the legislation by congress is a skeleton depending on rules of the commission, which to date have been issued only after careful thought and discussion with "leaders in our business."

"I doubt that any business gave greater rewards for less effort, and sometimes less ability, than did our business during the boom period," O'Brien declared. "We attracted parasites who were no credit to themselves or us. In the last five years we have had to pay the penalty, and many of the ills we are now grumbling about are attributable to this cause."

He said that overhead costs have been cut and luxuries eliminated, but that underlying conditions are better.

USE UNEMPLOYED TO WRECK 1,131 BUILDINGS HERE

1,100 Men Given Work in Last Six Months.

BY AL CHASE.

Eleven hundred unemployed have been given steady relief labor during the last six months wrecking 1,131 Chicago buildings, condemned as unfit to live in, according to the annual report of the Illinois State Housing board to Gov. Horner, made public last night by Alfred K. Stern, chairman. Six thousand insanitary and deteriorated buildings were located. Of these 362 were repaired.

Mr. Stern stated that the city of Chicago is setting up a similar program aided by the metropolitan housing council, and with an appropriation in the current municipal budget soon will be able to take over this demolition campaign. An amendment is being prepared for the cities and villages act that will permit municipalities to engage in an orderly program of wrecking dilapidated and worn out buildings.

Report Urges Coöperation.

Coöperation with the federal government in its housing program and the planning and supervision of state housing activities were stressed by the report. Pointing out that Chairman Stern and Secretary Coleman Woodbury have been consultants to the PWA housing division since its inception, the report emphasizes the fact that of the three federal housing sites selected for Chicago, two were identical with those recommended by the board and the third was an alternative selection.

The report anticipates that if the Federal Housing administration insures mortgages of limited dividend housing corporations, as it contemplates, their supervision would be a part of the duties of the state housing board.

Transfer 11 Story Hotel.

The Admiral Hotel company yesterday conveyed title in the eleven story Admiral apartment hotel, at Foster avenue and the lake shore, to the Western and Southern Life Insurance company. This was done to satisfy a mortgage of $575,000 against the property held by the insurance concern.

According to an insurance company official the transfer of title is the result of a friendly workout with the owners still in the picture. The owners of the property are G. Albin Nilson, president of the Fiat Metal Products company, and the John A. Nyden estate. Mr. Nilson said that the owners have one year in which to redeem the property.

The building was erected twelve years ago at a reported cost of $800,000.

ASK CARNEGIE EMPLOYE PLAN BE DISSOLVED

Washington, D. C., Jan. 15.—(AP)—The Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin workers petitioned the steel labor board today to dissolve the employé representation system at the Carnegie Steel company's Duquesne, Pa., and McDonald, O., plants.

The petition charged the United States Steel corporation and the Carnegie Steel company, a subsidiary, "conspired together to devise a means of circumventing the right of self organization of their employés" through "company unions." These, the petition contended, represented a "scheme" to keep employés from "joining a labor organization" under section 7A.

U. S. PLANS TRADE PACTS TO SELL SURPLUS COTTON

AAA to Fix 1935 Quota at 12 Million Bales.

[Copyright: 1935: By the Associated Press.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 15.—(AP)—A new plan aimed at ridding America of its piled up cotton surplus was shaped today at a White House conference participated in by state, treasury, and agriculture department officials.

Coincidentally it was tentatively decided at the agricultural adjustment administration to fix a quota of 12 million tax free bales for this year under the Bankhead compulsory control act.

An authoritative source said the Roosevelt administration was determined to devise methods of paring down the cotton surplus, whether the program contemplated now proves effective or not. Devised by expert cotton men, officials said, it deals with the handling of the cotton store through methods of stabilizing exports.

Discuss Plan with Roosevelt.

Secretaries Hull, Wallace, and Morgenthau and Oscar Johnston, cotton authority, discussed the question with the President. There were indications afterward that pending reciprocal trade pacts may be the vehicle to carry off the excess staple.

Differences of opinion within and without the administration over the handling of the cotton problem caused a proposed barter deal with Germany for 500,000 bales to be dropped for the time being. Secretary Hull opposed the proposition.

It was asserted the latest proposal did not involve barter and that Mr. Roosevelt had instructed the secretary of state to sound out two or three foreign countries on the idea. Two of them were understood to be among the largest consumers of American cotton.

Split Over Cotton Quota.

There had been lively discussion within the AAA over the Bankhead act quota. Senator Bankhead [Dem., Ala.], author of the measure, which places a tax of 50 per cent on all cotton sold over the total allotment, favored fixing the quota at 10 million bales. The 12 million total, however, was described as fitting in with the voluntary acreage reduction plan for this year which calls for a reduction of 25 per cent in normal plantings.

Included in the 12 million bale quota would be the carry-over of about 700,000 tax exemption certificates which were not used in 1934 due to the short crop. New certificates would be issued to replace them, but would not constitute added production above the limit set.

NUMBER OF CATTLE ON FEED IN CORN BELT 46 PER CENT UNDER '34

Washington, D. C., Jan. 15.—(AP)—Cattle on feed for market in corn belt states Jan. 1 were estimated by the bureau of agricultural economics to be 46 per cent smaller in number than a year ago. This was the largest decrease in one year for the 13 years for which estimates are available, the bureau said, attributing the decline to drouth in western range states and the resulting emergency sale of animals to the government.

Wide variations occurred in various states, decreases of 80 per cent in Kansas and 65 per cent in Missouri comparing with increases of 5 per cent for Ohio and 15 per cent for Indiana. States east of the Mississippi river showed a decrease of only 7 per cent while states west showed a net decrease of 57 per cent.

The average weight of cattle on feed this year dropped in the proportion of animal over 1,000 pounds in weight, gained in medium weights running from 750 to 1,000 pounds, and declined in light weight steers and calves. The number of stocker and feeder cattle shipped into the corn belt through stockyards markets from July 1 to Dec. 31 was about 5 per cent above the corresponding period of 1933.

Estimated number of cattle on feed Jan. 1, expressed in percentage of Jan. 1, 1924, was, Ohio 105, Indiana 115, Illinois 85, Michigan 85, Wisconsin 88, Minnesota 80, Iowa 80, Missouri 35, South Dakota 70, Nebraska 40, and Kansas 20.

BUTTER FUTURES DECLINE; EGGS UNCHANGED TO LOWER

Butter and egg futures weakened on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday, butter losing ⅜ to ¼ cent per pound. January eggs dropped ⅝ cent, while other egg deliveries were unchanged to ⅛ cent per dozen lower.

Butter was firm at the opening, but when stocks and grains weakened, selling set it. Little attention was paid to a stronger cash market. Storage withdrawals were moderate.

Eggs opened higher, but lost ground with butter. Storage withdrawals totaled slightly more than last year.

Sales: Butter, 115 cars; eggs, 93 cars.

Deliveries: Butter, 4 cars. Prices follow:

ALL LIVE STOCK PRICES SLUMP AS RECEIPTS SOAR

Adversely influenced by the sharp break in grain and provisions, livestock prices slumped sharply yesterday as receipts increased unxpectedly. Hogs dropped 10 to 25 cents to the lowest levels in 10 days. The clearance was the poorest in several weeks. Yesterday's top fell 20 cents to $10.15, while the average moved down 10 cents to $9.90.

Late in the day sellers carried 5,000 head that they were peddling at the full decline in price without much response from the buying side. The increase in receipts was attributed to the larger movement of trucks over side roads that were impassable a few days ago.

Cattle receipts were largest for a Tuesday in six weeks, totaling 10,500. Prices tumbled 25 to 50 cents during the day. Several thousands head were carried over on bids indicating an even greater decline from the recent high. Only a handful of prime steers and yearlings failed to move lower, but one lot of 57 head, averaging 1,267 pounds, reached a new top of $12.15, the highest mark since December, 1931. In between classes that had reached what the trade regarded a relatively high price level as compared to the prices paid for well fattened stock suffered a severe break.

Calves advanced 25 to 50 cents, a few selected vealers selling up to $10.

Sheep receipts totaled 14,000, second largest for a Tuesday since early last October. A break of 10 to 35 cents was recorded in lambs, which closed at the low point of the day. Yard traders paid the top of $9.75, but packers late were filling orders for choice stock at $9.35, and city butchers handpicked a few lots up to $9.50.
